WE WILL

New laid Indiana eggs; strawberries with the dew on them, blushing against a background of their own green leaves; a plump frying chicken, innocent of cold storage warehouses and other corrupting influences of city life; a quart of yellow cream, cool and fresh from the morning's milking—certainly there are compensations connected with life in Indianapolis.

A call on the long distance phone any time before 5 o'clock in the morning; an order placed with any farmer living within fifty miles, and in time for a not too late breakfast the basket filled with the freshly laid and freshly plucked products will be delivered in the city.

Eleven interurban trolley lines, running all about the state, nightly bring farm produce and all manner of freight to the Hoosier capital. Three-quarters of all the farm products used in the city—15,000 tons a month—regularly travels to town over the interurbans.

A YEAR ago this summer Philadelphia began to wake up to the fact that prices were going up, that the cost of living was increasing.

Mayor Rudolph Blankenberg appointed a commission to investigate. At the head of this body of wise men was Prof. King of the University of Pennsylvania. It reported that one of the main causes of the high price of farm products in the city was the failure of the interurban electric lines to develop a fast and inexpensive freight service. All about Philadelphia are fertile and prosperous farms. The country is thickly seamed with trolley lines. Yet these lines have so far allowed their big plants to lie practically idle at night, when there is no passenger traffic.

The Philadelphia situation is especially unfortunate because the gauge of the interurban cars is different from that of the trolley cars inside the city limits and loaded cars from the country cannot be brought downtown over the regular street car tracks.

YET, since the report, at least one of the big interurban systems has employed a freight traffic manager, whose duty is not only to interest farmers in the shipping of produce but to provide them with a daily service of prices and market conditions. The reliability of commission merchants is also investigated and efforts are made to build up a mutual spirit of coöperation and good will between the producer and the purchaser in the city.

At convenient points along the line of the system storage warehouses are being built, so that a farmer may deliver a small shipment of any nonperishable produce at his convenience, to be held until enough has been collected to make a carload and the prevailing price is attractive.

CHICAGO has as yet hardly begun to take advantage of its interurban lines for the quick and cheap transportation of farm produce and other package freight. There are now five electric interurban lines which enter the city directly. There is the Chicago and Interurban Transit company, which taps the farming country as far south as Kankakee. This line has the right to run its passenger cars up to Van Buren street on the tracks of the Chicago City Railway company, while its express and package freight cars are permitted to run to a terminal station to be located at some point to be selected south of Twelfth street.

No effort has yet been made to develop this freight service, though active work will be begun as soon as the street car situation within the city is cleared up.

It is understood that the daily delivery of packages from the big State street stores to Blue Island, Harvey, and other points along the line will furnish enough business to fill a great many cars as soon

"Shops You Ought To Know"

Have you noticed this bold-type heading in your Tribune?

Under it a galaxy of enterprising merchants seek, in every issue, to tell you about their fine stocks and good service.

The list includes specialty and general supply stores of various kinds for women and men both.

Many of the firms will be new to you. They advertise in The Tribune "Shops" section to put before you real dollars-and-cents reasons why you should trade with them.

MERRIAM IN TALK TO CONSTITUENTS ASSAILS COUNCIL

SEES 'JOKER' IN CAR MERGER

'HECKLING' GIVES HUMOROUS SCENES

Ald. Charles E. Merriam's first civic forum was held last night at the Hyde Park High school. Despite its name, it was an old-fashioned town meeting where any one discussed anything he wanted to.

The alderman started proceedings by telling what has happened in the council in the thirty days since his taking office. He made some criticism of nearly everything he mentioned.

"First," he said, "the council was organized. It was supposed to be on a strictly nonpartisan basis. But that is incorrect. The chairmen of most of the committees and the majority of most of the important committees not only belong to one party, but to one faction of that party—the city administration end of the local democracy.

"I was placed on the committees on health, gas, oil and electric light, and license. I suppose I was placed on the license committee to embarrass me. That was the purpose when I was in the council before in assigning me to this same committee.

Says Merger Has "Blown Up."

"The so-called merger of the elevated and surface transportation lines has blown up. Now the committee on transportation is considering through routing of the elevated lines. They want to extend their platforms. That is objected to by property owners because it would shut out light.

"Platform extension has this additional feature. It probably would validate the franchise for the loop structure, the legality of which has been questioned.

"If the elevated roads get the platforms extended they agree to run certain through routes. They have already consolidated. A report shows they would save $700,000 a year under unified operation; but despite this saving they have desired to squeeze the people into the cars and then club them into enfranchising of the loop.

Calls Ordinance "Fourflush."

"Last week the council passed what is known as a fourflushing ordinance, requiring that every one who rides on the elevated roads be given a seat.

"They are proposing now to consolidate the surface lines. The joker is that the companies want a guarantee of 7 per cent dividends, despite the obvious fact that consolidation would lessen the expense of operation and increase the income.

"The cause of the lack or service is continual 'passing the buck,' as a local judge has phrased it. The board of supervising engineers say they haven't the authority. The traction expert just holds his job. That office is a political plum of no more use than the fifth wheel of a wagon.

"Then there is the local transportation committee and the mayor. There is a continual shifting of responsibility.

"I think if the supervising engineers were given authority they probably would make improvements. I presented a resolution asking that the board be instructed to devise and report a plan for improvement in the service. That is sleeping in the committee on local transportation and I and thousands of others are standing up on the way down town and back home each day.

Subways Present Problem.

"Allied with the transportation problem is the subway question. That appears to be set aside for a long wait. I went to the city planning congress last week and heard an expert from New York say subways are intolerable and another expert from Berlin say they are bad and a mistake. They are expensive and insanitary.

"Probably the next important matter is garbage. From the oil obtained from garbage soap is made. So there is poetic justice and profits in the business.

"The garbage subject has been thrown around the city hall for a couple of years. It is another case, as the judge calls it, of 'passing the buck.' Sixty days ago the council ordered the commissioner of public works to advertise for bids. Then a meeting or two ago the council was asked if it really meant what it said. The council repeated its order and now they are advertising for a plant, which will cost about $900,000.

Politics in Garbage Delay.

"The present contract expires Sept. 1. What the city with a population of 2,500,000 will do with its garbage is a serious question. There is a powerful political influence to renew the present contract. The wires are pulled behind the stage. We cannot see the faces, but we can see the hands occasionally."

Prof. Merriam did not criticise the telephone rate ordinance, except to sarcastically refer to the delay of three years since the first of the three investigations were made.

Sees "Smuggling Taxes."

He took a fling at the park consolidation bill championed by the city administration. He said the bill provided for "smuggling in increased taxation."

"I presented a resolution to the council against that bill," he continued. "The purpose of the consolidation is to save needless expense. It is estimated by the bureau of public efficiency that $500,000 a year could be saved. The present rate of taxes for the parks is $1.70. The bill provided for making it $2. That means an increase in taxes annually of $3,100,000.

"My resolution was referred to the judiciary committee, and while I was talking to the

BARE BOND GRAFT; LANDIS HOLDS TWO

ONE VICTIM PAYS $1,000.

Joseph Rubens and Aaron C. Wendell, professional bondsmen and dealers in real estate, with offices in the City Hall Square building, were held to the federal grand jury yesterday by Judge Landis on a charge of perjury.

Their bonds were fixed at $7,500 each. They were taken into custody by deputy marshals and later were released on bonds signed by a surety company.

Rubens is a former associate of Sol Lewinsohn, professional bondsman, whose activities in the federal building led to an order by Judge Landis prohibiting him from signing bonds in federal cases. Wendell is a sort of "silent" partner in the surety concern.

Squirm Under Questioning.

Under the examination of Assistant District Attorney Robert W. Childs and a rapid cross fire of questions from Judge Landis, the two bondsmen spent an excruciating day in court.

The examination developed that Rubens signed bonds on a schedule of property alleged to be worth $10,000, which he never had paid for. Two pieces of property had been deeded to him by Wendell for the sole purpose of using it in the bond business.

On this property Rubens and Wendell, it was shown, are now on bonds aggregating $15,500, of which $13,500 is in federal cases. The other $2,000 is for bail in the Cook county criminal court.

Revealed by Chance.

The two men were brought into court in connection with the bond of Louis Ennis, alias Robert B. Raymond, under indictment for misuse of the mails. Rubens and Wendell were on Ennis' bond for $1,500. The government discovered that the defendant had signed the bond "Raymond," whereas he was indicted under the name "Ennis," and it wanted the bond corrected.

"Will the change cost me any more money?" asked the defendant.

This question opened up the inquiry and disclosed that Rubens and Wendell had received from Ennis $1,010 and an Oliver typewriter. This amount, Rubens said, after a series of corkscrew questionings by Judge Landis, represented the indemnity and fee for services.

The disclosure aroused Judge Landis, who was so hoarse he could not speak above a whisper. His orders had to be interpreted for him by Minute Clerk O'Sullivan.

"How much money have you?" asked the court.

"About $200 in the bank," said Rubens.

Stories on Stand Differ.

"How much did you charge this prisoner for signing his bond?"

"About $50, I think."

Wendell was then ordered to return to the chambers and Rubens was recalled to the stand. He first said he got only $50 from Ennis. After a series of questions he finally admitted he got about $1,000.

"If you'll let me explain and not get me rattled, your honor, I'll tell you how it is," said Rubens, squirming in his seat. "You see, of this money we are holding $860 as an indemnity to be returned to him."

"What did you do with this money?"

"I gave it to Wendell."

Wendell was then recalled to the stand. He this time admitted he had received more than $50, but denied having received the excess money from Rubens.

At this point Judge Landis entered an order directing the two bondsmen to produce the $1,010 in court by 3 o'clock.

"Mr. Marshal, take these two men into custody and see that they return here in court with the money," ordered the judge. "Now, you two—'gentlemen,' don't you go anywhere else. And bring in the typewriter, too."

Landis Annoyed by Incident.

As the two bondsmen left the courtroom, Judge Landis turned to a group of lawyers and said:

"To think that such a thing as this could happen in my court and to one of my prisoners after all we have heard here recently about bonds, is almost unbelievable. Gentlemen, it's heart breaking. Don't you think so?"

"It certainly is, your honor," said Attorney James Rosenthal.

At 3 o'clock Rubens and Wendell returned and deposited the $1,010 with the clerk of the court.

By agreement with Assistant District Attorney Childs, Judge Landis ordered the money made over to Ennis and the cash was accepted as surety for him. Ennis took his typewriter and went away rejoicing.

Rubens, after again going on the stand, said he had been in the bond signing business about one and a half years with Wendell.

"What did you do before that?" asked Mr. Childs.

"Before that I was unfortunate enough to be associated with Sol Lewinsohn," said Rubens. "I worked for him for $12 a week. I was with him till November, 1911, about eight or nine months in all."

CHICAGO PHYSICIAN'S WIFE HURT IN AUTO IN HONOLULU.

Mrs. Charles Adams of 33 Bellevue Place Receives Severe Cut When Thrown Forward in Car.

Mrs. Charles Adams, wife of a physician living at 33 Bellevue place, it was learned yesterday, is recovering from a severe cut she received in an automobile collision in Honolulu a week ago. Her intended sailing for this country, scheduled for last Tuesday, had to be postponed until next Tuesday.

"My latest information," said Dr. Adams, "is that she is doing well and is in no danger. The cut was severe, across her chin, from cheek to cheek. It was received in being thrown violently forward when the car was struck, but there is no occasion for alarm."

With Mrs. Adams at the time was her son, Harry Gaylord, sitting forward with the chauffeur, and unable to save his mother. Neither he nor the chauffeur was hurt.

Mrs. Adams has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Louise Gaylord Dillingham, now residing in Honolulu.

PITY THIS POOR BURGLAR; CUFFED AND CHASED BY WOMEN

A young man with aspirations to be a burglar was unable to develop them fully last night, when he tried to rob three women, one of them a great-grandmother, Mrs. Della Richards, 7 West Pearson street.

He tried to hold up Mrs. Richards and her guest, Miss Christine Linquist, and pointed a revolver at them. They laughed at him. Mrs. Richards cuffed him and chased him into the street. Surprised, but still strong of aspiration, he held up Miss Mamie Klein, next door. She not only threw him out of her hallway, but ran down the street after him until she was out of breath.

"Poof, that's nothing," said the unterrified Mrs. Richards. "His little popgun didn't scare me. I've raised three generations of children and am not easily scared."

COUNT SZECHENYI SWINDLE VICTIM?

PAIR MAY QUIT BUDAPEST

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BUDAPEST, May 16.—It seems pretty well established that heavy financial losses have decided Countess Szechenyi, formerly Gladys Vanderbilt, and her husband to leave Budapest. Reports are being heard in financial circles that the count's affairs are in such a bad way that his wife's family has suggested their removal for a time.

Reports that the countess persuaded her husband to leave this city because the Hungarian aristocracy has snubbed her ever since she has been among them are without foundation.

In fact, the countess since her arrival here has been most popular and has been received everywhere among the highest nobility as an equal.

Has Lost $4,000,000.

Count Szechenyi is reported to have lost more than $4,000,000 of his wife's fortune. He has been the victim of a mining swindle in which he lost huge sums on the Budapest and Vienna bourses.

Bankruptcy proceedings have been brought against three of the most prominent members of the Hungarian nobility whose fortunes have been swallowed up in enterprises similar to those which have caused Count Szechenyi to lose several million dollars.

These three nobles are regarded as among the wealthiest men of Hungary and rumor connects their failure with the loss of the Szechenyi millions.

The three defendants are Count Paul Szapary, who besides being immensely wealthy married one of the richest Polish countesses, who had a dowry of $1,000,000; Count Karacsonyi, who owned the finest mansion in Budapest, and Count Emmerich Degenfeld, owner of a famous racing stable of Hungary.

Organized "Magnate Group."

The story goes that the count, being anxious to become Hungary's Vanderbilt, organized among the rich land owners and other members of the aristocracy what became known as the "magnate group" for operations of a speculative nature.

Everything went well for a time. Last autumn the count and his associates failed to see the financial storm which was breaking as the result of the Balkan war. When the storm of Black Wednesday, Oct. 12, swept by the "magnate group" was among the cripples of the financial battlefield, having lost some $7,000,000. The count's personal loss was estimated at $2,000,000.

Buy Up Worthless Mines.

About a year ago Count Szechenyi and his friends became interested in coal and iron mines near Krasso-Szoreny, formerly owned by the Austro-Hungarian state railway. The latter sold them to a private concern when their experts reported they were of little value.

Count Szechenyi and his friends then obtained an option on them on the strength of a report made by Belgian engineers that the property was worth $100,000,000. The count tried to interest local financiers of Budapest, but knowing the report of the railway company's experts they refused to come in.

When it was discovered the mines were worthless, Count Szechenyi and his friends had lost about $13,000,000.

WILSON PREPARES ALIEN BILL REPLY TO APPEASE JAPAN

Answer to Protest, However, Will Show U. S. Has Made Cause of California Its Own.

CONCILIATORY IN TONE

SITUATION IN NATURE OF CRISIS

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Couched in conciliatory terms and with every apparent desire to maintain friendly relations with Japan, President Wilson has prepared his reply to the protest of the Tokio government against the California alien land legislation.

At the same time, this government has made the cause of California its own. It considers the bill passed by the legislature of the state as within the provisions of the treaty; if not, Japanese subjects affected have the right of appeal to the courts.

Just how far the president has gone in his response to the Japanese representations can not be learned. That he maintains the right of the state to enact the Webb bill is generally conceded. His efforts, as the agent of the federal government with which Japan, as well as other foreign powers, alone can deal, are referred to, including the trip of the secretary of state to Sacramento. To these efforts is attributed a measure which falls within the treaty existing between the two nations.

Contents of Note Kept Secret.

What proposal the president makes to evolve a solution of the dispute is kept a close secret. Japan has not raised the question of the eligibility of its subjects to American citizenship, though it is known such action would end the controversy, so far as it is concerned. Nor has it asked for arbitration.

Under the circumstances, it is said the president came to the conclusion not to discuss either one of these matters in his reply.

If Japan cares to make a new treaty with the United States specifically prohibiting Americans from owning land within its territories, and prohibiting Japanese from owning land under the American flag, the Wilson administration will be glad to inaugurate the necessary negotiations.

The president and Secretary Bryan are hopeful that "the battleship Friendship and the cruiser Fellowship," which their note represents, will sink "the battleship War and the cruiser Strained Relations."

Must Satisfy Ministry.

It is apparent, however, that a reply which does not removed completely the suggestion of inferiority contained in the California law, according to the Japanese interpretation, will not be satisfactory to the ministry at Tokio.

Although there is ample precedent in American diplomatic history for an appeal by foreigners to the courts, the Japanese embassy has let it be known that no such course will be advised by its government in connection with the California legislation. It is to the federal government that Japan looks for a remedy of the present situation.

Either the United States must comply with Japan's demands or accept responsibility of an affront to the government and people of the far eastern empire.

Cablegrams have been received here from Japanese statesmen, urging that everything possible be done to meet Japan's wishes in this controversy. The ministry of Tokio wants peace. It will do everything in its power to preserve it. But having an insecure tenure, it is apprehensive that it will be overthrown as the result of a popular outburst growing out of the refusal of the United States to disapprove the California law, and be succeeded by a jingo ministry.

Real Danger Still Exists.

That there is real danger of such a result is appreciated here. The fact must not be lost sight of that the Japanese people believe this country helped to rob them of the fruits of their victory over Russia.

They do not know that the Japanese government begged President Roosevelt to intervene when it was financially exhausted and that it was deeply concerned over the prospect of a continuance of the struggle. This explains why Japan receded from its demand for indemnity.

The elder statesmen, not caring to risk unpopularity, gave the impression that this country prevented Japan from obtaining its demand for cash. Added to the feeling aroused by this false description of the policy of the United States was the resentment aroused by the immigration and San Francisco school questions. President Roosevelt solved the former by placing the matter of emigration to the United States in the hands of the Japanese government and later by sending the battleship fleet to the Pacific.

Some Japs Want War with U. S.

Undoubtedly there is an element of the Japanese people who want war with the United States. When the reply of this government is made to the Japanese protest it will be seen whether they will prevail or whether sober judgment will remain in the saddle.

It is expected that the Japanese protest and the reply thereto will be made public simultaneously in Tokio and Washington, in accordance with an arrangement to be reached.

It was freely admitted in cabinet circles today that the present situation between the United States and Japan is in the nature of a crisis. President Wilson, however, insists there is nothing in the negotiations calculated to alarm the country, and he deprecates the reports made public of armed preparations. What is being done, he insists, is merely in accordance with the routine plans long ago adopted.

The fact, however, that he has given instructions that there be no movement of ships which can be misinterpreted in Japan shows he realizes the delicacy of the situation.

In this connection, attention was called today to the fact that the armored cruiser Maryland is to go in a few days to Alaska for the purpose of testing Alaskan coal.

Would the government permit a single ship to proceed upon a mission of this kind, the administration asks, if it thought there was danger of war?

Guard Army and Navy Movements.

The administration further declares that the prohibition of the movement of ships also applies to the movement of troops, during the present stage of the Japanese negotiations.

At the same time, the two companies of coast artillery ordered yesterday to Hawaii, will proceed to their new station in accordance with the orders issued. The armored cruisers Montana and Tennessee now cruising in the Mediterranean have been ordered to return to the North Atlantic coast.

It is understood that Japan will reply promptly to the American note, the purpose being to settle the question with dispatch one way or the other. It is realized that delay is dangerous, as it would be calculated to arouse public sentiment in the island kingdom.

Governor Signs Arizona Law.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 16.—Gov. Hunt today signed Arizona's new alien land bill. It prohibits any alien, whether of Caucasian or Mongolian descent, from owning land in Arizona if he has not declared his intention of becoming a citizen.

This not only bars Asiatics, who cannot become citizens, but also a large number of wealthy Mexicans who live on the American side of the line but who have maintained their allegiance to the government of Mexico.

A vigorous fight was made to have the bill apply only to aliens ineligible to citizenship on behalf of the Mexican holders of property in Arizona.

There are few Japanese holding property in the states though many Chinese hold title, and these, like the noncitizens among the Mexicans, will be required to dispose of the real estate titles they now hold within a period of five years.

The law exempts only mining claims held by aliens or real property necessary to the proper working of mines.

Representative Japanese conferred with the governor in an effort to induce him to veto the bill, but he declined.

Asks Japs to Be Patient.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—An appeal was published by officers of the United Japanese Associations of Southern California, counseling patience pending the outcome of diplomatic negotiations with regard to the California alien land bill.

It is directed to all Japanese residing in the United States and the American possessions in the Pacific, and sets forth that the "war talk now widely prevalent among our people" will only embarrass the Japanese and the American governments in their efforts to arrive at an amicable adjustment.

JUNK SHOP LABORATORY WINS CHICAGO CHEMISTRY PRIZE.

For the third time since it was founded by William A. Converse in 1910, the Willard Gibbs medal for meritorious research work in chemistry was awarded last night by the Chicago section of the American Chemical society. This year it was awarded to Dr. Leo H. Baekeland of Yonkers, N. Y.

The first medal was awarded in 1911 to Prof. Svante Arrhenius, director of the Nobel institute at Stockholm, Sweden, and the second medal went to Prof. Theodore W. Richards of Harvard university last year.

"This medal," said Dr. Baekeland, in accepting the token, "will always make me think of the many warm friends I have in Chicago and the middle west. I had established a little junk shop laboratory at my home at Yonkers, bought at a 10 cent store, and here I am receiving this grand token of award, the Gibbs gold medal for proficiency in chemical research work."

He then delivered the medal lecture, illustrated with many charts.

New Haven, Conn., May 16.—Statewide primaries are "extreme measures for political reform" and a national primary for the election of a president and other national officers is "almost beyond thought" to former President William H. Taft, who today delivered another lecture at Yale on "Some Problems of Modern Government."

Prof. Taft said the primary is a means of electing good local officials, but the state and national conventions "give an opportunity for more mature deliberation than is possible at the polls."

"A vital objection to the statewide primary," said Mr. Taft, "is the great advantage that men of wealth and great ambition have over merely good men. Such men are willing to spend money to obtain advertising and votes, while the well qualified men are unwilling or have not the means to spend."

Champaign, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Lyle Smith of Kenilworth, Ill., a pupil of the New Trier High school, won the state interscholastic oratorical contest, and Milton Morris of McKinley High school, McKinley, Ill., won the state extemporaneous speaking contest tonight at the University of Illinois.

ANGLO-SAXON IDEA PEACE GUARANTEE

TALK SOUNDS KEYNOTE.

International Delegates Have a Busy Day Sightseeing in Chicago.

The Anglo-Saxon impulse, the common origin of the sons of Britain, and the citizens of the United States, is counted on to hold the world at peace by the force of good example. Sir Arthur Lawley, representing Great Britain, so indicated at the banquet given the peace delegates by the Association of Commerce at the Congress hotel last night.

"We are not here with the idea of arranging a treaty or compact, to threaten or coerce any nation or people," he said. "Nothing could be further from our desire. We come to draw into closer union of harmony and friendship the men of your great republic and those of Great Britain.

"The Anglo-Saxon impulse is the pole star by which you have set your compass in the past. We also have made it ours.

Cites Century of Peace.

"One hundred years ago Great Britain and her sons in this land were at each others' throats, grappling one with the other in a grim and hideous struggle for life and death. In eighteen months from now a century will have passed without any renewal of the horrors of war between us, and we regard this matter as one for such gratitude that we would mark the occasion in such a way as to manifest our resolve to insure the permanence of the happy relations now existing between us. We trust our example may lead other nations to incline to the arts of peace rather than of war.

"The moral influence of our two nations, standing hand in hand for the advancement of civilization and peace, cannot fail to be a potent factor in deterring others from the awful enterprise of war."

W. J. Calhoun Talks on "Peace."

Both Sir Arthur Lawley and William J. Calhoun, former minister to China, emphasized that warships and other armament could not be abolished at once, and that the interests of peace would be benefited by armament.

"I believe the time is coming when there will be no more war," said Mr. Calhoun, who reached Chicago on Thursday from China. "While I love peace and believe that eventually all questions will be settled by arbitration, I have no wild dreams concerning the sudden abandonment of armament. It will be a gradual growth and development."

H. S. Perris, who is secretary of the peace delegation, cited the frontier of the United States and Canada as the world's best example of the success of an unprotected border.

"The United States and Great Britain have a treaty," he said, "by which neither Canada nor the United States may build forts or float warships on their frontier. In this celebration of 100 years of peace this feature should be brought out as an example to European nations spending millions on their border defenses."

Welcomed to Chicago.

"Chicago would have you feel, gentlemen commissioners," said Howard Elting, toastmaster, "that her century's growth from a stockade to a metropolis has been the marvel of the new world in part because of a century of peace. A century of peace is worth another century of peace. Armaments may or may not make for it, but the international presumption is that no dispute is conceivable except, perhaps, over a question of national honor, which cannot be settled, and righteously settled, without war. To commerce peace means cultivation of the humanities, the flowering of the arts. To commerce peace means study of the ways of social justice.

"Chicago, with her sister cities, assures the imperial commissioners that she approves the celebration of the 100 years of fellowship distinguished in either nation by glorious progress."

Other speakers at the banquet were J. A. Stewart of New York, originator of the idea of the celebration, and Col. George T. Buckingham.

Dunne Sends Telegram.

Gov. Edward F. Dunne sent a telegram regretting "that the press of public business would prevent his being with the delegates at the banquet," and asked that his regards and best wishes be presented to the distinguished guests.

Charles E. Beal, secretary of the Chicago Peace society, sent a telegram extending "the heartiest greetings to visiting British delegates, rejoicing in the belief that the century of peace is but the beginning of perpetual peace."

The banquet at the Congress closed a long day of entertainment. Following the meeting at the university the delegates visited the stockyards. Then they were given a luncheon at the Press club. The speakers included Sir Arthur Lawley, Joseph Allen Baker, M. P.; Frank Comerford, Neil Primrose, M. P.; Charles Thomas Mills, M. P., and J. A. Stewart.

From the Press club the delegates went to Grand boulevard and Forty-fourth street, where they witnessed the peace pageant of 1,200 pupils of the Forrestville school. The rest of the afternoon entertainment consisted of a visit to the "Pageant of Darkness and Light" at the Auditorium and the "World in Chicago" at the Coliseum. The party left at midnight for Detroit.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ANNIE CRAIGMILE KIMBELL, 68 years old, died yesterday at the home of her son, Raymond Kimbell, 2512 Kimball avenue. Mrs. Kimbell was the widow of the late Martin N. Kimbell, son of Martin N. Kimbell, after whom Kimball avenue was named. In the naming of the street the early directories changed the spelling of the name. Mrs. Kimbell is survived by three sons and one daughter. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence. Burial will be in Union Ridge cemetery.

MRS. LAURA CHASE, 94 years old, died at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Arthur C. McDowell, 3611 Wilton avenue, yesterday. Mrs. Chase is survived by three great-grandchildren and four grandchildren. Mrs. Chase was known in Chicago as "Grandma" Chase. She lived in Chicago for many years before the fire of 1871, when she moved away. She returned eighteen years ago and had lived here since. The funeral will be held from the residence of Mrs. McDowell tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

MRS. ELIZABETH F. BARNHART of Hinsdale, 63 years old, died yesterday at her residence. Mrs. Barnhart is survived by her husband, A. E. Barnhart, a retired business man, and a daughter, Grace. The funeral will be from the residence in Hinsdale, at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

DR. E. RUSSELL OGDEN, who died in Chicago Wednesday night, will be buried today at Boston, Mass.

RAH! FOR PEACE DELEGATES

YELLS JAR MANDEL HALL.

Foreigners Surprised by Their Vociferous Welcome.

It was chapel period, and Mandel hall was packed with students. Organmaster Stevens played a processional, and the delegation of dignitaries, headed by President Judson in cap and gown, filed down the main aisle and took their seats on the platform.

Cheer Leader to the Fore.

The president's first words were anticipated when Rudy Mathews, university cheer-leader, sprang up from the audience made a megaphone of his hands and yelled:

"All right, fellows, are you downhearted?"

"Are you happy?"

"Yes," in a roar equally as loud.

"All right, then let's give nine rahs for peace. Are you ready? One, two, three."

The vigorous yell always heard on the football field, but with "Peace, peace, peace! Yeah!" on the end of it echoed through the room.

After a short talk on the merits of the peace movement, the president introduced Sir Arthur Lawley, at one time captain of the Tenth Hussars, governor of Western Australia, governor of Madras, lieutenant governor of the transvaal, administrating officer in half a dozen other English provinces, who perhaps had never been called anything but "Sir Arthur Lawley," since he acquired his title. He moved in a grave manner to the pulpit.

"Who Is Lawley?"

Mathews sprang up again.

"Who is Lawley?" he asked.

"First in war; first in peace; first in the hearts of Chicago men. Tum-tee-um-tum Tum Tum," was the chorus of the students.

"All right then," yelled the cheer leader, "let's give nine rahs for Lawley. Make it snappy. One, two, three—" The greeting destroyed the equipoise of Sir Arthur. He was clearly embarrassed for a moment, and then he smiled and spoke on the purpose of the visit of the peace delegates.

DEATH CALLS BISHOP DOANE; SUCCUMBS IN NEW YORK CITY.

New York May 17, 2 a. m.—Bishop Croswell Doane, bishop of the Albany diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, died at the Hotel Manhattan, early this morning. He was 81 years old.

Croswell Doane was born in 1832, the second son of the Rt. Rev. George Washington Doane, second bishop of New Jersey. He was educated at Burlington college and later studied at Columbia university, Trinity college, and Union university.

After his ordination he was a curate under his father and later he became rector of St. Mary's church at Burlington, N. J. He served as rector of St. Peter's church, Albany, N. Y., for three years and was consecrated first bishop of the diocese of Albany in 1869. He was the author of a number of religious works.

EX-QUEEN AMELIE MAY ELOPE.

Pleads with Son, Manuel, for His Consent—He Refuses, Demanding Only Royal Blood.

MUNICH, May 16.—Former Queen Amelie of Portugal vows she will elope and wed the man of her heart if her son, former King Manuel, the head of his house, persists in refusing his consent to her marriage.

Queen Amelie has confessed to her son that she loves Count of Vassalaes, a young Portuguese noble who has devoted his life and his fortune to restore Manuel to the throne from which the Republicans drove him—that is to say, to restore Manuel's fair mother her queenly glory.

Manuel refuses his consent to the union. He reminds her that the widow of a king cannot take as her husband any man not of royal blood.

'BOY DETECTIVE' HELD AT BAY

IN HIS MOTHER'S POWER.

First "Pinch" Fined $10 and Sent to the Bridewell.

Stripped of his star is believed to be the fate of "Detective" Edward Smith, the 7 year old who "travels" out of the Hyde Park police station and who on Thursday took his first prisoner to jail.

The prisoner, Olaf Hanson, six feet tall, who was taken to the jail by "Detective" Smith because of his suspicious appearance, was fined $10 yesterday and sent to the bridewell by Municipal Judge Gemmill.

But "Detective" Smith was not present to witness the outcome of his most serious endeavor to "clean up the Hyde Park district." In the morning he had concluded he was needed more at the jail than he was in school. The teacher sent a note home to his mother, Florence E. Smith, 1509 East Fifty-second street, by an older brother.

Last Seen Under Guard.

When last seen "Detective" Smith was disappearing around the corner toward his home with his mother on one side and his older brother on the other.

"Where is your partner?" asked Detective Dennis Breen of Gerald Christ, also 7 years old, who "goes out" with Edward.

"That's a mystery," replied Gerald. "I have been looking for him ever since school was out. I heard his mother took him in and we haven't seen him since. I hate to see him get it that way but if he has to give up his star can I have it?"

"Well, we'll have to have somebody take his place," said Breen.

Gerald Christ Sworn In.

"You ought to be sworn in right away," Breen replied. So Gerald was given a new star and took the oath, which was administered by Desk Sergeant Murphy.

"How much pay do I get?" asked "Detective" Christ. "Well, I don't care how much it is, I'm going out and make a pinch. I saw a black boy outside that looked suspicious and I'm going to shadow him. I wish Eddie was here to go with me. He might be dangerous. You never can tell."

THREE INJURED IN STRIKE RIOT

TWENTY-SIX ARRESTED.

Paterson Power Plants Guarded Against Menacing Industrial Workers.

Cincinnati, O., May 16.—Two men and a youth were slightly injured and twenty-six men were arrested this afternoon charged with disorderly conduct as a result of an attempt to interfere with the operation of one of the lines of the traction company whose employés are on strike. The demonstration occurred shortly after noon at Fifth and Walnut streets, in the heart of the business portion of the city, and lasted half an hour.

It was precipitated, it is stated, by boys overturning a large garbage can in front of a Clifton car, which line resumed service today. A large crowd had assembled to witness the parade of labor unions in sympathy with the strikers, and when it was rumored that the motorman of the car had struck a boy with a club a violent demonstration was started.

Mounted police rode into the crowd and rescued the crew of the car and drove the mob back to the sidewalks. No shots were fired, but missiles of various kinds were thrown.

The demonstration for the striking carmen made by the labor unions was a large one, about 7,500 men being in line in the parade to the Cincinnati ball park, where speeches were made by union leaders.

General Strike Threatened.

Paterson, N. J., May 16.—All power plants in the city are under guard today, in view of threats of a general strike made by speakers yesterday at the great meeting of striking silk mill workers, called to protest against he conviction of Patrick Quinlan, Industrial Workers of the World leader, found guilty of inciting riot.

His fellow leaders, among them "Big Bill" Haywood and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, are yet to be tried on a similar charge.

Ten thousand strikers and sympathizers attended the protest meeting, cheering madly when Adolph Lessig, one of those indicted, advised them to "tie up every garage and street car line in the city and put out all the lights for a couple of nights."

Appeal to Gaynor.

New York, May 16.—One hundred boss barbers called on Mayor Gaynor today and asked him to arbitrate their controversy with their striking employés.

They told the mayor that 20,000 barber shops in the city were affected by the strike, and that the bosses were ready to concede many of the journeymen's demands for more pay and shorter hours. The mayor said he would try to get in touch with the strike leaders.

Four columns of striking barbers, 10,000 strong, organized a parade through the streets this afternoon.

SAYS THREATS COST $30,000

ACCUSES AGENTS OF BANK.

Says She Was Told "Boy Financier" Faced Prison Term.

Butler R. Storke of Oak Park, the "boy wizard of finance," told in Judge Carpenter's court yesterday how he was forced by representatives of the National City bank to take them to his grandmother, Mrs. Laura G. Rogers of Milwaukee and compel her to sign over $30,000 worth of property "to save him from prison."

Mrs. Rogers is suing the bank, the Wauwausee Inn company, and eight other defendants to recover the property. The suit is the result of young Storke's plunge into Chicago's financial world.

Storke testified G. L. Wire, William A. Bither, and L. H. Grimme took him to his grandmother and frightened her.

"We went to my grandmother's house on March 3," he said. "Grimme, Bither, and Wire took me there. When we got in the house I tried to see my grandmother alone, but Grimme grabbed my arm and pulled me back.

Storke Tells His Story.

"Almost the first thing they said to her was 'Do you know, Mrs. Rogers, that Butler has done a terrible thing? He has embezzled more than $30,000 and has been operating a confidence game. Butler is due for twenty years in the penitentiary unless you help him. What are you going to do to make good that amount of money?'

"Mrs. Rogers cried, 'My God, it is impossible Butler has done this. Give me time to think.'

"'There is no time to think,' Grimm answered. 'The head of the bank, David R. Forgan, will find this out. He will get after your grandson and he is a powerful man.' Mrs. Rogers then was asked to name what property she had and in a sort of daze she complied. All this time Bither paced up and down the floor saying, 'What an awful thing such a boy should go to jail for twenty years.'"

When young Storke went into the bond business for himself, according to Attorney Buckingham, he produced an affidavit to show business men that he was more than 21 years old and personally liable for any losses he might incur.

To show that Storke had "put one over" on the financiers by means of the affidavit, Dr. Thomas E. Roberts of Oak Park was put on the stand. He testified he attended Mrs. A. F. Storke at Butler's birth. The date, he said, was Nov. 16, 1892, making Storke still under 21.

Mrs. Rogers Says She Was Confused.

Mrs. Rogers earlier in the day testified she had signed away her property under "threats and duress, and in the belief the boy had done something terrible."

"When the men demanded my jewelry I took off my diamond earrings and handed them over," she said. "The earrings were worth $1,000 apiece. After I had torn them off I sent my companion for my jewel case. This I also gave them."

"When they talked to you about embezzlement and stocks you hadn't the slightest idea of what they were talking about, had you?" asked Attorney Buckingham.

"No, sir, I had not. One of the men took me to one side and told me something. I didn't understand it. I threw up my hands and said I had heard enough."

Did It for "My Boy."

"Madam, are you in the habit of signing papers brought to you by strangers?" asked Judge Carpenter.

"No, sir. Butler was with them. My boy was there. Please don't think I would have signed if he hadn't been there," protested Mrs. Rogers. "I did it for my boy. I'd sign anything for him as long as I had a dollar. They called Butler a 'con' man and an embezzler and said he was the worst liar they had ever heard of. Mr. Grimme said Vernon Gray of Oak Park, father of the girl Butler was engaged to had come to him and told him my grandson lied and his word could not be depended on."

Other defendants in the case are Lawrence D. Ballou, J. E. Ballou, Thor R. Thorsen, Emil Wagner, and Paul Tietgens. These are all "parties to the conspiracy," according to the bill of complaint.

PIMPLES CAUSED DISFIGUREMENT

Red and Festered. Terrible Irritation. Itching Unbearable. Relieved of Pimples After Using Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

2040 North Hamlin Ave., Chicago, Ill.—"About one year ago my face began breaking out with sore mattery pimples. They were red and as they festered they took on a head of yellow pus. The trouble caused great disfigurement while it lasted and also caused me the loss of many nights' sleep because of the terrible irritation. At times I could not wash my face because of the soreness and when I did wash it the itching of the pimples was unbearable.

"I tried ——, ——, and ——, and different cold creams but to no avail. I suffered in this way for about six months. I saw an advertisement giving reasonable testimonials and offering a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment for which I immediately sent. On receiving this sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment I carefully followed the directions with the results of getting on the path of recovery. ELEVATEDS ASK FOR LOOP TUBE

Willing to Use Subway Downtown if City Will Build Underground Structure.

THROUGH ROUTE DATA IN.

Unless New Idea Is Adopted Companies Want to Lengthen Station Platforms.

Day's Developments in Car Situation.

Elevated roads agreed to the removal of the Union loop if subways will be built by the city as a substitute. Through route detail submitted.

Mayor Harrison approved the street car companies' request that their present income be guaranteed by the city if operation is unified. Ald. Healy proposed a 4 cent fare in rush hours.

Reported that secret loan of $1,170,000 to City Railway in 1906 was for the purpose of establishing its grasp on a small company absorbed later.

Samuel Insull, chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago Elevated Railways, surprised the city council yesterday.

He suggested the city construct subways for the use of the elevated lines, agreed to lease the bores and permit the removal of the union loop at the option of the city as soon as the underground substitute for the structure is in operation.

As promised, THE TRIBUNE during the first week of its campaign for "L" through routing, all the data necessary for the council's decision upon the company's plan of joint operation of the north and south lines and the exchange of transfers between all lines was submitted. The subway proposition accompanied Mr. Insull's letter transmitting sketches of the contemplated structural changes and the ordinance authorizing the company to make them.

Text of Insull's Offer.

"I beg to say," ran the letter, "that the elevated companies are not seeking any permanent additional rights to maintain or enlarge any portion of the loop structure, or anything whatever beyond the right to adapt the structure to the reasonable requirements of through routing.

"More than this, I have no hesitation in saying that if some satisfactory substitute shall be provided by the city the elevated lines will be entirely willing to make a reasonable arrangement with the city to use the substitute.——

"If, for instance, the city will build a proper subway, the route and character of construction to be mutually agreed upon, the elevated railways will agree to lease the subway during the term of their present franchises, to give transfers and through routing by use of the subway instead of continuing to use the elevated loop structure, and to pay a graduated income to the city which, during the terms of the lease, would amount to a substantial income upon the city's investment.

Dual Tube Use Considered.

This subject, together with the subject of through routing, will be taken up by the local transportation committee on Monday morning. While there is some doubt of the city's financial ability to build a subway system for the "L" lines without delay for the passage of necessary legislation, it is probable subway discussion will revert to the possibility of the construction of a downtown terminal system housing both the elevated and surface lines, on which considerable planning was done during the Busse administration.

Ald. Henry D. Capitain already has before the committee an order for the supervising board to consider the construction of bores for the surface companies under the subway provisions of the 1907 ordinances, and it is expected the board will be instructed to consider also the possibility of four track bores for both the present types of local service.

Study Loop Increase Plan.

A preliminary study of the documents by some of the aldermen failed to disclose any suspicion of any form of "joker." They also were deeply interested in the question of the extent to which the loop station platforms would have to be lengthened to permit the maximum car capacity outlined by Mr. Insull during his appearance before the committee.

This capacity would be 1,220 cars an hour through the simultaneous loading of two six car trains at each station. The second plan outlined, providing for the loading of only one six car train at a time, would give a capacity of only 1,100 cars an hour, or approximately 6,000 seats less than the first.

It was found the engineering sketches provided for the first plan a total extension of 2,922 feet of platform on each side of the loop, additions being recommended at all the "normal" stations, but provision is made for direct connection of some of the existing platforms on the Van Buren street side of the loop because of the frequency of stops there.

Details of Second Plan.

The second plan would involve extensions on only three stations amounting approximately to 500 feet. The chief of these would be necessary under either plan in order to load trains at the Randolph street and Fifth avenue station at a point farther south than at present in order to give the proper clearance of the junction immediately north. The sketches also showed the transfer bridges proposed by Mr. Insull at three loop stations.

The paper always is delivered untorn. The boy is trying to train his partner to collect money and make change, but Bunk has not yet acquired that ability.

MAYOR FOR BETTER SERVICE

FOR THE GUARANTEE PLAN.

Feels the Companies Are Entitled to Concessions.

Mayor Harrison yesterday emphasized the necessity for improvement in Chicago's street car service, even at the cost of a reduction in the city's share of the profits of the companies.

"I stated the situation correctly in my message to the council when I said that conditions are immoral and indecent," he said. "The overcrowding is so bad that the affect is worse than the tango or the turkey trot.

"The only real relief that can come immediately is that from unified operation, and the companies seem to be willing to put that into effect.

"I would rather see that money going into service than being piled up in the city treasury. It is a mistake to take it at the expense of good service.

"If we ask the companies to give more than required by their franchises it is no more than natural they ask us for more than is required by us in those ordinances. If they will through route and give universal transfers—all the benefits that would come if the lines were all operated by a single company—it would be no more than fair if the city protected them against a reduction of their profits."

Uncertain as to Referendum.

The mayor said his ignorance of the details of the companies' offer and the lack of any opportunity to consult his advisers prevented him from giving an opinion whether a referendum would be required for an ordinance granting the company's terms.

This subject was discussed by the local transportation committee and Leonard A. Busby, president of the City railway, said a referendum should not be required. He was opposed by John W. Beckwith, assistant corporation counsel.

Ald. W. J. Healy raised a new topic for discussion when he urged a reduction of the street car fare to 4 cents during the morning and evening rush hours. He proposed to sell twenty-five tickets for $1, a plan similar to the "workingman's ticket" system in use in several cities. He said he favored returning to the public the $10,000,000 now in the traction fund.

Solves Car Loan Puzzles?

A new solution was found yesterday for the $1,170,000 loan puzzle brought out by the suit of James B. Hogarth for an accounting from the traction interests.

It was asserted the loan was obtained so the Chicago City railway company could obtain control of the Southern Street railway, then the Chicago General railway company, a small south side corporation, so it could be welded into a system covering the entire south side after the passage of the 1907 ordinances.

No authoritative verification of the report could be obtained, but men high up in financial and traction matters said that it sounded "reasonable and probable."

Fined for Cold Cars.

The Chicago City Railway company yesterday was fined $500 for failing to keep its cars heated in January. Judge Wells held the company was under obligation to heat its cars before they left the barns. The trial lasted three days. The company has announced that it will carry the case to the Supreme court.

O. K. ORDER FOR 15,000 LIGHTS.

An order seeking the installation of 15,000 additional street lights was approved yesterday by the council committee on finance, although none of the members could suggest where the city could find the money to pay for the work.

The order authorizes the city controller to make the necessary contract with the sanitary district, and it is proposed to provide for the payment of the cost on yearly installments.

TOASTMASTER "KIDNAPED" BY LAKE FOREST STUDENTS.

Ferocious Freshmen Capture John Milton at Dormitory and Spirit Him Away in an Automobile.

The faculty of Lake Forest college, previously incensed by the kidnaping of students in the frequent rows between freshmen and sophomores, is expected to rise and make unpleasant remarks as a result of another kidnaping yesterday.

John Milton, chosen as toastmaster for last night's sophemore dinner at the Moraine hotel in Highland Park, opened the door in his dormitory in answer to a knock. He was grabbed by three freshmen, carried downstairs yelling, tossed into an automobile, and driven away, probably over the Wisconsin line and into Racine.

A member of the faculty, informed by telephone of the occurrence, announced it would not be necessary for the sophomores to keep their promise.

"Vengeance is ours," said the professor grimly.

WOMAN ARRESTED AS SPEEDER.

Mrs. J. H. Prentiss of Kenilworth Halted with Party While on Way to Chicago.

Mrs. J. H. Prentiss of Kenilworth was arrested on a charge of speeding her automobile yesterday afternoon in Evanston. With a party of women friends she was on her way to Chicago. Harry Imus, a chauffeur, was driving the machine when his employer was arrested. Mrs. Prentiss admitted to Justice Boyer she told him to "speed moderately." The case was continued.

GREER DEMOCRACY BALL HERO

Sartorial Jinx Fails to Keep Ex-Chief of Merit Board Home.

GARB STOLEN! UNDAUNTED!

Dashes to Friend's House, Borrows Suit, and Shines Anew.

Frederic Greer, former president of the county civil service commission, attended the annual ball of the Cook County Democracy at the Hotel La Salle last evening. The fact is worth reporting because the accomplishing of it was a feat. It called for an exhibition of much versatility, and Mr. Greer was equal to the occasion.

Late yesterday afternoon Mr. Greer set out in his automobile to prepare for the occasion. He proposed to be, if not the beau of the ball, at least a thing of beauty and a joy forever. His tour of preparation took him first to the tailor, where he got his evening clothes, then to the dry cleaner, from whence he extracted his "silking vest," thence to the laundry, from which he reappeared with his collars, his ties, and his ruffled front dress shirts.

These vestments, one after another, Mr. Greer packed into a suit case which lay in the car. Finally he drove up to a barber shop and stepped in.

Glad Raiment Vanishes.

When Mr. Greer walked out of the barber shop he discovered that the suit case was gone!

Most men would have gone mad in the street and bit a chunk out of a telegraph pole or a policeman, in such a situation. Not so the iron nerved Mr. Greer. Much experience with the H.-H. brand of democracy had taught him coolness in emergency.

First he got the Desplaines street police station on the telephone and reported the theft. Then he jumped into his car and drove to the home of a friend of about his own weight and build, whom he knew to possess two suits of evening clothes. He borrowed everything in sight. After this he flitted to a haberdasher's, where he filled up the gaps in his apparel with new garments.

On Hand with Bells On.

The result of this activity was that when the ball opened last evening Mr. Greer was not only present but was easily distinguishable because of the air of distinction he gave to the landscape. Nothing could have been more neat.

Also Mr. Greer was one of the calmest persons in the party. Not a shadow of his past sorrow was permitted for an instant to show itself upon his placid brow.

There were some 2,000 other persons at the ball. In fact, the attendance was so large that the red room and the Louis XVI. ballroom were too small to accommodate the crowd.

Mayor Carter H. Harrison, with Miss Frieda Mayer, led the grand march, followed in order by Mr. and Mrs. Miles J. Devine, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reinberg, Sheriff and Mrs. Michael Zimmer, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitzmorris, Mr. and Mrs. James McInerny, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Traeger, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Goossens, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cook.

ARRESTED AS DRIVER OF TAXI THAT HIT WOMAN AND SPED ON.

Leo Reinhardt Said to Have Been Trailed by Number Taken When Victim Was Struck.

Leo Reinhardt, a taxi driver at the Temple hotel in West Chicago avenue, was arrested by the town hall police yesterday when his license number was found to be 47,473, said to be that of the car which knocked Mrs. Agnes Eckstein of 4342 Kenmore avenue to the pavement on Thursday night. The driver threw on speed and disappeared.

Martin Hennessy, 94 years old, a resident of Chicago for over fifty years, was probably fatally hurt yesterday when he was run down by the automobile of Dr. A. N. Du Vault of 810 South Hamlin avenue. The physician said he was blinded by the searchlight of another car.

Eight year old Wilfred Coe of 3861 West Monroe street, walking with his parents at Madison street and Spaulding avenue, lagged behind and was run down by Edward Rock of 4315 North Winchester avenue. Rock took the boy to a physician. He was not arrested.

POOR BOX THIEF SENTENCED.

Man Who Looted Holy Cross Church Receptacles Fined $100 and Given Ten Day Bridewell Term.

Julius Reager of 550 West Madison street, who robbed poor boxes in the Holy Cross Catholic church at Sixty-fifth street and Jackson avenue, was yesterday fined $100 and costs and sentenced to ten days in the bridewell by Municipal Judge Gemmill.

HARAHAN JR. HIDES ROMANCE

Son of Late Head of I. C. Gets License to Wed Marie Lang.

DRAWS VEIL OF SECRECY.

Knowledge of Marriage Denied at the Family Residence.

A "quiet" marriage seems to have been planned by James T. Harahan Jr., son of the late president of the Illinois Central railroad, who on Thursday took out a license for Marie Lang and himself. At the residence of his stepmother, who lives at 3308 South Michigan avenue, all knowledge of a marriage in the family was denied yesterday.

This denial was repeated by several friends of the family and at the office of the Buda company, a railway supply firm, with which Mr. Harahan is connected. At his rooms, 121 East Thirty-sixth street, it was said last night he was out of the city.

Reputed Heir to $500,000.

For ten years Mr. Harahan has been employed as a salesman by the Buda company. He remained with the concern in that capacity after his father's death last year in the railroad accident at Kinmundy, Ill. At that time it was reported that each of the Harahan children had inherited at least $500,000.

At the offices of the company in the Railway Exchange building it was said in the afternoon that Mr. Harahan would return a little later.

"He has gone to the offices of the Illinois Central and is on the street during the greater part of the day," it was asserted.

When James Vilas, president of the Buda company, was called by telephone at his residence in Lake Forest he denied all knowledge of Mr. Harahan's marriage and of a woman named Marie Lang.

"Mr. Harahan left last night on his southern trip," he said. "His final destination is New Orleans, but I do not know how far he is now."

"Better than Loafing."

When asked whether there is any particular reason why Mr. Harahan is not an officer in the Buda company, the president replied:

"I do not know that Mr. Harahan has inherited a large fortune. I suppose he remains with us as a salesman because he likes the work. That is better than loafing, isn't it?"

At the Harahan residence it was at first maintained that James T. Harahan Jr. was an unknown personality there. Later this was explained as meaning James T. Jr. is not a son of Mrs. Harahan, who is his stepmother. The information was given by telephone in a feminine voice, which asserted it belonged to "Mrs. Harahan's secretary." It was denied the marriage had been announced privately to members of the family.

GOLD ALDERMANIC STAR USED IN "SHAKEDOWN" GAME.

"Phony" Diamond Insignia Bearing Name of Late Patrick Noonan Shown to Man in Effort to Collect Tribute.

A gold aldermanic star with a "phony" diamond setting was the badge of police authority made use of by two men who were arrested last night for an attempt to extort money from James Murray, 663 South State street. The star bore the inscription: "Presented to Patrick Noonan, alderman Twenty-ninth ward, by friends. Oct. 9, 1869."

Policemen Mayer and Quinn of the mounted squad were at Polk and State streets, where Murray told them two men, whom he pointed out, had tried to "shake him down" on the pretense that he was a thief. The men, he said, claimed to be detectives.

CUPID BEATS PASTOR-FATHER

AUTO DEFEATS MOTORCYCLE.

Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell's Daughter Becomes Bride.

A motorcycle is no match for a bridal car when Chauffeur Dan Cupid is at the wheel.

"Hurry! Hurry! That's father coming! Don't let him catch us!"

A red headed chauffeur for a big limousine pressed his ear to the speaking tube, then let a little more gas into the engine as he rounded a sharp corner at Drexel boulevard and Forty-sixth street yesterday afternoon.

Just behind followed a man bent over the handle bars of a motorcycle, who shouted and tried to induce the red headed chauffeur to slow up.

"Can't You Lose Him?"

"Can't you turn a quick corner and lose him?" came a frantic male voice through the tube.

The chauffeur gave a dash at a streak of sweat that ran out of his red hair into the corner of his eye, squawked a horn, and caressed the big machine on two wheels at a sharp turn.

The motorcycle darted straight ahead. Two corners further east and the bridal car turned back to the south. The motorcycle was not seen again. Half an hour later the limousine pulled up with a jerk at 4611 Ellis avenue, the residence of Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell, pastor of the St. James Methodist Episcopal church.

The Race Is Won.

The race was over. The redheaded chauffeur grinned bashfully when a white gloved hand was thrust into his and the bride shyly thanked him for his wit and courage.

"Guess I was a regular Cupid that time," he said. "I'll be lucky if my boss doesn't fire me for letting them hang those tin cans on the car and fixing that 'We Are Just Married' banner on the back."

"It was terribly exciting," Miss Florence Martin, the bridesmaid, said as the party stood on the steps of the parsonage just after the ceremony. "Miss Eleanor Mitchell—I mean Mrs. Ray Woods—that's the first time she's ever been called that, I guess—and Mr. Woods were schoolmates and graduated from Lake High school together two years ago. They are both just turned 20 and Dr. Mitchell, her father, did not want them to marry so soon.

"They Couldn't Wait.

"They were planning to get married next February, but decided they couldn't wait. Mrs. Mitchell, her mother, was willing, and so they didn't tell the father anything about it.

"All the arrangements were made and he never knew a thing until it was too late and we saw him chasing us on his motorcycle. Eleanor had taken her things and got ready at my house, 5631 Sangamon street. We looked out the window in the auto and saw Mr. Mitchell trying to stop us, so we urged the chauffeur to hurry. There were some awful sharp turns, but we got away all right."

Woods is associated with his father, Raymond H. Woods, 5750 Jackson avenue, in the jewelry business. The bride was a member of the Chicago grand opera ballet. They will live in Woodlawn.

DENIED GOWNS, WIFE USES FISTS

That's What Ira Minard Alleges in His Suit for Divorce—Tells of Six Beatings.

Ira Minard has been beaten six times by his wife, Evangeline, since their marriage at Muskegon, Mich., in 1910. He says it is because he could not buy her gowns and hats which she desired.

He filed a bill for divorce in the Superior court yesterday.

REVEALS "INSIDE" OF "SEERS' TRUST"

Says Only Clairvoyants Who Paid "Protection" Were Allowed to Operate.

The first confession in the state's attorney's investigation of the "Chicago Clairvoyants' association" was made last night by Willie Neff, who "fed dream dope" to guileless women under the aliases of "Prof. Verna," "Prof. Mantel," and "Prof. Salsburg." Neff, who is 28 years old, was arrested on the roof of his mother's hotel at 1943 Michigan avenue, where he had fled from detectives.

"Neff tells a first person story of the operation of the clairvoyants," said State's Attorney Hoyne at the conclusion of a four hour interview with the prisoner in the Criminal Courts building. "He said he did not know specifically about the payment of protection money, but he knew it was paid and knew that only the clairvoyants in the organization were allowed to operate.

First Employed by "De Alvandros."

"He first 'got into the game' through 'Prof. De Alvandros,' a negro who posed as a Spaniard and opened offices in Neff's mother's hotel. He was office boy and assistant for Alvandros, who was using that name while posing as a lawyer in the Reaper block, but used the name of 'Prof. Verne' in his clairvoyant office.

"Across the street from them on Michigan avenue were the offices of Paul Way, an Englishman, who had a widely advertised clairvoyant clientele under the aliases of 'Prof. Salisbury' and 'Sidney R. Elkins.' Way was driven out of town when the combine arrived here from New York. Alvandros sought to take advantage of Prof. Salisbury's advertising, by moving into the offices across the street and continuing the business under the name of Prof. Salsburg.

"Neff says he received a percentage of the profits, after all expenses had been paid. Alvandros always took care of the 'fixing' with the police. He said that once he was arrested by a city investigator, but on another occasion two detectives came to arrest him. When he told them he was employed by Alvandros they did not molest him. I cannot give out the names of the detectives now.

Thought Bertsche a Policeman.

"With regard to Barney Bertsche, Neff says he did not know him personally, but had seen him several times at the Twenty-second street police station, whenever a clairvoyant case was up. He says he thought Bertsche was a policeman.

"He exposed the common method among clairvoyants for escaping prosecution as follows: Three men would pose under the same alias. If there was a warrant for one of the clairvoyants a different man would be arrested, and when the complainant was unable to identify, the case would be dropped. Alvandros, he said, always kept a fund with which to settle if complaints became too strong.

"Neff says he posed as the clairvoyant in the absence of Alvandros and had a patronage of his own. He declared the biggest amount of money he ever got from a client was $1,000."

Caught on Housetop.

The building on which Neff was captured is operated by his mother as a rooming house. Late in the afternoon Detective Sergeants Cleghorn and Sheehan and Detective Murphy of the state's attorney's force, after sending a note to make certain Neff was at home, followed a woman into the house. They were unable to find Neff, however, and summoned a belaaguering party from the South Clark street station.

With the building surrounded, the detectives, accompanied by Edward Fleming, Hoyne's secretary, systematically searched the house, cellar, three floors, and the attic, but the "professor" had apparently cast the spell of invisibility about himself. Then they thought of the roof, and behind the largest chimney Neff was found crouching.

Eight Indictments Expected Today.

Eight indictments in the "clairvoyant trust" prosecution by the grand jury are expected to be returned today. It was current rumor around the state's attorney's office during the day that several true bills had already been voted.

Sureties approximating $200,000 were being obtained at night by Attorneys Charles E. Erbstein and Emil Van Bever for use this morning when an attempt will be made to gain the release on bond of Ryan, who is charged with swindling Mrs. Hope L. McEldowney of La Crosse, Wis., of $15,000. Application for Ryan's release on a writ of habeas corpus was made before Judge Cooper, and it will be heard today by Judge Foell.

POLICE NOD: WOMAN ROBBED.

Another Holdup Reported on Argyle Avenue—Citizens Petition for Protection.

The alley on Sheridan road, between Argyle and Ainslie avenue, last night was the scene of the seventh robbery this year. Mrs. Aleon Sproule, 821 Sherman avenue, Evanston, was held up by two masked men who stepped from the alley with revolvers, dragged her back, and robbed her of a purse containing $28.

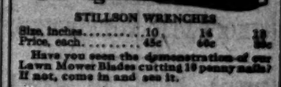

Several months ago a "citizens' guard" was formed to patrol the streets against highwaymen.

A petition asking for better police protection will be sent to Chief McWeeny today.

PRESIDENT WINS FIGHT ON TARIFF

Penrose-La Follette Motion for Public Hearings Beaten in Senate.

DEMOCRATIC VOTE SOLID.

Sherman Makes His Second Speech, Urging Careful Deliberation.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—President Wilson has won his tariff fight in the senate. The Underwood bill, which he approves, will be passed by the upper house substantially as it was adopted by the lower chamber.

This is the interpretation placed by the administration and senators today upon the result of the vote on the Penrose-La Follette motion directing the finance committee to conduct public hearings upon the bill. The motion was rejected by five majority, the announcement of the chair being 36 senators supporting the motion and 41 opposing it.

In all probability this will be the vote by which the senate will pass the bill upon its final passage.

But two Democrats—Ransdell and Thornton of Louisiana—voted for the Penrose motion. They were actuated by a desire to develop all the facts in opposition to the transfer of sugar, a great Louisiana industry, to the free list. They had a faint hope that the senators from the beet sugar and wool states, such as Shafroth and Thomas, of Colorado, Myers and Walsh, of Montana, and others would aid them to obtain hearings. But the president's objection to anything of the kind prevented a single Democratic senator outside of Louisiana from supporting the Penrose motion.

Poindexter Opposes It.

Senator Poindexter of Washington was the single member of the senate not a Democrat to vote against the proposition to hold hearings. Poindexter undoubtedly will vote for the bill when it comes up for final passage. His opposition to hearings lies on the realization that it paves the way to filibustering, a procedure with which he is not in sympathy.

Every Republican, Progressive, and standpatter lined up in support of the Penrose-La Follette motion. One of the curious results of the effort to get these two factions of the Republican party together was the joining of Penrose and La Follette in the perfection of a motion designed to put the Democrats in a political hole.

Result of Vote.

Because of the importance of the vote today as foreshadowing the way in which the senate will line up when the tariff bill is finally passed upon, the result announced by the vice president is worthy of study. It was as follows:

Poindexter—1.

Following this vote the senate referred the Underwood bill to the finance committee without instructions. That committee will report the measure favorably, within three weeks.

During the couse of the debate preceding the rejection of the Penrose-La Follette motion, Senator Sherman delivered his second speech. The Illinois senator advocated the adoption of the Penrose-La Follette motion.

Public Hearings Necessary.

"There is unusual necessity of holding public hearings on this tariff bill," said Senator Sherman, "because many of the phases of the present tariff problem have developed since the senate considered the question a year ago. The income tax was not considered then for the reason that there was no constitutional power to levy such an impost. Now, by the ratification of the constitutional amendment, that power exists. I believe that the sobering effect of the acquirement of constitutional power would justify hearings on the income tax section.

"The provisions of the income tax section hit more than malefactors of great wealth and swollen fortunes and attack the provident under the guise of a tax on incomes. Thus it is proposed to levy the tax not only on incomes but on that protection which every provident head of a household provides for his family. I am in accord with the exemptions of the business of fraternal life insurance and building and loan associations, but I would extend that exemption to include life insurance on the mutual plan without capital stock or profit to the shareholders or members of the company."

The senator also pleaded for a postponement of the date on which the new rates shall go into effect. He said that the readjustment to new conditions would require several months and suggested Jan. 1, 1914, as a reasonable date.

MERRIAM TALKS TO CONSTITUENTS

committee, advocating a rate of $1.70, which the committee said they would recommend, they fixed the rate in Springfield at $1.80."

Does Not Mention Mayor.

Mayor Harrison was in Springfield on the park consolidation, but Ald. Merriam did not refer to him by name.

"The rate of $1.80 means an increase of taxes of $1,000,000. Perhaps the city could well spend that additional revenue, but it would be better to have their plans for spending it before you give it to them."

Ald. Merriam commended the anti-noise crusade of Ald. Nance.

"Then, also, the council received an ordinance from Ald. Coughlin last Monday," went on the professor. "It seeks to regulate woman's dress. It was referred to the health committee, and some suggested it ought to be now referred to the anti-noise subcommittee."

Heckling Follows Address.

When Ald. Merriam had finished his review of the general subjects he detailed his efforts in regard to ward improvements. Questions and general discussion followed. With them came the entertainment and amusement mingled with the instruction.

Perhaps the most humorous incident involved two skinny men and Ald. Merriam, who is slender. They gave three different brands of advice to a fleshy school ma'am. She wanted to know how to make the landlord remove a pile of ashes from the rear of a flat building.

"It is intense ugliness," she explained.

Ald. Merriam said so long as the ashes were on the landlord's property and constituted no nuisance the city authorities could not interfere.

The first willowy man thought that the dust from the ashes was a menace to health and therefore a nuisance. The third suggested the woman get all the tenants to sign an agreement to keep back their rent until the ashes are removed.

Woman Suffrage.

The healthy teacher opined that woman's suffrage might get action quick and advised a trial. She recounted some of the feats of the suffragists in Oregon.

During the discussion on bathing beaches one man, intentionally or otherwise, remarked that swimming is ten times more popular than golf. That aroused the ire of an enthusiast of the game of Rockefeller, other millionaires, and lesser lights.

"I want to stand up for that game," he started. "There were 120,000 games played on the Jackson park public links last year, and that doesn't count 20 per cent of the players who played without tickets in the mornings."

Another woman wanted to know how to prevent her neighbors from keeping things in the back yard which are bound to bring flies, and Lorado Taft, the sculptor, wanted to know if there is any reason to be alarmed about the rumor that the street car company wants to extend its Sixty-first street line down to the lake.

Same Questions Asked.

"I would like to know what kind of a substitute Samuel Insull is offering you in place of the elevated loop," asked another.

"And I would just like to see a ward superintendent once," appealed still another.

"I will exhibit ours at the next meeting," replied the alderman. "His name is Thomas Mulroy and his telephone number is Hyde Park 152. Call him if your ashes are not removed, streets swept, or if the garbage wagon fails to call."

"The phone number again, please," inquired a woman with a lead pencil and a scrap of paper.

Removal of Ashes Puzzler.

"I have lived here a long time and owned property," started a big man with fire in his eye. "It has always been a puzzle to me. If a man owns a three flat building, the city takes away his ashes. If he owns eight separate flat buildings on eight different lots the city takes away the ashes. If he owns two or eight flat buildings joined together the city won't take away a bucket of ashes. Why is that?"

"That is the way the ordinance reads," smiled the alderman. "Now, why the ordinance reads that way I don't know. I presume the framers of it thought a man who owns a large flat building is financially better able to pay for the hauling of his ashes than a small owner."

"That ought to be changed, and we appoint you a committee of one to see to that, alderman."

One of the rules of the meeting is that no action shall be taken, such as the adoption of resolutions. That saves the alderman from getting ill advised instructions, but he got a definite idea of what some of his constituents think they should have. About 100 attended this meeting. A larger attendance and still more talk is expected at the next.

RECOUNT GIVES BOARDMAN SEAT

HENNEBRY IS IN OFFICE.

Local Option Workers Fight for Change Before Bill Is Voted On.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—George B. Boardman, the Progressive candidate for the house in the Joliet district special election following the death of former Representative James H. Alexander, was found to have had an actual plurality of 133 over Michael F. Hennebry, Democrat.

This was discovered after the sub-committee of the house committee on elections had counted the ballots in Du Page county, and accepting the Will county returns as they were certified and remained unquestioned. The subcommittee, to make the matter absolutely sure, started tonight to recount the ballots, cast in Will county.

Local Option Hinges on Result.

The fate of county local option probably hinges upon the result in the district. The state canvassing board, including Gov. Dunne and Attorney General Lucey, threw out the DuPage county vote in its entirety and granted the certificate of election to Hennebry. In spite of the determined fight made by the Progressives, Hennebry was sworn in and voted for Lewis for United States senator and for the initative and referendum.

The wet and dry issue will be at the decisive point on Wednesday, when the county option bill is due to reach it's third reading. Hennebry is a wet. Boardman is a dry.

Midnight efforts were made by Hennebry's friends to get court orders restraining the subcommittee, of which Representative Simpson of Greene is the chairman, but these failed, and the DuPage county votes were recanvassed this afternoon.

Gains 133 Plurality.

The net result, computing the Du Page recount and the Will county official count, gives Boardman 4,010, Hennebry 3,877, and Rohe, Republican, 1,548. Boardman's plurality is therefore 133, and upon this showing the Progressives and the dry forces particularly will demand that he be seated and that Hennebry be unseated, prior to the showdown on local option.

REPRESENTATIVE E. M. ZOLLA CALLS THE HOUSE "ROTTEN."

Excoriates "Invisible Government" at Springfield and Pleads Cause of the Progressives in State.

An excoriation of the "invisible government" at Springfield and a plea to join in the battle waged by the Progressives for better conditions was made last night by Representative Emil M. Zolla at a banquet of the Fifteenth Ward Progressive club in Old Style hall, West Division street and North California avenue.

More than 300 men and women thronged the hall and cheered the speakers, who asserted that the party would never be merged with the old political factions.

"The more I see of the rotten conditions in the house at Springfield the more determined I am the Progressives shall win out in the next electeion," shouted Mr. Zolla. "You can imagine my surprise at the spectacle of Roger C. Sullivan occupying the speaker's throne when the battle for speaker of the house was on.

"The Progressives down there are making the fight of their lives, and are in need of every assistance you can give them. Political bosses know their days for putting over rotten deals are nearly at an end." William H. Malone, Thomas D. Knight, Ald. Henry S. Upatel, and Julius J. Herzog also spoke.

WOMAN SHAMES LAW STUDENTS

Sarah Smith Ends Dispute of Northwestern University Delinquents Over Paying Up.

The dispute among the juniors of Northwestern university law school as to whether members delinquent in class dues should be allowed to vote on next year's officers was solved readily yesterday by the one woman in the class, Miss Sarah Smith. She marched down to the desk of the treasurer, J. R. Juvenal, tossed her 50 cents scornfully into his lap, and marched back. The delinquent male members followed her example and the row was settled.

OWENS MAY GET VOTE FRAUDS

Election Board Talks of Turning Over Inquiry to Judge.

FIND WITNESSES BALKY.

Poll Officials Fail to Present Clear Explanations.

Investigation of the alleged election frauds in connection with the state's attorneyship contest in November will be turned over to County Judge Owens if the election board is unable to get any admission from the witnesses called.

This was decided upon yesterday after several judges and clerks of election had failed to throw light upon apparent frauds in their precincts.

"We have several precincts where there were gross irregularities," said Election Commissioner Czarnecki. "This was shown by the recount. We have called in the judges and clerks and they have refused or at least failed to give any good explanations. I have suggested that Judge Owens take the matter up after we have completed our own investigation and take these judges and clerks in hand."

Would Oust Poll Officials.

Czarnecki, it was said, also would suggest that the judges and clerks in the First and Eighteenth wards where irregularities have been found be dismissed and refused further participation in elections as judges and clerks.

The evidence which Czarnecki has collected himself will be presented to Judge Owens in case the county judge takes up the matter. The main charges—that the Democrats sent out word on election night that Hoyne was defeated unless "quick work was done" and that "short pencil work" was done by Democratic politicians for Hoyne in a number of precincts—has not been substantiated so far in the investigation.

Czarnecki, who has conducted the examination of the witnesses, said yesterday this was due to the unwillingness of the men called to tell all they knew of the election.

Will Rule on 1900 Contested Votes.

Judge Baldwin on Monday is expected to decide regarding 1,900 contested votes which were found in the recount. Most of these are claimed by William A. Cunnea, the Socialist candidate, and if his arguments are sustained will bring his net gain over Hoyne to 7,200.

Ald. Coughlin of the First ward declared yesterday to the election board that he took no interest in politics except for "local elections." When asked to explain some apparent election frauds in the First ward Mr. Coughlin declared that in the November election he had voted and then had gone home. Commissioner Czarnecki has subpoenaed ten more judges and clerks for today.

STORK PLAYS TRICK ON DOCTOR.

Gives Ambulance Surgeon Two Trips to House of Mrs. Lena Cohen to Welcome Twins.

Twin boys, each weighing three pounds, were born to Mrs. Lena Cohen of 1415 South Halsted street on Thursday night. They arrived fifteen minutes apart, and necessitated two trips of the Desplaines street police ambulance to the county hospital, where they were placed in incubators. Dr. L. A. Sutton, ambulance surgeon, hurried to the Cohen home in response to a telephone call, arriving a few minutes after the birth of the first Cohen heir. The mother refused to be taken to the hospital. Upon arriving at the institution, Dr. Sutton found a telephone message asking him to hurry back to the Cohen home, where he learned of the birth of the second boy. The infants were placed in incubators and are doing well.

AUTO LETS LOOSE GEYSER IN STREET

Lawmaker Hruby's Car Breaks Water Plug at Sixteenth and Blue Island.

FLOODS THE VICINITY.

Accident Leaves Fifty Families Dry for an Hour and Damages Property.

The activities of Representative Joseph Hruby of Chicago at Springfield this week were nothing compared with his troubles of yesterday when he was taking an automobile ride near Sixteenth street and Blue Island avenue.

The pavement was slippery, the automobile skidded, leaped the curb, and collided with a water plug near the sidewalk.

Here are the results:

One broken water plug.
One drenched legislator.
Fifty families without water for one hour.
Damage of about $2,000 to stock in nearby stores.

Hruby Waits and Watches Geyser.

Representative Hruby, who lives at 1806 South Center avenue, did not try to drive away, one excellent reason being the refusal of his automobile. He moved hastily away from the geyser and waited to see what the increasing army of city employes was going to do about it.

He said the accident was unavoidable, as the pavement had just been sprinkled.

The rest of the populace dove for the cellars when the geyser continued to spout and began removing goods the water might damage. N. Hovng, a baker at 1630 Blue Island avenue, did not move with sufficient speed, and five barrels of sugar and a large amount of flour were ruined.

Saloon Suffers from Water.

The goods in the basement of the A. Williams Awning company, across the street, were soaked, and even the saloon of Long & Koulkalk at 1622 Blue Island avenue suffered from the water.

CHANGE FOR HARPER'S WEEKLY.

Publication Sold to "Norman Hapgood and Associates," According to Statement of Col. George Harvey.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Harper's Weekly, one of the oldest and in its day one of the most influential weeklies in the country, has been sold to "Norman Hapgood and associates," as the statement of Col. George Harvey, president of Harper & Bros. and editor of the Weekly, given out for publication tonight, put it.

The Harper firm recently sold their women's publication, the Bazar, to the Hearst interests. Henceforth the firm will give all its attention to Harper's Magazine and to its book publishing business. Col. Harvey's statement continues:

"We sold the Weekly for the same reason that we sold the Bazar. It was losing money, and had been for some time. We had a good offer from good people and accepted it."

EDITOR WOUNDS A MAYOR

F. B. Slate of Mount Auburn Shoots to Repulse Attack.

B. P. WINDSOR THE VICTIM.

Fight Proves Climax of Long Standing Feud Between Two Men.

Mount Auburn, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Mayor B. P. Windsor of this town today was shot in the stomach and suffered a dislocated shoulder in a fight with F. B. Slate, editor of the Mount Auburn Tribune. The battleground was the C., H. and D. railroad depot.

After being shot Windsor boarded a train and went to St. John's hospital, Springfield.

Late tonight it was said the wound is serious and Mrs. Windsor hastened to Springfield to be near her husband.

Slate was arrested and taken to Taylorville. He was released on $2,500 bail. The charge preferred against him is assault with intent to commit murder.

Feud of Long Standing.

The shooting is the culmination of a long standing feud between the editor and the present administration, which Slate claims is too liberal and has allowed the lid to stay off too long.

The breach was widened at the spring election, and last Tuesday night Mayor Windsor in a speech at a public meeting to consider propositions for a new waterworks declared he would clean up Slate the next time the mayor's name appeared in the Tribune.

Thursday the weekly issue appeared, with a full account of Windsor's speech and a few appended observations on the alleged leniency of the administration toward lawbreakers.

This morning Windsor followed Slate to the depot, where the fight soon started.

Fights Keep Town Awake.

Numerous fights between the two men have kept the town full of excitement since the spring election. The mayor, it is said, was administering a severe beating to Slate at the time the shot was fired.

DEMOCRATS OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR 1914 AND 1916 ELECTIONS.

President Wilson Approves Plan and Work Will Begin at Once in Flooding Country with Literature.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—The campaign for Democratic supremacy at the polls in 1914 and 1916 was opened today when the executive campaign committee of the Democratic national committee organized and discussed preliminary plans.

Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, caucus chairman of the house and recognized as the president's spokesman in that body, was made chairman, and Rolla Wells of St. Louis, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, treasurer.

At the permanent headquarters Thomas J. Pence of North Carolina, the former correspondent who conducted the Wilson press campaign, will be in charge as manager of publicity. Plans agreed on today contemplate the sending of Democratic Washington letters to the approximately 10,000 weekly newspapers and 2,000 daily papers that have no special correspondents at the national capital.

The committeemen, accompanied by Mr. Pence, called at the White House during the afternoon and explained the plans for the educational campaign to President Wilson, who approved.

ST. PETER'S RECTOR ONCE EXONERATED

Bishop Anderson Considered Charges, but Called the Grounds Insufficient.

DR. A. L. FARR'S NAME USED

Physician, However, Denies Responsibility for Allegations That Caused Inquiry.

Charges against the Rev. William Carson Shaw, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, it was learned yesterday, have been received by Bishop Anderson, considered by him, and dropped on the ground that there was insufficient foundation for them.

The identity of the person who made the charges was not disclosed, but it is understood Dr. A. L. Farr of 3915 Pine Grove avenue carried on an extensive correspondence with the bishop. Dr. Farr is a member of the faction of St. Peter's that is opposed to Dr. Shaw. He has denied responsibility for the charges.

Trail Leads to Members.

Inquiry by the rector's friends into the authorship of the anonymous letters finally has centered around a small group of malcontents in the church. The names of all of these insurgents have been filed. By a process of elimination as well as by other evidence in the possession of the church authorities the investigators have arrived at the conclusion that the letters were written by a man, or at least inspired by a man.

This man, it is said, left the church some time ago. Since then, it is declared, he has gathered around him a group of women who, years ago, were the stanch adherents of a rector of the church who was dismissed for cause. They never have shown any marked sympathy for the present régime and every effort to bring them back into the fold, it is said, has failed.

For months past gossip about the Rev. Mr. Shaw has emanated from this group. It is asserted this gossiping was fostered by the man who is the moving spirit in it.

Rector of Convivial Nature?

The gossip related to Rector Shaw's personal habits. The story was circulated persistently that he was of a convivial nature. The insurgents, it is said, even went so far as to get or attempt to get a record of Mr. Shaw's checks in the Edgewater Golf and University clubs.

Talk of this nature had the effect of disturbing the church membership, but the rank and file, it is said, still continued loyal to the rector.

A curate, the Rev. Arthur Beatty, was dismissed from St. Peter's service on grounds which were regarded as sufficient by the church dignitaries. This added fuel to the flame of discontent. The dismissal of the man in charge of Butler Memorial house and the substitution of A. A. Pons also aroused feeling. The church as a whole, however, approved of what was done in these cases.

About this time charges against the rector were filed with Bishop Anderson. The bishop, after considering them, replied that he did not think the facts alleged constituted a ground for action on his part. He refused to be a party to any attempt to cause a schism in the church.

Anonymous Attack Begins.

The insurgent movement after this blow seemed about to die of inanition. It was then, it is said, that the anonymous attack on Mr. Shaw was conceived and put into execution.

The Countess de Coriche declared during the day that Pons had been compelled to obtain a commission as a deputy sheriff in order to protect Butler house from an attack upon it which had been threatened by an employé whom he had dismissed. This was a youth named Gluck, whom Pons brought to Chicago from New York. He is described by the countess as being a "tough Bowery boy." He was an instructor in the natatorium. When he was "fired" Gluck informed Pons he intended to return some night with a "gang" and "clean out" Butler house. Pons immediately afterward had himself endowed with police powers.

Girls Who Acted in Plays That Netted $1,000 for Church.

Miss Anna Marlin Miss Mathilda Waite Miss Ruth Douaire.

The building fund of St. Mary's of the Lake church was increased $1,000 yesterday by an entertainment given at the Wilson Avenue theater. Three plays, "The Goddess of Love," "Mrs. Molly," and "The Maid and the Masker," were given by girls and young men of the church. Among the girls who took part were Lillian Bower, Grace Gregori, Thordia Gregori, Anna Martin, Wilma Leonard, Mathilda Waite, Agnes Haisler, Catherine Powell, Ruth Douaire, and Marion Hohman.

COULDN'T PITCH BALL GAME; BOY DIES OF BROKEN HEART.

St. Paul Youth Kept at Home by Illness Pases Away When Told His Team Lost Championship.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—"Had I pitched, my school would have won the pennant, but it's too late now; we've lost——"

Willie Lieser, 14, champion pitcher of St. Paul grade schools, sobbed these words, buried his face in the bed clothes, and died of a broken heart.

On Wednesday Willie won his third consecutive victory, pitching a two hit-no run game. Yesterday's battle was to decide his school's pennant chances. He worried, causing a headache, and was detained at home.

When the principal and comrades called on Willie today he still was confined to his bed. "What's the score?" he cried. They told him, and a moment later he was dead. Physicians say death was due to a broken heart.

FLAGLER IS REPORTED WEAKER

Oil Magnate Continues in a Critical Condition, Although Able to Take a Little Nourishment.

West Palm Beach, Fla., May 16.—Henry M. Flagler, who has been critically ill for several weeks, was reported to be weaker this morning. He took some nourishment today. Tonight Mr. Flagler's physicians reported that he was resting comfortably.

DENIES THAW BRIBE CHARGE

SAYS PHYSICIAN WANTED PAY

Asserts Money Given by White's Slayer Was for Legal Battle.

New York, May 16.—Contradictory testimony on the vital point whether a $20,000 bribe was offered to Dr. John W. Russell, former head of Matteawan hospital, to release Harry W. Thaw was given by leading witnesses for prosecution and defense today in the trial of John N. Anhut in the Supreme court.

Testifying in his own defense, Anhut denied he ever offered to bribe Dr. Russell or any one else. For the prosecution Dr. Russell had testified that he met Anhut in this city on Nov. 22 last, and that the defendant said to him:

"Doctor, I have $25,000 here, and any part of this is yours if you will discharge Thaw."

Dr. Russell declined the offer, he had testified, telling Anhut his position and honor would be sacrificed if he accepted.

Both sides rested today. Summing up will come tomorrow and the case probably will reach the jury tomorrow night. Dr. Russell was the prosecution's last witness except one, and the defense called only three persons, Anhut and two attorneys who were his counsel before Gov. Sulzer's committee that investigated the alleged bribe offer.

HYDE GRANTED A NEW TRIAL.

Former New York Chamberlain, Found Guilty of Bribery, Has His Conviction Reversed.

New York, May 16.—The appellate division of the state Supreme court today reversed the conviction in the Supreme court of Charles H. Hyde, former city chamberlain, and ordered a new trial.

Hyde was found guilty of bribery in connection with the deposit of city funds in the defunct Northern bank and the Carnegie Trust company.

Hyde was convicted in November last and was sentenced by Justice Goff to serve two to three years in state's prison. Hyde has been out on bail pending the outcome of his appeal.

RELIEF EXPEDITION REPORTS GERMAN EXPLORERS MET FATE.

All Members of Lieut. Schroeder-Stanz's Party Believed to Be Dead—Started for Arctic a Year Ago.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

CHRISTIANIA, May 16.—Disaster has befallen the German scientific expedition under Lieut. Schroeder-Stanz, all the members of the party being either dead or lost in the arctic wastes, according to a report received here today from the commander of the Norwegian relief party which has been searching for them. The report states that Lieut. Schroeder-Stanz, the commander of the expedition, is missing, that Dr. Dettmars and Dr. Molser were drowned, Eberhard was frozen to death, and Stave died of illness. No trace of the other members of the expedition could be found and it is believed none of them has survived.

Lieut. Schroeder-Stanz's expedition started into the arctic regions about a year ago and expected to remain there three or four years.

FIVE CHICAGOANS HONORED BY BIG SOCIETIES OF YALE.

Beizillus and Book and Snake of the Sheffield Scientific School Choose Freshman Class Members.

New Haven, Conn., May 16.—[Special.]—Five Chicago boys scored in the annual elections from the freshman class of the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale in the two leading societies of that department, Beizillus and Book and Snake. In the Book and Snake list are Alexander Hamilton Revell Jr., Dwight Linn, Francis Kane Kierman, and Thomas Armour Connors. In the Beizillus list is Arthur Andrews Burrows. Revell is already famous in Yale athletics. He won the 100, 220, and 440 yard dashes, scoring fifteen points alone, in the Yale-Princeton meet last Saturday.

PIRIE ESTATE $12,000,000

Family of Chicago Merchant Share in Will Filed in East.

ONE SON GETS BUT $1,000.

Brother, However, Says Allan Pirie Will Have His Portion.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—The will of John T. Pirie Sr., late Chicago merchant, was filed for probate today at Mineola, L. I. It disposes of an estate estimated at $12,000,000.

The property in the main goes to Mr. Pirie's children, one of them, Allan H. Pirie, being given only $1,000, according to the terms of the document. The other six children participate equally.

The elder Pirie, maker of the will, resided on Long Island after his retirement from business. He had a handsome home at Sea Cliff. His estate consists largely of stocks and Long Island and Chicago real estate. The greater portion of the water front at Sea Cliff belonged to him. He died on April 24 in Florida, where he was spending the winter.

Large Property to Widow.

To his widow, Sarah Pirie, the merchant left all the realty holdings, household effects, horses, and boats at Sea Cliff. She also receives $5,000 for her immediate use. The residue of the estate is divided among the testator's children, Marie P. Weir of 166 Prospect place, Brooklyn; Sarah I. Pirie of Sea Cliff, L. I.; Margaret C. Pirie of Sea Cliff, L. I.; Samuel C. and John T. Pirie Jr. of Lake Forest, Ill., and Gordon L. Pirie of Evanston, Ill. The three sons, John T., Gordon L., and Samuel C. Pirie, are the executors.

It is reported that a large percentage of the holdings of the elder Pirie were transferred shortly before he died to a corporation made up of members of his family, designated as the Plymouth Holding company. It is thought likely Allan will not be allowed to suffer by his brothers, who, in the will, are empowered to use their discretion in handling the estate.

PROPERTY GIVEN ALLAN PIRIE.

John T. Pirie, one of the executors of his father's estate, commenting yesterday on the fact that his brother Allan had been bequeathed only $1,000, said Allan already has received property and this probably is allowed for in the final bequest.

"When the estate is settled it will be found Allan will have received his share," said Mr. Pirie. "I shall go east in a few days."

S. C. Pirie and Gordon Pirie have been in active charge of the New York affairs of the estate since the father's retirement, while the Chicago interests have been managed by John T. Pirie.

MILITANTS SPILL BOMBS IN LONDON

Suffragets Continue Campaign to Coerce Government to Grant Franchise.

THREE MACHINES FOUND.

LONDON, May 16.—The militant suffragets continued their campaign of violence today. A workmanlike canister of explosives with a clockwork attachment was found in the Rotherhithe public library in southeast London this morning. It was labeled "Votes for Women."

Another machine was found in the letter box of the Wandsworth district postoffice in southwest London. It consisted of a glass tube containing fluid. A partly burned fuse was attached to one end.

Still another canister of explosives with a partially burned fuse was found today in Holy Trinity church at Hastings, a popular watering place on the south coast where the militants have been most active during the week.

Rail Wreck Narrowly Averted?

There was a startling sequel today to the warning received by the officials of the Midland railway on May 12 in the form of an anonymous letter, which said:

"It is my duty to inform you that a desperate act will be attempted in a few days to wreck a main line express."

Two men were arrested before daybreak on a high viaduct near Whalley, in Lancashire, which carries the Midland tracks connecting Manchester and Liverpool with Scotland.

Crowbars, sledge hammers, and tools, etc., were found in the vicinity. The prisoners were remanded for a week in custody.

A bridge over the Great Western railway near Westbourne Park station, in the west end of London, was the object of a suffraget "bomb" attack today. The canister used was filled with live cartridges inclosed in cotton wool, which was saturated with paraffin oil. The attached fuse had been ignited, but had gone out.

American Militant Under Knife.

Miss Zelie Emerson, the militant suffraget of Jackson, Mich., was operated on today for appendicitis which is said to have developed owing to the privations she underwent while she was carrying out a "hunger strike," in Holloway jail. She was released on April 8, on account of her weakened condition, during the campaign of placing bombs in public institutions to coerce the government into granting the parliamentary franchise to women was carried on in several quarters of London and the provinces today.

Miss Emerson's condition and some time afterward was taken to a private hospital in the country to prepare herself for the operation. She was sentenced to six weeks imprisonment on Feb. 14, for smashing shop windows.

Dr. Anna Shaw, the American suffragist, in addressing a suffrage meeting in Westminster tonight said the conduct of women in England had satisfied people of the United States that women with the ballot would be unsafe, and that consequently the American women were being voted down. The men of America, she declared, are using the agitation of the English women as a club over American women and trying to make them believe that women had shown themselves irresponsible and untrustworthy.

Women now have fifty-seven electoral votes in the United States, Dr. Shaw said, and Theodore Roosevelt had taken up the question because he knew those votes would decide the next presidential election.

HUERTA MARKED FOR DEATH

VILLA WILL LEAD REBELS.

Former Bandit Who Helped Madero Named Commander in Chief.

Eagle Pass, Tex., May 16.—Gov. Carranza of Coahuila state today issued a decree directing that the law of Jan. 25, 1862, popularly known as the "law of Maximillian," would be enforced against Huerta and his associates when they are captured.

This law provides that any person making an attempt on the life of the chief magistrate of the republic or any of his ministers, engaging in a seditious uprising against the legal authorities or inviting the invasion of foreign troops shall suffer the penalty of death. Under this law Maximillian was executed.

Villa Heads Insurgent Forces.

El Paso, Tex., May 16.—Francisco (Pancho) Villa has been named commander of the insurgent forces in Chihuahua state by Gov. Carranza of Coahuila, commander in chief of the insurgents, said advices received today by the El Paso insurgent committee. He at present is operating with 400 men west of Chihuahua City.

Before the Madero revolution Villa was a self-admitted bandit chief, but on joining Madero's insurrectos became supposedly reformed and was made a general.

Chihuahua Neutral Territory?

Washington, D. C., May 16.—State department reports from Juarez indicate that although a portion of the federal force at that point has been ordered to Chihuahua, there is no fear of an attack on the town, as both factions seem willing to share the benefits of an open port and railway traffic.

SCOTT'S ESTATE WORTH $16,155

Will of Explorer, Who Perished on Antarctic Expedition, Filed in London—King Honors Evans.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, May 16.—The estate left by Capt. Robert F. Scott, the British explorer, who perished on his way back from the south pole, amounts to $16,155, according to his will, which was offered for probate today. King George gave an audience today to Commander Evans, who was second in command of the Scott expedition and heard from him a narrative of their travels and the tragedy. The king conferred on Commander Evans the order of Commander of the Bath.

THE BAR ASSOCIATION CORPORATION BILL.

A measure of vital importance which is receiving scant attention is the new corporation law offered to the legislature by the Chicago Bar association.

Some years ago any bill introduced which would benefit a corporation would be marked out by slaughter. Even today there may be an element in our public life that believes that any measure in the interest of business organization is bad. The people as a whole, however, have come to realize that it is just as necessary to stimulate honest business as it is to prevent dishonest business and special privilege.

We are very properly enacting much legislation to obtain better conditions for working men and women. In order to get the best conditions for the workers we must help the employers to stand the added expense in all ways that do not interfere with the individual or general welfare.

Stimulation of business means greater wealth to be distributed in the form of wages; greater taxable values to be created to carry the growing public expense.

The Chicago Bar association corporation law is admirably drawn to bring about these results and should be enacted as a law for the general welfare.

REFER IT TO THE STATE.

It is one of the graceful, pretty habits of the Illinois senate to pass a woman suffrage bill biennially. It is a chivalrous act of the senate, but it never becomes an act of the legislature. The rough and unfeeling house, unenvious of the senate's glory, does not pass the bill, and a little comedy of manners is closed, to be reopened two years later.

It need not be said that the senate is hypercritical, although it would be interesting to have the house pass such a bill and hand it to the senate with the privilege of making it an act of the general assembly subject to the governor's pen. It is to be feared that the graceful habit would be dropped.

As per custom the senate has passed the bill this year. Now let the house be urged also to pass it, subject to referendum. It is within the power of the legislature to grant such an extension of suffrage as is proposed, affecting only offices not provided for in the constitution, without constitutional amendment, but it would not be good policy to order such an important change in the government of the state without submitting the proposition to the people.

Let it go to the people of the state to decide the question. The legislature may pass the bill with a referendum clause, making the act effective upon adoption by the people. The suffragists would prefer to get their measure without condition, but they cannot object reasonably to a reference to popular vote.

While the power of the general assembly to enact laws subject to referendum has not been clearly defined, such dicta as have come from the Supreme court on the question indicate the constitutionality of the process.

THE MISSOURI MESS.

About as undignified and demoralizing a situation as ever develops in politics is that which Missouri seems to have worked up.

In a reforming zeal a drastic anti-trust statute is enacted by the legislature. Thereupon foreign fire insurance companies declare that they cannot carry on business under its terms and announce they will exercise their constitutional right to retire from the field.

At this—great excitement, charges that the companies are trying to bully the state, threats of reprisal, alarums among the insured in fear of protection withdrawn—and finally, apparently under pressure of the latter, an astonishing offer from the executive branch of government not to enforce the law strictly but to allow the companies to operate under an agreement with the attorney general.

If this is self-respecting government, every principle of sound practice hitherto respected will have to be reversed. Of course it is not self-respecting government. It is not common sense. Nothing could be more vicious and profoundly demoralizing to any community than an official agreement by the executive to modify by nonenforcement the deliberate act of the legislative. If the Missouri legislature has put a foolish and injurious law on its books it is not for the attorney general but for the legislature to correct it.

Perhaps fire insurance is too high because of common action among the companies. But if it is, that is no reason for applying a drastic "cure" that is worse than the disease. Unrestricted competition in this field would be worse, in all probability, than high insurance rates, and the way to meet the situation is by just and intelligent regulation.

And it is up to us in every community to ponder earnestly the sententious remark of a fire insurance official that the way to reduce fire rates is to reduce fire risks. We are burning up millions annually because of bad fire regulations, slovenly enforcement, inflammable construction, and wholesale carelessness. Complaint of high insurance rates would have more weight if we corrected these conditions.

BE NOT DISMAYED.

Let Japan rest undismayed. There is nothing minatory in the orders which send three officers and two companies of coast artillery to Honolulu. This is a formidable massing of the military strength of a warlike nation. But let Japan be at ease. President Wilson has issued a statement to show that the determination to concentrate our forces in Hawaii was reached long before California made an issue and that the expeditionary troops have no errand which could disquiet a friendly nation.

David Starr Jordan and Andrew Carnegie will review the three officers and two companies of coast artillery before they embark and will pin white roses on them, placing the seal of peace over the mouth of war. If David and Andrew are not afeerd of the expedition why should Japan be? We see no reason. If there were anything menacing in this mobilization of troops Andrew and David would detect it and would fill the astounded air with the shrieks of their lamentations as stricken citizens seeing the flower of their nation sailing off across the seas to bloody deeds and hearing the vikings snorting for blood and pillage.

No, the giant of militarism in the United States is not waking. The reserves are not being called to the colors. The legions massed out at Fort D. A. Russell have nothing to do but sing hosannas to Senator Warren and take care of the week's wash. In all the scattered senatorial forts the bugle sounds to nothing more ferocious than food and to nothing more depressing than bed.

We are confident but not aggressive. We know how perfect are the military arrangements of the nation, how strong its arm, how wise its statesmen. We are not putting on the greaves. We are not taking up the sword. The movement of so considerable part of our military strength as three officers and two companies of coast artillery is designed, probably, to teach the tango to the Hawaiians.

Let Japan observe how steadfastly congress appropriates for postoffices and legislates against the navy and the army and be convinced that in spite of mobilization our mood is wholly peaceful and our intent pacific. Not a tea house need be dismayed nor a 'rickisha man be fluttered.

The expeditionary force will go no further than Honolulu. The strong arm which is reaching across the Pacific holds out a hand in fellowship, not a fist in anger. Our battle fleet, to give further assurance of friendship to a nation which may be palsied by fear of the three officers and two companies of coast artillery, is to be sent cruising for fresh mackerel. The only strategy Japan need fear is that congress may take advantage of the jingo spirit and establish a half dozen additional army posts out in the cactus beds and so scatter the American army that the Japs could never find it, thus adding to the horrors of war.

WAIT UNTIL IT IS DESERVED.

The senate has passed a measure of doubtful value in the Clark bill, which is described in abstract as providing "that any person arrested for auto speeding may be summoned to appear later in answer to summons instead of being subject to immediate arrest."

Such a law might be accepted willingly in a community in which automobile drivers uniformly showed a nice and scrupulous regard for regulations of traffic. Nearly all the laws in Illinois bearing on the use of automobiles have been drawn with the assistance of the automobile owners and associations of owners, and represent what the owners consider as wise and necessary, but not oppressive.

Violations of these laws, therefore, are the less excusable, and, considering the dangers which are involved, it is scarcely wise for the state to make enforcement less embarrassing to the driver. There is constant protest, and some of it comes from city officials, against unconcerned violation of the ordinances. The careful, considerate driver might be granted immunity from the embarrassment and inconvenience of arrest and be permitted the privilege of appearing in court on summons, but the careful and considerate driver is seldom in trouble.

Until there is a greater regard and respect shown for regulations, it is unwise to abandon the punitive phase of arrest for violation, even to the extent of making it discretionary with the policeman. When the traffic is under better control the law may be acceptable.

PREVENTION OF BILIOUSNESS.

A DISTINGUISHED physician, in discussing cirrhosis of the liver, recently advocated feeding the patient through a tube. The tube was to be passed through the mouth, the gullet, and on through the stomach into the first part of the small intestine called the duodenum.

He said that all of the blood of the stomach and intestines passed from them to and through the liver. The products of digestion, as they were absorbed, were only half ready for use. The liver had to take all these half prepared foods and get them ready for use. If the liver were overworked it would swell; if the overworking kept on it might finally result in cirrhosis.

He proposed to pass the food directly into the intestines, whereupon the stomach, having nothing to do, would not receive much blood. The liver, having the blood supply withdrawn, would receive less blood and, therefore, would not swell.

It may be that, here and there, a man will gain by passing his food through a tube from his mouth to his duodenum, but that does not concern the general run of men. Can those who do not want to eat through a tube do anything to lessen the work of the stomach?

The work of the stomach is chemical and mechanical. We formerly thought the chemical the more important work. We know now that the muscular work is the harder work. The stomach muscle must break up and mix up the food. The food must leave the stomach for the intestines as a soft, pulpy pap.

Fletcher proposed that men chew their food with their teeth until it became a pap. This is a quite effective method of doing in substance what Einhorn proposes to do with his duodenal tube.

The man who thinks it enough to chew his food to the point where it will not choke him, and then swallows it, will overwork his stomach, congest his liver, and become what some call bilious.

Fletcher plans to use the teeth to break the food fine enough to spare the stomach muscle and thus spare the liver and prevent biliousness.

As Mme. Bernhardt said her last farewell to us she bewailed American cooking. Her point was that when food was so well prepared that men delighted in its taste they were less liable to overeat. Mme. Bernhardt was right.

Out of the sense of sight art has developed; out of the sense of hearing music has developed. Nothing corresponding to these has been developed out of the senses of taste and smell.

Lovers of painting and music are fastidious. The lovers of the (at present savage) art of feeding are gormandizers, dyspeptics, obese, gouty, and cirrhotic.

NO SUCH CONDITION.

J. M. writes: "How can a person get rid of uric acid in his system?"

REPLY.

There is no such condition as uric acid in the system.

DANGER OF CONTAGION.

S. M. R. writes: "Will you please advise whether there is any danger of contagion to one living in the same house and using the same bath with a person who, the doctor says, has a slight infection of syphilis contracted in some unaccountable manner, but has no blemishes on his body anywhere? This party uses his own drinking cup. If there is any danger, what would you recommend doing? If there is any danger, is it too late to move? If an infection has been transmitted, how soon should it manifest itself?"

REPLY.

Assuming that the party is using his own drinking cup because he has mouth lesions, the answer is yes.

[a] If the party is careful, nothing. If he is careless, move.
[b] Probably not.

TREATMENT WILL CURE.

D. B. writes: "Can tuberculin injections of three times a week for five months in succession do harm to a healthy person who uses it as a means of prevention of tuberculosis? The doctor told him it makes one immune. Is it true? Is it beneficial or harmful to one afflicted with the disease? Is it possible for a person to be tubercular having no symptoms? He was told by a doctor that tubercular germs were found in his sputum. He has gained seven pounds in the last four months under no special care. Will a year's tuberculin treatment cure a person, as the physician claims, in the incipient stage?"

REPLY.

1. It will do no harm, neither will it do any good.
2. No.
3. Properly used it is beneficial to a person with consumption. Three times a week is not proper.
4. It is possible to have tuberculosis, have no recognizable symptoms, and gain seven pounds in weight. Such is true of the early stages. When bacilli are found in the sputum this early stage has passed and other symptoms will be found.
5. If the treatment is combined with right living, yes.

ONE GLAND AFFECTED.

A. R. N. writes: "If a man is operated upon for inguinal adenitis, caused by Eisser's coccus, as soon as the infection is noticed, does that cure him of the infection? Would he be safe to marry?"

REPLY.

1. It would have no effect on the urethral infection or on any other local infection, except in that one gland.
2. He may safely marry when there is no longer urethral infection.

DYES NOT TO BLAME.

Interested Reader writes: "Would the use of a hair dye or one of the so-called hair restorers be any cause for, or in any way relate to the extremely nervous condition of a person, such as sleeplessness, irritability, etc.?"

REPLY.

I have heard of inflammations of the scalp and severe headaches from the use of these advertised hair dyes, but never of sleeplessness, irritability, and a nervous condition. I do not think the use of the dyes is responsible.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1913. By the Brentwood Company.]

IT would seem as if, after all, Lady Sackville, who will be remembered at Washington, D. C., as Josephine Victoria Sackville West, when her father was English envoy to the United States, will receive the bulk of the property of the late Sir John Murray Scott, amounting to considerably over $5,000,000.

Sir John disinherited his brothers and sisters. They endeavored to upset the will in her favor, on the ground that they had found among Sir John's papers an unsigned draft in the late baronet's handwriting of a codicil revoking the bequest, and limiting her benefit under his will to a mere life interest in a sum of $100,000, which at her death was to go to her daughter.

No evidence could be found that this codicil had ever been signed or legally executed, and it was impossible to discover any trace of a completed copy.

The two brothers and sisters of Sir John, who was unmarried, insisted that the codicil had been duly executed, that it had merely been mislaid or lost, and that they had every reason to know that in the two or three closing years of his life the testator's affection for Lady Sackville had undergone a complete change, the codicil constituting evidence of the decline of his regard for her.

They at once proceeded to offer a reward of $50,000 for this missing codicil, but without avail.

The other day, in an effort to bolster up their case, they brought into court Jesse Short, who for the last thirteen years of Sir John Scott's life had been his confidential valet, in order that he might testify as to what he knew about the existence of this missing codicil.

However, his evidence helped Lady Sackville rather than the Scotts. While he was able to show that Sir John always carried about with him in his dressing case a sealed envelope marked "confidential," and which he believed might contain some testamentary document, he declared that it had been found by the family in Sir John's desk soon after his death, and that they had shown great disappointment, on the ground that it was not the document that they wanted.

He also under cross examination brought to light the fact that Lady Sackville had motored in to London from Sir John's country place, quite a long trip, exactly two days before his death, indicating that, even if there had been a temporary quarrel between her and Sir John in some former time, which had led him to draft the unsigned codicil, their relations were at any rate of the most friendly and affectionate description on the eve of his death.

This is not the first time that Lady Sackville has been engaged in litigation concerning the disposition of property.

When her brother, Henry, and her sisters sought to prove judicially that their father, Lord Sackville, had been duly married to the Franco-Spanish danseuse, Josephine or Pepita Olivares, and that they were therefore legitimate, she, in that cause célèbre, sided against them, and strove with all her might and main to prove that her mother had been her father's belle amie instead of his legal wife.

The reason for her attitude was that she had married her first cousin, Lionel Sackville West, who, owing to the illegitimacy of her brother, Henry, had succeeded both to the Sackville peerage and to the Sackville estates.

Consequently, if her brother and sisters had won their case and proved that their mother had been lawfully married, she herself would have ceased to be a peeress of the realm, and her husband would have been obliged to surrender the celebrated Knole park estate in Kent to her brother.

The history of the large fortune left by the late Sir John Scott is a curious one. It originally belonged to the fourth Marquis of Hertford, who at his death in 1870 bequeathed it to his brother, Sir Richard Wallace.

Sir Richard was never acknowledged by his mother's father, the third marquis, having been born when she was living in Paris, during the Napoleonic wars with England, and the peer was in England, and after the separation had lasted over two years.

Sir Richard's father, in fact, was Count Casimir de Montrord, and, if Sir Richard never claimed the style of Lord Richard Seymour and recognition as Lady Hertford's son born in wedlock, and unrepudiated by her husband, it was because he knew that on the death of his brother, the fourth marquis, the whole story of his mother's frailty would be revealed in court by the other members of the Seymour family in their endeavor to prevent him from succeeding to the marquisate and entailed estates.

Sir Richard married a French woman many years after she had borne him a son, who as a captain of French cuirassiers greatly distinguished himself in the war with Germany in 1870.

Being illegitimate, this son could not inherit the baronetcy bestowed upon Sir Richard by Queen Victoria in recognition of his many philanthropies.

This, too, served to emphasize the tardy nature of Sir Richard's marriage, with the result that Lady Wallace was subjected to the severest kind of ostracism by English society.

It is not for me to say here to what extent Scott contributed to the estrangement between Capt. Wallace and his parents.

When Sir Richard Wallace died it was found that he had bequeathed a mere pittance to his daughter-in-law and his grandchildren, but had left a considerable sum of money to his secretary, John Scott, and the bulk of his fortune to his widow; also that he had refrained from devising to the nation his wonderful art collection, now housed in the National museum and known as the Wallace collection, at Hertford house, Manchester square, London, leaving it instead to his wife, having previously intimated to her his wish that she should either present it or bequeath it in her own name to the nation.

His idea in this was that, although England had refused to accord her any social recognition during his lifetime, the nation should be obliged to honor her memory forever more after her death.

Lady Wallace survived her husband for some years, and in due course bequeathed the art collection to the nation, on the understanding that John Scott should be associated in its management, and then left all the remainder of her fortune, that is to say, of the fortune that originally belonged to the fourth Marquis of Hertford, including most of the Hertford family jewels, to John Scott, completely ignoring her widowed daughter-in-law and her grandchildren.

John Scott entered into the possession of his inheritance, and as a multimillionaire not long afterwards received a baronetcy in his turn for having "induced" Lady Wallace to bequeath the Hertford and Wallace art treasures to the nation.

Now the Hertford fortune comes to Lady Sackville, the heroine of the principal romance in Sir John Scott's life, and she also will henceforth be able to appear in society, adorned with all the world famed jewels worn in turn by the wives of the first, second, and third Marquesses of Hertford, some of them being crown jewels bestowed on the second marchioness, who was the favorite of George IV., and which the crown in vain endeavored to recover from her after that monarch's death.

CHANCE FOR POLICE MESSENGERS.

Chicago, May 12.—[To the Friend of the People.]—A year ago April 17 I took the examination for police messenger and passed tenth on the list. Please inform me if that list has been thrown out and if not how soon before we will be called for service. Can I transfer to any other part of the police department without taking the examination over again? H. H.

The list of police messengers to which reference is made in your note received today is still in existence, and there is no probability that it will be cancelled.

I am informed by the police department that the reason no police messengers are employed at present is on account of the necessity for economy caused by the decision of the Supreme court on the Juul law, which reduced the city's share of taxes. If the income of the city is increased it is probable that appointments will be made from the above list, as an appropriation was made for eight police messengers at $900 each per year.

ALLEYS TO BE PAVED.

Chicago, May 14.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Can you tell me when the paving on the north and south alleys and the east and west alley in the block bounded by Grand boulevard and East Forty-second street, Vincennes avenue and Forty-second place, is to be done?

TAXPAYER.

Contract was awarded May 3 to John A. McGarry & Co. for paving the alleys in block bounded by Grand boulevard, Vincennes avenue, Forty-second street, and Forty-second place, special assessment warrant No. 39,961. The improvement will be completed during the summer.

Chicago, May 14.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Kindly advise me when Kedzie avenue between Milwaukee and Belmont avenues will be paved, and with what kind of pavement.

A READER.

We have a proceeding for paving with asphaltic concrete North Kedzie avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Belmont avenue, docket No. 36,969. We cannot state definitely just when the improvement will be made, but think we may have the assessment confirmed in time to have the street paved in the fall. In the course of a couple of weeks the property owners will receive notice of the filing of the assessment roll in the County court.

DOESN'T SUPPORT FAMILY.

Chicago, May 4.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—What can be done in a case where a father does not support his wife and children, spending most of his time in saloons? The daughter, not being of age, has had to work and support the family. These people own a little home, but the husband, having the property in his name only, threatens to sell without his wife's consent, which I am told he cannot do. He is now heavily in debt. Can any of his debtors, such as saloonkeepers, force the sale of the homestead in order to collect their claims?

IGNORANT.

A purchaser would not accept title to this property without the wife's signature. It is doubtful if creditors could take the property, although we cannot advise you definitely on the facts presented.

Report the matter to the county attorney, fifth floor, county building. He will start a suit to force this man to support his family.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

I. C. SIDE DOOR CARS.

Chicago, May 14.—[To the Friend of the People.]—May 6 I wrote you relative to use of side door cars by the Illinois Central railroad during the rush hours of the early morning between 7:15 and 7:40, leaving Madison Park station. As per the inclosed clipping Mr. W. L. Park advises that the equipment which was noticed in the yard was in service in the morning previous to the arrival of the side door cars.

As there are only seven trains leaving Madison Park in the morning until 7:22 it is almost impossible that this entire equipment was used on these trains. Mr. Park did not say why the end door cars were not put in service between the hours mentioned in my previous communication, as the majority of these trains start north from Sixty-seventh street and it should be an easy matter to send these cars out and be in a position to utilize them in the rush hours between 7:00 and 8:00 o'clock a. m.

Mr. Park advises also if for any cause there is a slight interruption during these hours the cars are naturally crowded. If this is the case these interruptions have been continuous. I did not mention anything about the service in the evening, although Mr. Park advises that this equipment is put in service during the period mentioned (in the evening). This morning I noticed a line of end door cars and a few side door cars lying idle on their tracks from Twelfth to Van Buren street.

GETTING A WIFE FROM ENGLAND.

Mattoon, Ill., May 12.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I wish to get married in August to a lady who is English and living at the present time in England. This lady has friends, but no relations in this country. Would she experience any difficulty with the immigration officers at New York?

JERRY.

The immigration authorities decline to determine whether or not an immigrant is qualified to land until after he has arrived and submitted himself for inspection. The correspondent's fiancée might be promptly admitted upon primary inspection. In order, however, to assist the officials at the port of expected arrival in determining whether or not the alien should be allowed to land it is suggested that the intended husband execute through the government's immigration office at 72 West Adams street a sworn statement for which the government has a prepared form which will be supplied upon application.

The immigration office in Chicago will transmit such sworn statement to the officer in charge at the port of arrival, together with an expression of opinion as to the correctness of the facts sworn to, adding any other data likely to assist the officials in arriving at a prompt decision as to the admissibility of the alien. It might also be advisable for the intended husband to submit to the Chicago immigration office evidence as to his character and proof of income. P. V. PRENTIS, Inspector in Charge.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

MRS. FISKE DENOUNCES AIGRETTES.

New York, May 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Members of the Audubon society are deeply interested in legislation relating to the protection of birds. As Col. Roosevelt has said, "It is a disgrace to America that we should permit the sale of aigrettes." When some aigrette company tried to establish itself in New Jersey President Wilson, who was then governor of that state, killed the bill that would have allowed this indecent traffic, and expressed himself in these words: "I think New Jersey can get along without blood money."

The aigrette is torn from the live mother bird in the nesting season and the little ones are left to starve. Intelligent, kind hearted women wear these aigrettes, birds of paradise, and other hat adornments because they are ignorant as to the manner in which these things are obtained. No self-respecting woman, and above all no mother with anything resembling a heart, will consent to wear aigrettes or certain furs once she has learned of the unspeakable horrors that attend their procuring. Ostrich feathers are humanely obtained and may be worn with a clear conscience.

No woman who has seen the mother seal skinned alive because the writhings make the work of skinning easier than if it were dead; no woman who has seen the timid ermine with its tongue fast to the metal that has been smeared for its capture; no woman who has ever looked at the steel trap ready and set for work; no woman who is half a woman can know of these things and consent to wear furs. It is to be hoped that enlightened women in all our cities will meet, as a number of women in New York recently met, in order to discuss ways and means of putting a stop to these unspeakable things.

As to the aigrette, American women can help this movement by notifying milliners that they will withdraw patronage from any millinery establishment that permits the sale of aigrettes or other plumes barbarously obtained. Women entering a strange millinery establishment can be of the greatest service if before making any purchases they will inquire whether or not aigrettes are sold by the establishment.

There will undoubtedly be strong opposition to the proposed law—opposition on the part of merchant milliners who encourage the aigrette atrocities as a source of revenue. The matter is in the hands of the American women.

LET THE RAILROADS GET TOGETHER.

Chicago, May 13.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—One of the very best things your great journal has ever done (in my opinion) is the service you are rendering to the people of Chicago in your Where "We Will" There's a Way articles, written by your Mr. Henry M. Hyde. I have read every one of his articles and I believe the great majority of your readers appreciate them as fully as I do.

His article in today's issue, calling the people's attention to the railroad situation in Chicago, cannot help but have a salutary effect. Let us have more of such articles, and on our transportation facilities in general.

Mr. Hyde's statements that the railroad story is the biggest problem in Chicago cannot be denied, and also that a large percentage of the railroad interests represented here are controlled in Wall street, is very true. Let the Wall street fellows come out here and see what we need in the greatest railroad center in the world, and ask them to get together with the interests not controlled there and help work out a solution of the conditions as they exist here today.

CHARLES MCHUGH.

LAKE LEVEL NOT LOWERED.

Holland, Mich., May 15.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In regard to the effect upon the stage of water in Lake Michigan which the diversion of water through the drainage channel may exert, I think this year's observation will prove that it does not lower the level of the lake or have the least influence upon it one way or the other. I have taken notice of the stage of water at this point for the last seventeen years, beginning with the low water of 1896, then gradually rising until about four or five years ago, when it was at its highest stage. Then going down to nearly the level of 1896 and in the last three years rising again until this morning with a strong southeast wind, which would tend to blow the surface water to the west shore, it is only about four and one-half inches lower than the highest stage I have ever observed. The level of the lake under ordinary conditions would, of course, be the same at Chicago as it is here. I contend that the drainage channel has not as yet had any effect upon the level of the lake. Would a further diversion make any difference. J. E. GOOLD.

PROPERTY OWNERS SHOULD PAVE THIS ALLEY.

Chicago, May 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—For the benefit of the poor horses that have to travel in the alley behind the Englewood High school I am making this plea. This alley is "L" shape, coming out on to Sixty-first place, thence east and west, and again coming out on Princeton avenue. I am a late resident in the neighborhood, but have been here long enough to know that the majority of teamsters stall on the side that enters Sixty-first place. I have been a close student of human nature also, and have had to go out on several occasions and stop teamsters abusing their horses. On the other hand, I have watched some that were most humane in their treatment of the teams. There is surely some way of fixing this alley, and I am surprised that property owners have not looked after this matter before now. I am only a renter, but my heart is wide open to the needs of all dumb animals.

ARMY LEAGUE REFERRED TO.

Chicago, May 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Charles T. Keating writes in reference to your editorial "Militarism and False Pacificism" a complaint that the address of the Navy league is not given. The editorial, while referring to the Navy league especially, discussed the new Army league, which needs members more than the Navy league at this time. The navy is in a stronger position than the army, though both are shamefully neglected. Mr. Keating would do well to join both, but the Army league should be his first thought. The Army league offices are 1513 H street, Washington, D. C., E. B. Johns, Esq., corresponding secretary.

CHEAPER RIDES TO LOOP EDGE.

Chicago, May 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—May I make a suggestion through your column for the improvement of street car service in Chicago? My suggestion is that more cars be run which stop short of the loop district, thereby making full use of the tracks outside the loop, where they are not overcrowded, and that to make people use these cars instead of overcrowding the ones entering the loop and leaving these others practically empty tickets be issued at a slight reduction—say six rides for 25 cents—available only on cars not entering the loop.

The plan of having some of the cars return without entering the loop has, I know, already been tried, as, for example, North Clark street cars going as far south as Kinzie street and then returning, but from the fact that these cars have recently been taken off I presume this service was not fully utilized. I. C. SIDE DOOR CARS.

Chicago, May 14.—[To the Friend of the People.]—May 6 I wrote you relative to use of side door cars by the Illinois Central railroad during the rush hours of the early morning between 7:15 and 7:40, leaving Madison Park station. As per the inclosed clipping Mr. W. L. Park advises that the equipment which was noticed in the yard was in service in the morning previous to the arrival of the side door cars.

As there are only seven trains leaving Madison Park in the morning until 7:22 it is almost impossible that this entire equipment was used on these trains. Mr. Park did not say why the end door cars were not put in service between the hours mentioned in my previous communication, as the majority of these trains start north from Sixty-seventh street and it should be an easy matter to send these cars out and be in a position to utilize them in the rush hours between 7:00 and 8:00 o'clock a. m.

Mr. Park advises also if for any cause there is a slight interruption during these hours the cars are naturally crowded. If this is the case these interruptions have been continuous. I did not mention anything about the service in the evening, although Mr. Park advises that this equipment is put in service during the period mentioned (in the evening). This morning I noticed a line of end door cars and a few side door cars lying idle on their tracks from Twelfth to Van Buren street.

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST ACT.

Chicago, May 14.—[To the Friend of the People.]—When will the alley be paved between Madison and Monroe streets west of Fortieth avenue? This alley is in a deplorable state and a petition was put in some time ago.

JOSEPH J. GILLIGAN, 4128 Monroe street.

We find no proceedings under way for paving this alley, nor is there any record of a petition received asking for such improvement. If the same is presented we shall be glad to start the necessary proceedings.

GETTING A WIFE FROM ENGLAND.

Mattoon, Ill., May 12.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I wish to get married in August to a lady who is English and living at the present time in England. This lady has friends, but no relations in this country. Would she experience any difficulty with the immigration officers at New York?

JEHU.

The immigration authorities decline to determine whether or not an immigrant is qualified to land until after he has arrived and submitted himself for inspection. The correspondent's fiancée might be promptly admitted upon primary inspection. In order, however, to assist the officials at the port of expected arrival in determining whether or not the alien should be allowed to land it is suggested that the intended husband execute through the government's immigration office at 72 West Adams street a sworn statement for which the government has a prepared form which will be supplied upon application.

The immigration office in Chicago will transmit such sworn statement to the officer in charge at the port of arrival, together with an expression of opinion as to the correctness of the facts sworn to, adding any other data likely to assist the officials in arriving at a prompt decision as to the admissibility of the alien. It might also be advisable for the intended husband to submit to the Chicago immigration office evidence as to his character and proof of income.

LAKE LEVEL NOT LOWERED.

Holland, Mich., May 15.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In regard to the effect upon the stage of water in Lake Michigan which the diversion of water through the drainage channel may exert, I think this year's observation will prove that it does not lower the level of the lake or have the least influence upon it one way or the other. I have taken notice of the stage of water at this point for the last seventeen years, beginning with the low water of 1896, then gradually rising until about four or five years ago, when it was at its highest stage. Then going down to nearly the level of 1896 and in the last three years rising again until this morning with a strong southeast wind, which would tend to blow the surface water to the west shore, it is only about four and one-half inches lower than the highest stage I have ever observed. The level of the lake under ordinary conditions would, of course, be the same at Chicago as it is here. I contend that the drainage channel has not as yet had any effect upon the level of the lake. Would a further diversion make any difference.

J. E. GOOLD.

PROPERTY OWNERS SHOULD PAVE THIS ALLEY.

Chicago, May 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—For the benefit of the poor horses that have to travel in the alley behind the Englewood High school I am making this plea. This alley is "L" shape, coming out on to Sixty-first place, thence east and west, and again coming out on Princeton avenue. I am a late resident in the neighborhood, but have been here long enough to know that the majority of teamsters stall on the side that enters Sixty-first place. I have been a close student of human nature also, and have had to go out on several occasions and stop teamsters abusing their horses. On the other hand, I have watched some that were most humane in their treatment of the teams. ONE WAY TO CUT HIGH LIVING COST

Shippers Forced to Haul Produce from Outskirts of City and the Consumer Pays.

as the development of farm produce shipments enables them profitably to be brought into the city.

A SECOND interurban with direct connections with the city is the Chicago and Milwaukee line, the present terminal of which is at Evanston, where it runs on to the elevated structure of the Chicago and Northwestern elevated.

At present the Milwaukee line carries a little express matter, but no freight. It has a branch which runs through the dairy country of Lake county, and at Milwaukee it connects with other interurban systems covering the country about the Wisconsin metropolis.

It would be an easy matter to run express and package freight cars over this line into the heart of the city on the loop—at least during the night hours.

The Chicago and Joliet interurban line runs parallel with the drainage canal to Joliet, where it connects with the great McKinley traction system, which covers all central Illinois with its rails and has developed a tremendous express and freight business, centering at East St. Louis, where it has large terminal freight-houses and yards.

The Chicago terminal of the Chicago and Joliet is located at Archer and Forty-eighth avenues. The McKinley interests have recently had freight solicitors at work in Chicago, and in the near future will make a strong bid for downstate freight shipments.

The Chicago, Lake Shore and South Bend interurban is a strong line which runs through the populous territory along the southern and eastern shore of Lake Michigan, touching such thriving towns as Gary, Hammond, Michigan City, and South Bend.

This line has made a passenger agreement with the Illinois Central railroad company under which its cars are attached to the rear of Illinois Central trains and pulled in and out of the city down to Van Buren and Randolph streets. So far as Chicago is concerned the road has yet to develop its freight business.

The Aurora, Elgin and Chicago third rail interurban line penetrates the heart of the rich valley of the Fox river, with its present terminus at Yorkville, beyond Aurora. Its passenger trains run down to the loop over the rails of the Metropolitan elevated road, but it has been so far defeated in its efforts to get permission to run express and package freight cars into the heart of the business district.

Its present freight terminal is at Fifty-second avenue, where the elevated structure begins. Every morning the Aurora line brings in to the city more than 600 cars of milk, which is distributed by wagon from Fifty-second avenue.

The territory served by the line is full of rich truck and dairy farms and an enormous amount of produce and other freight could be brought into the city if it were permitted to run its freight cars down to the loop during the quiet hours of the night. Failing to get that permission the road is planning to establish a downtown terminal, with a wagon transfer service between that point and its present station at Fifty-second avenue.

WITHIN the limits of fifteen or twenty miles from the center of Chicago vegetables, small fruit, and other truck are grown to the value of $7,000,000 a year.

Almost all of this great bulk is now hauled into the city by wagon, much of it from a distance of fifteen or twenty miles. Each trip requires on an average twenty-four hours, and the long pulls over the bad roads are very hard on horses. This primitive method of transportation is, of course, very expensive, and adds considerably to the cost of the produce.

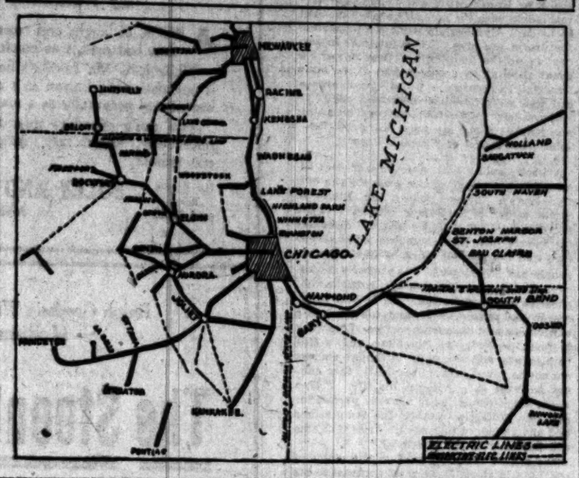

The great traction systems already tap almost all the truck farming country about Chicago. They are already connected with transportation systems running down to the center of the city. For six or eight hours out of each twenty-four they are all, both city and interurban systems, practically idle.

It would seem wise, as a mere matter of efficiency, to permit and encourage, under proper restrictions, the bringing of farm produce and other package freight downtown on the electric lines.

SEES COLLUSION IN BIDS TO FURNISH ARMOR PLATE.

Senator Wants Inquiry Into Letting of Contract for Superdreadnought Pennsylvania.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Senator Ashurst gave notice tonight that he would call up at the earliest possible moment his resolution asking the secretary of the navy for information concerning bids for armor plate for the superdreadnought Pennsylvania, which were let by that department on March 3.

Mr. Ashurst charged that the bids were let at $454 a ton for class A plate, $34 more a ton than ever had been paid before by the government. He said the Carnegie Steel company, the Bethlehem Steel company, and the Midvale Steel company, the three bidders, had held a conference prior to submitting their estimates and that their bids had varied less than $1 per ton.

He declared experts had told him that the United States could make similar armor plate for $254 per ton, and that since the bids let were for 9,000 tons the government had lost $1,600,000 in the transaction.

Big Business Bars Boozers

It is a well known fact that in or connected with nearly every bank, business firm or corporation, office or family, there are high class men, the employer and the employed, who find that some drug or liquor is a PHYSICAL NECESSITY IN DAILY INCREASING QUANTITIES.

There is no excuse now for such men continuing the awful habit until they become DRUNKARDS and human derelicts.

Packard

Three Hundred Hours

An official non-stop run, 300 hours long, was completed Friday morning by a standard Packard "38" motor. It was announced by the Automobile Club of America, New York, as a 200 hour test. At the end of that period, the motor was running so smoothly that it was continued in operation for 100 hours more. This more than doubles the best previous record of 132 hours, made four years ago in England.

The motor maintained a speed of 1200 revolutions per minute. Measured in road performance, it pulled the "38" car with a full load at a speed of 37.46 miles per hour, over roads heavy enough to demand a wide open throttle. In 300 hours it rolled up 11,238 miles.

The accumulated strain of much more than the average season's mileage was compressed within a period of thirteen days. This is but another demonstration of maximum service, an asset built into every Packard car.

Miss Glasgow's Victorian Heroine.

BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

ELLEN GLASGOW'S "VIRGINIA" is a study of the highly specialized womanly woman of the Victorian era—the woman "framed for love," whose vow to obey her husband is made in all seriousness, and whose motto of life is sacrifice. Many such heroines have been written of. Thackeray satirizes her in his "Amelia," Dickens made of her a permanent if dull heroine, and the tender eyes and workworn hands of such women have been celebrated innumerable times in the sentimental fiction of the age immediately behind us; but it has remained for Miss Glasgow to make a tragedy of this tenderness and to point out the inepitude and failure of the dependent and unquestioning type of woman.

In writing this book and in presenting it with such discernment, such pathos and subtlety, Miss Glasgow has performed the most original and interesting feat of her career. She has revealed the fatal blunder of the woman who "confused the pleasant with the true"—the woman who held it a religious duty to evade the facts of life and who laid herself, a willing victim, upon the altar of masculine supremacy.

Virginia Treadwell, exquisite and radiant in her bridal array, elate as a young mother, the self-obliterating wife, grows to maturity by the side of a brilliant and restless man. Her beautiful white hands become ugly in service for him. Her face fades, her clothes are obsolete, her mind circumscribed. She fails to keep pace with him save in those particulars in which she from the first excelled him. He loves her profoundly, yet in time his aggressive mind and eager hungering soul pass her by. He meets success in the world as a playwright and he learns to love the woman who has helped as an actress in that success. Virginia finds herself in middle life, left in solitude. Her daughters have grown away from her. Her son is at Oxford. In a huge, opulent home she sits alone denuded of all things, her tenderness a drug upon the market, her mind as faded as her face, with nothing to console her save the consciousness that she "never failed in love"—which was her idea of duty. The contrast between herself and Miss Oldcastle, the modern, eager, aspiring woman, is excellently drawn. sympathy is not all with Virginia, though it is with her that the reader suffers most. What is most significant in the tale is the pathos and futility of the woman who stands still, entrenched in inherited ideas. The "perfect lady" Virginia is discountenanced and beaten by the "free woman" who was "one with evolution and the resistless principle of change."

It is a strong book with a well chosen theme and its timeliness may not be questioned. That Virginia had in the end the one and only compensation which could come to her, the devotion of a loyal son, comforts the distressed reader not a little. Miss Glasgow may be complimented upon the logic of her story.

"PETER AND THE FAIRIES" is a beautiful little tale by Arthur Henry, a writer of whimsical and delicate fancies. It tells of "the little people"—not the little people of Ireland, but those who have once lived in the hearts of each of us, making our youth enchanting, and who have some way been lost in the maze of things as we blunderingly grew up. Incidentally there is a love story. It is no more than hinted at, yet it is haunting and lovely. This choice little book is issued by the Brothers of the Book, an organization of book lovers. The members live in many cities, and to be admitted to the society must be not only lovers of good books but holders of ideals and protectors of fair and beautiful things—a little group of innocuous idealists with no little adaptability and ambition. Mr. Henry's book is most appropriate to their beliefs. The books of the Brothers of the Book are published in Chicago, having headquarters in the Fine Arts building.

Grace MacGowan Cooke, who has already made a pleasant impression with her novel "The Power and the Glory," comes forward now with an extraordinary story of the painted desert in Arizona, entitling her romance "THE JOY BRINGER" (Doubleday, Page & Co.). The desert has become a favorite background for American stories, but none has yet been written which revealed so much knowledge of the desert Indians and the lives they live as this singular and interesting book.

A sensational opening awakens some prejudice in the mind of the conservative reader, but it soon becomes apparent that the writer has meant to do no more than to open her story "at the top of the pyramid," as playwrights would put it. Having married off the heroine to the wrong man in a wild elopement, the author then proceeds after the approved psychologic fashion to reconcile two warring spirits. It takes many vicissitudes to accomplish this, and they comprise the tale. Oraibi, the home of the cliff dwelling Indians, furnishes a wild and vivid background for a singular romance, and while now and then the life of this ancient tribe may be forced with a trifle too much emphasis upon the attention, yet the history of their lives is so interesting and Mrs. Cooke writes so well—so extraordinarily well—about the west that this is overlooked. On the whole the novel may be commended with assurance to lovers of western tales.

Three plays by Bjornstjerne Bjornson, translated by Edwin Bjorkman, appear from Scribner's press. The plays are "THE GAUNTLET," "BEYOND OUR POWER," and "THE NEW SYSTEM," products which clearly define the quality of mind, the convictions, and the artistic ability of this great master. "The Gauntlet" is a plea for the "single standard" of morality, approaching it, however, from a direction which at the time of the writing of the play must have offered no more than a blazed trail. That attitude of reasonable chivalry which followed the feudal point of view is Bjornson's. "Beyond Our Power," once presented superbly in this city by Mrs. Campbell, is a protest against mysticism and religious exaltation. "The New System," if lacking in dramatic qualities, is nevertheless an intensely interesting document in its presentation of the new religion—to face the truth and slay the shams. An accent of high nobility distinguishes the work of this great intellectual aristocrat.

Helen R. Martin Author of "The MAASTS" LIPPINCOTT CO.

Helen R. Martin first made her reputation with stories of the Mennonites and Pennsylvania Dutch. She has now written a full size novel, "The Parasite," which Lippincott has brought out.

Fiction Flashlights.

"THE KINGDOM," by Harold Elsdale Goad. (Stokes).

Absolute conquest of self, finding that "The kingdom . . . is within you," is the theme of this book, portrayed through the mental struggles of an intelligent young Italian who, when he learns that the girl whom he loves loves another, enters a Franciscan convent, and after long years of struggle, finds himself full of deep peace.

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN——," by Frank L. Packard. (Doran).

A strong, well handled piece of fiction, neither soaked in sentimentality nor mawkish in melodrama. It is the theory of a strong man who takes the burden of a crime upon his shoulders in order to shield another man—a weakling morally, who is not at all worth the sacrifice. Varge pleads guilty to the charges of murder of his best benefactor so that the benefactor's son may suffer no suspicion, and he puts on the stripes of the penitentiary without a backward glance. A woman comes into his life and he tries to save her from herself by escaping from his prison sentence. When they meet again and recognize their love, she insists on sharing his life, and he makes the ultimate sacrifice by voluntarily giving himself up to the prison. Events finally shape around so that the real criminal becomes known when it is too late for any one to suffer by the knowledge, and Varge and the plucky girl have their chance in life at last. The novel portrays a fine conception of sacrifice not often met with among twentieth century ideas.

"THE SILENT BATTLE," by George Gibbs (Appleton's). Against the combined odds of a scornful sweetheart and the hereditary curse of drink, the hero wages his "silent battle" so successfully that he wins the girl, the girl's father, and mastery over himself. A clean, vigorous piece of work.

As may be inferred from the title, Olive Christian McKirdy's "LOVE'S SOLDIER" (Cassell) will be enjoyed only by those who are weakly sentimental. The scenes are laid in London, which is temporarily the home of a young Scotch bank clerk and the bank president's daughter, an American, whose checks the young man cashes every few days. The two fall in love on the first opportunity, and their affair prospers better than might be supposed considering the difference in their social status. But that is not all, for their nuptials are attended by his majesty the king, who creates the young man a peer at the end of the ceremony. The novel was evidently written for the pleasure of those who demand the happiest endings to their stories, no matter how illogical such ending may be.

"THE MASTER OF THE HOUSE," adapted from the play of Edgar James, by Edward Marshall. (Dillingham.) Though the bones of the dramatic skeleton sometimes are a bit too obvious, on the whole this is a very effective novelization of a strong play. The theme is the aging of a man who has spent all his life in strenuous effort to make a fortune, neglecting entirely learning how to enjoy life. As he grows old he is conscious of something amiss and he grumbles and growls, tired of his home, his children, and his wife. A pretty, selfish face captures him, and he divorces his wife in order to "live." Two years of it quite fags him out and he goes home and is taken back. It is a vivid handling of one of the many "problems" with which poor humanity is afflicted.

One of Japan's Religions.

A book showing the result of much research work is "THE CREED OF HALF JAPAN," by Arthur Lloyd, a lecturer in the Imperial university, Tokio. He endeavors to put Sakyamuni, the original Buddha, in the place of a forerunner of Christ to the east, and with painstaking care hunts out beneath a mass of superstition and corruption a few teachings similar to Christianity. The same research, however, shows this teaching to have been added to Buddhism from extraneous Christian sources. (Dutton & Co.)

Finot's Problems of the Sexes.

BY JEANNETTE L GILDER

THE Putnams have ready "THE PROBLEM OF THE SEXES," by Jean Finot, author of "The Science of Happiness." M. Finot's book will delight the suffragists, for he makes a special plea for a deeper participation in the affairs of life by women. His is a scholarly book, but it is intended to interest the average reader. In these days, when the subject of eugenics is one of drawing room discussion, it may be that we will see M. Finot's book lying on the center table, but a few years ago it would have been found only in the library, and even there it would be placed upon a top shelf by the careful father—the mother would not know anything about it.

The twentieth century, according to M. Finot, will be the century of woman. We shall, he says, "witness the most magnificent social transformation that has been realized since the fall of the Roman empire." Let me quote a few of M. Finot's opinions, for they will delight those of your readers who believe in "votes for women":

Sex prejudice is equivalent to race prejudice. Woman is worth as much as man, and she is in fact often of greater value. We should vainly seek in science for arguments against her civil and political equality. These can be found only in the opportuneness of circumstances. In this domain, discussions may continue eternally without giving any result whatever. But if we will but consider the question from a higher standpoint we shall see arise a solution that impresses us. The present condition of the civilized world is everywhere unsatisfactory! Parliamentarianism has replaced the autocratic system, and the third estate has triumphed along the entire line. The fourth is advancing in its turn, and already we anticipate its inevitable victory. Everywhere the future is scrutinized with uncertainty and apprehension. Nothing satisfies us, parliamentarianism even less than the other institutions. If we continue to retain parliamentarianism, it is only due to the impossibility of replacing it, for we are beginning to agree that autocratic governments are worth still less than the rule of the people for the people.

The evil dwells chiefly in the manner in which the power is applied. There is something abnormal in its exercise; an essential element appears to be lacking, and that element is woman.

That equality of the sexes will make for happiness is the point of M. Finot's argument. In writing of the object of this book he says:

Let us destroy this wall and upon its ruins will rise human joys hitherto unknown, and smiles that have long since disappeared. Mankind will be happier in proportion as it becomes more just, and man will be better satisfied with his lot from the moment his wife or his sister, admitted to the banquet of life, shall enjoy by the same right its sweets, bitterness, and joys.

M. Finot's book must not be taken too literally. There is much good in the book, and, while the author has "broad" views, he still believes in the time honored institution of matrimony.

An interesting book is "COMPOSERS IN LOVE AND MARRIAGE," by J. Cuthbert Hadden (Scribners). Composers as well as singers and pianists have been conspicuous through the ages for their love affairs. Perhaps they have no more than other men, but from their position in the world their affairs have been more conspicuous. The composers in this volume are mostly all Germans, with a Frenchman, a Russian, and an Italian thrown in for good measure.

The portraits of the composers that are given in the pages of this book make them appear very good looking men, but the descriptions of them in the text would lead us to think that they were very insignificant, if not distinctly unpleasant, in their personal appearance. We are told of a lady who was a really sincere admirer of Beethoven who was disgusted to find that the composer "who in music seemed so spiritual and refined was in reality an untidy little man, careless about his hair and his clothes, liable to fits of ungovernable temper, rude to the aristocracy, and generally a person one would not care to introduce to his friends. She did not see the great tragedy of Beethoven's deplorable home life; did not recognize in his unconventionality the self-forgetfulness of a man who carries a big message. It must have distressed some enthusiasts to read in a recent book how Wagner once stood on his head, and at another time rushed up a tree in pretended flight from a mad dog. Such intimate relations of great men are no doubt a severe test of hero worship."

According to this book, most composers were unhappily married. Haydn's wife led him a dance. The Schumanns were an exception to the rule, for their married life was a happy one.

Every one knows of the love affairs of Franz Liszt. He had more than his share, although Chopin led him a good second. There is a good deal of mystery about Beethoven's love affairs, which seem to have been more or less imaginary.

Wagner was the famous lover in contemporary music. "With the female heart my art has always prospered," Wagner wrote to his friend Uhlig, "and that probably is because, in spite of all the vileness that prevails, women still find it difficult so completely to harden their souls as our citizen men are liable to do. Women are the music of life; they receive everything more openly and unconditionally unto themselves, and beautify it with their sympathy." At another time to the same friend he wrote: "The feminine element remains the only one that can help me to illusions off and on."

Wagner's first marriage was a failure. His second marriage a success, but all along the line he had affairs more or less platonic.

The trouble with musicians is that they suffer from too much temperament. Another thing is that they are spoiled, particularly by women. We have enough modern instances of this spoiling to fill another book.

Words to Fathers About Boys.

BY MABEL TURNER GOODENOUGH

A BOOK for fathers is "THAT BOY OF YOURS," by James S. Kirtley. If every father accepted its standard, that his relation to his boy is the human counterpart of the relation of the Heavenly Father to men, if every father thus mingled wisdom with love, faithfulness with sympathy, watchfulness with comradeship, the red light district would be a problem of the past. Every phase of boy life is treated by a boy lover; his gangs, his chums, his habits, his motives, his failings, his punishments, and his troubles. A warning is sounded against some prevalent theories in a discussion of his perils. "We have allowed the idea of complete enlightenment of children about themselves to carry us into worse than unwise extremes. Sophistication is safe only after education; education is possible only as one gets control of himself; control of one's self can be complete only as one comes under the control of the one Master of our spirits, the one Lord of our life. . . . Knowledge is good as fast as it can be used and as it enables the boy to gain the indispensable assistance of the only Master. Parents and Sunday school teachers must help him to find his real help. The physical director who doesn't understand that deepest need of the boy should not be allowed to have any part in his training. To put it frankly, plainly, and urgently, the boy's only hope of meeting these perils with any satisfactory success is Jesus Christ, the friend of sinners, the friend of boys; the problem of instructing him is the problem of bringing him, by his own choice, into vital relation with Christ. That requires wisdom, tact, knowledge, constantly. And your boy surely is worth all that." (Doran Co.)

Less sympathetic in its comprehension of the individual lad himself, "THE MINISTER AND THE BOY," by Allen Hoben, faces the question from an exterior point of view. The many pitfalls of the flat dwelling city boy are graphically set forth, and various aids in the line of gymnasium work and organized play under the leadership of good men are proposed to offset these evils. Chief among these is the church boys' club. This is never justified "in offending against the home. Keeping young boys out late at night, interfering with home duties, or with the implicit confidence between a boy and his parents, or dragging him off into some sectarian camp away from his family is not to be tolerated. This is never necessary, and the wise leader can always cooperate harmoniously with the home if he takes thought so to do." Gymnasium work is a prominent feature in the plan. "It is far more important to do the training well than to make a great showing in numbers and at the same time fail in creating a proper group standard and in developing individual boys. In the ordinary improvised church gymnasium one man to every ten boys is a good rule." (The University of Chicago Press.)

A book dealing with questions of deep interest to Christians comes from the pen of a well known Chicago pastor, Dr. James S. Stone, rector of St. James' church. "THE GLORY AFTER THE PASSION" discusses the events from the crucifixion to the ascension and the present work of Christ for his people and his church. The author's discussion of the present work of Christ is both cheering and comforting. He is both intercessor and intercession, and his work is a continuous and unceasing service. This work is final, perfect, and complete, and is free to him who will accept it. Although sinners cannot be saved without his death, they cannot be kept safe without his life. "Man needs his continual help; not only pardon for sin, but protection against the temptations and adversities of this world. Less than this will not save to the uttermost."

The author looks forward to the return of the Lord in glory, in its great contrast to his humble coming to Bethlehem 1,900 years ago. Human language, he says, lacks the power of "setting forth the glory that is his who made the sacrifice that saved the world. (Longmans, Green & Co.)

Another volume is added to the constantly increasing literature on social questions with Scott Nearing's latest book, "SOCIAL RELIGION." Practically nothing new either in thought or fact is developed in this one. Dr. Nearing believes that the amelioration of social conditions is all that is needed for the regeneration of a suffering humanity. How then can he so belabor the sins of those whose paths have fallen into pleasanter places? Why has not their larger opportunity succeeded in making them saints? A Christian ought, indeed never, even had he the opportunity Dr. Nearing seems to think most Christians have, to say of his brother, "He is toiling that I may enjoy; he is producing that I may consume; he is suffering from congestion and insanitation, while I live in a fine house, own an automobile, belong to an exclusive club, and attend a palatial church." The brother with the opportunity certainly needs every whit as much regeneration as the brother without. (Macmillan.)

The Knockers Club

By Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr.

A BOOK of laughs and common sense so cleverly combined that you read it as much for one as the other.

While it is Mr. Fowler's first work of fiction or humor, he is internationally known as a writer of vocational and success works, and personally as a man of distinctive wit.

You can't afford to miss this book. It is sugar-coated philosophy, absorbingly interesting, deeply amusing, and educational.

Upton Sinclair's New Novel

SYLVIA

"The Most Impressive Novel in a Generation"

Sylvia is the greatest thing Sinclair has ever done, surpassing The Jungle both in the bigness of its theme and in its dramatic intensity, and having a more universal appeal. Appearing at the psychological moment, when social questions are at the front, Sylvia is the "inside" story of a great society wedding, and reveals the things the public never hears. In its picture of the old, fast-vanishing Southern life, and in the unfolding of the character of a charming girl, the book is surpassing, while in the final startling scenes it brings home to the individual reader the horror which is hidden in the phrase, "sowing his wild oats." The culmination of the story is so powerful, yet told so chastely and in so alluring a style, as to prove irresistible. Sylvia will inevitably command instant, widespread attention by its appeal to the hearts of men and women.

SAYS $300 CHARITY COST NEARLY $5,000

Dr. Lloyd of Curran Committee Charges Waste in Aiding Needy Poor.

Members of the Curran legislative commission estimated yesterday that one woman, dependent on charity, had received less than $300 during about 18 months, while approximately $5,000, was spent in "investigating" her condition.

The woman, Mrs. Maggie Ustich, has resided at 828 Ewing street, separated by a board fence from the Mary Crane nursery, a branch of the United Charities, and has made innumerable appeals to the nursery for assistance.

At the inquiry, held in the Planter's hotel, it was told how, late last year, two physicians were rushed to the Ewing street home in an effort to resuscitate two children who had been overcome by gas fumes while their mother was attending a lecture at the institution on the "care of babies." Two of the children died. She is still caring for the three surviving youngsters.

Presents Record of Case.

The investigation showed that Mrs. Ustich had been befriended from time to time by sixteen charitable organizations, and that she had occasionally been given amounts ranging from fifty cents to $4, to help out. Her husband is an inmate of Dunning. The record of the case submitted by Dr. F. E. Lloyd at the close of the session, follows:

Charitable organizations rendering service to Mrs. Ustich	16
Clubs rendering service to Mrs. Ustich	2
Individuals rendering service to Mrs. Ustich	82
Physicians rendering service to Mrs. Ustich	11
Nurses, including those in hospital, rendering service to Mrs. Ustich	3
Pulmotor rendering service to Mrs. Ustich	2
Letters written or received in behalf of Mrs. Ustich	27
Visits, 'phone conversations, and interviews in regard to Mrs. Ustich	105
Visits to office by women or some one in her behalf or on her account	41
Committee meetings	2
Cash paid by United Charities	$290.25
Cash spent by all organizations, corporations and individuals (approximately)	$5,000
Net result: Two children dead, three children alive and able to take care of themselves if some one will pay the rent.

Would Correct "Abuses."

"This is one of the apparent abuses we are trying to correct," said Dr. Lloyd. "It does not seem just right that so much money should have been spent in looking up Mrs. Ustich's needs when so little was really given to help out. It is a shame to think that approximately $5,000 should have been spent in investigations and so small an amount donated to so worthy a cause."

Dr. Henry J. Plenz, connected with a "home" at 3165 South Halsted street, was called early in the day, after Charles Virden, a member of the commission, had made an ineffectual attempt to inspect the place.

"You cannot see through just now," exclaimed Dr. Plenz. "You should have given me at least a day's notice. You will have to come again."

Dr. Plenz will be called again.

HORSESHOERS' MAY PARTY AT THE SHERMAN TONIGHT.

Eighth Annual Affair to Be Occasion of Big Gathering and an Arousing of Civic Spirit.

The Master Horseshoers of Chicago will give their eighth annual May party tonight at the Hotel Sherman banquet hall. They expect delegations from out in the state and from New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Missouri. It is the expectation of the officers of teh association that the meeting will be the most important gathering of horseshoers ever held in the city. The grand march will be led by George Duffield, newly elected president of the organization, and Charles Collins, the retiring president, will be presented with a diamond studded horseshoe from his fellow members. A cotillion is to be a feature of the program.

In connection with the announcement of this meeting, Edward O'Grady, secretary of the committee, says the horseshoers, as progressive citizens, take a vital interest in all plans to advance the common interest of the city.

"The object of our association," said Mr. O'Grady, "is to build up our profession and to establish and support a school of anatomy where such members of the craft as may desire can avail themselves of its privileges. We want to satisfy the public that a skilled and scientific horseshoer is something more than a mere mechanic working on metal. We want also to elevate the condition of our industry and develop good citizenship."

Dons Husband's Suit; Fight Follows.

Charles Bowling of 1340 South Clark street, a barber, returned home at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and found his wife, Myrtle, dressed in his "Sunday suit," and attempting to put on a collar. His protest quickly developed into a hair pulling match. The cries were heard a half block away by Policemen Wiles, Smith, and Schultz, who arrested them on charges of disorderly conduct.

TAX FILING TIME UP TODAY

Persons Who Have Not Scheduled by Noon Will Be Penalized

'DODGERS' ON THE DECREASE

Personal Property Lists Pass All Previous Records.

Today marks the time limit for filing tax schedules. The doors of the assessors' offices close at noon.

Persons who have failed to file before 12 o'clock will be fined 50 per cent, according to Secretary Koraleski.

Only 60 Per Cent File.

"Only about 60 per cent of the taxpayers have so far filed schedules," Koraleski said. "We expect the clerks to hand us the books early Monday morning and the work of assessing will begin. We'll finish about the middle of June, and the board of reviewers will start on the third Tuesday.

"It's impossible just yet to estimate the total amount of personal property scheduled, but it beats all previous records, and it seems we have to a great extent cut down the list of tax dodgers."

Big Crowd Expected Today.

It is estimated more than 1,000 men and women filed schedules of their personal property during the day and an enormous crowd is expected today.

Action which will compel business houses to schedule property wherever it is located, and not to file a lump schedule from the downtown office, may be taken by the board, according to David M. Pfaelzer.

INSURGENT MODERN WOODMEN ADOPT REORGANIZATION PLANS

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—Plans for the organization of the insurgent Modern Woodmen of America were perfected at today's convention. One member from each state is to be elected to the convention to be known as the "National Modern Woodmen of America federation," with officers consisting of president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer, to be elected by the committee, and a board of directors consisting of the officers and five other members of the committee appointed by the president.

The convention adopted resolutions demanding the restoration of representative government in the order; demanding the removal of the present head officers and the investigation of all of their financial transactions and an investigation of the sanitarium in Colorado; for the adoption of bylaws limiting the terms of officers to two years; the repeal of the new rates; demanding a referendum vote before any change in rates is made; demanding the repeal of the "Mobile law" in the states in which it is in force; demanding the recovery of all moneys illegally disbursed; prohibition of special dispensations; rigid economy under business methods; demanding the reorganization of the deputy system so that deputies can be prohibited from sitting as delegates in county, city, state, or head camps; the discharge of all useless employés, and demanding the complete revision of all bylaws.

YASSAH! HE FOUND BAKER'S LETTERS

EVIDENCE IN OLD SUIT.

Son Attempts to Gain Profits from Three Western Water Power Companies.

Letters written to the late William T. Baker, when he was president of the Chicago Board of Trade fifteen years ago, and supposed to have been lost, made their appearance in the courtroom of Superior Judge M. L. McKinley yesterday. Since October, 1907, they have been in the possession of Joseph Hudlun, negro janitor of the board.

Hudlun asserted the letters had been discarded by Mr. Baker and he picked them out of the waste basket, perused them at length, and then decided he would keep them for future profit. The only profit yet offered him is $5, and that offer has been withdrawn. Instead of five dollars Hudlun appears more likely to get a lot of trouble.

Evidence in Old Suit.

The letters constitute material evidence in the ten year old suit of Charles H. Baker against the estate of his father, Peter S. Grosscup, former federal judge in Chicago and now chief counsel for Baker, ventured a suspicion that there are three more letters in the janitor's possession, but the negro stood up under a rattling fire of questions and made denial.

The son is attempting to get something from the profits of three $2,500,000 western water power companies which he was managing. The estate asserts he has already received value for his service.

"Ah saw they spoke of a big powah company," he said, "and Ah decided Ah'd des about keep 'em and get in on the ground flooh when they began promotin' stock. Ah waited a long time and nothin' happened, and Ah suhmised the projec' had gone up in smoke. Then, lo, an' behol', las' week Ah saw some one was testifyin', and Ah sez, 'Joe, this is whah you climbs aboahd.'"

The janitor explained how he had sent his nephew to E. N. Zoline, one of Baker's lawyers, and suggested pay for the letters. The documents were brought in, and Mr. Zoline offered $5 for them. Hudlun withdrew indignantly.

Why the Secret Holding?

"Why didn't you tell Mr. Baker you had found them?" the negro was asked.

"He'd throw 'em away."

"Did you see other letters?"

"Yassah. Ah see some he had written and some he'd received, but not thrown away. They lay on his desk. Ah had a key to his office."

"Was that your duty—to read this mail?"

"Yassah."

"Well," said Judge McKinley, "if it was, it's a fine system the board of trade has. I'm glad you're not my janitor."

Hudlun has been chief janitor for years, inheriting the job from his father.

CHICAGOAN THREATENS JUDGE.

Letter Tells Baltimore Magistrate He Must Make Amends for Autoist's Conviction.

Baltimore, Md., May 16.—Police Justice A. Crawford Smith today received a letter postmarked Chicago, threatening his life.

The writer, who signed himself "A Gun Smith," declared he would blow the justice's head off unless he "made amends" for his decision in the case of Tony Polio, recently convicted of reckless driving in running over another man. The letter was written on a Chicago hotel stationery.

Justice Smith said he was not worried, but would turn the communication over to the postal authorities.

Hangs Self on Tree Limb.

The body of a man supposed to be Henry Frerksen, a carpenter, who roomed at 2706 Best avenue, was found hanging from a tree on a lot off Cayuga avenue yesterday. Frerksen's wife and daughter live with his brother, John Frerksen, at 3002 North California avenue.

Among the New Books

Novels by Mr. Benson and Others.

A BOOK that ingratiates itself to the reader immensely in the beginning is "THE WEAKER VESSEL," by E. F. Benson (Dodd, Mead & Co.). The latter part shows good workmanship, but the theme is a bit more trite and less appealing. It is the character work in the book that gives it its real charm, and there is, somehow, less of that in the second part, though that is where one really expects the most. The story opens in a country vicarage, and the interest centers around a slowly unfolding girl of charm and genius but untouched by any real knowledge of a world beyond the parish limits; and her stepmother, a woman of determined personality, who rules every one within range and who, under the guise of being self-sacrificing, makes every one as uncomfortable as possible. Naturally these two clash, and the clash results in Eleanor's ultimate freedom, for she goes away from home as a governess, falls into kind hands, meets a man and marries him. This first part is deliciously done; the author has a most sensitive finger laid on Mrs. Ramsden, and we see her perfectly reproduced; she is alive before us, and we are bound to feel thankful that we can shut her up in a book and not have her about dictating our lives for us.

The other excellent feature is the handling of Eleanor's development, which is exquisitely accomplished.

The eternal triangle figures in the latter part, and in not particularly illuminating fashion. Eleanor has married a good but weak young man, a playwright who works under the stimulus of drink. They are very happy until she finds this out, though he had not meant to deceive her; she realizes his weakness and tries to cure him. The leading woman of his play takes a fancy to Harry, and he finds her difficult to resist, especially since she urges the drink that he craves and that Eleanor tabooes. After each of his lapses Eleanor forgives him and helps him up along the straight road again. She has a tremendously protecting love, and he realizes its value and tries to keep out of temptation, but finds he can't. Things go on this way until he is permanently crippled in an accident, and it is presumed that no more women will go falling in love with him, nor will he be able so easily to escape from Eleanor's watchful love.

The book doesn't really say that, but to the reader it seems the only safe way to have the gentleman fixed in order to insure domestic felicity. It really is very well done, only the latter part somehow seems not so inspired, and one dislikes wasting a splendid girl upon so paltry a man, even in a book, though possibly the situation and its reverse are frequently true enough in life. However, for the single sake of the stepmother characterization the book is decidedly worth reading, and the rest of it is a deal more creditable than quantities of the fiction spread out on the shop counters.

A delightfully irresistible girl has been added to the list of delightful girls of fiction by Olive Higgins Prouty in her "BOBBIE, GENERAL MANAGER." Bobbie's book is by herself and these are some of the initial statements which introduce Bobbie at the age of 15 more adequately than could any comment: "I am not pretty, nor a bit popular with the boys. I can't play the piano, and I never went to dancing school in my life. Most of my clothes are as ugly as mud, for I haven't any mother; and my hair has always been as straight as a stick. . . . In fact, the only real consolation I have is a secret conviction which I keep well concealed in the innermost compartment of my heart.

No one knows of its existence except myself, and I wouldn't be the one to tell of it for anything in the world. It is on account of it, however, that I am writing the experiences of my early life. I often think how valuable it would have been if William Shakspeare had told us about his school days or Julius Cæsar had described his family and what they used to do when he was a boy of 15. Of course I may not be a genius, but facts point that way. I hate mathematics, my imagination is vivid, my life is difficult and full of obstacles, and my handwriting is illegible." Bobbie had mothered the Vars family with its big house and scant income ever since she was 5 years old, and her book is brimmed with fun and pathos, alternating between her highly original plans of managing and her hours of downcastness.

There is the everlasting struggle to make both ends meet, the effort to keep every one amiably associated, her own unhappy boarding school experience, her shielding of one of the twins and the bitterness of his succeeding snubbing, there is the visit of the unknown sister-in-law, and the marriage of her dearest brother to a girl she doesn't like, and finally there is her own love affair—all told with the same delightful directness and sincerity, as she grows older, that marked her youthful accounts. It is a very winning little book to laugh over and to love and to give to one's young girl friends—for Bobbie is a tremendously good kind of a friend for a girl to have, and the friends of one's bookshelf never fail one. (Stokes.)

Readers of fiction already familiar with studies of low life in London in Mr. Robert Hallifax's "The Borderland" and "Low Society," will welcome his latest novel "A SLICE OF LIFE." Here reappears Mr. Caswade, the landlord, whose only mission in life seems to be to extort the monthly rent from tenants who consider his regular visits an imposition and paying a task they would gladly evade; here also are Mr. Donno, philosopher of "Roper's Row"; Mr. Donodhu, the clergyman who forsook his calling for the girl of the slums whom he loved, and Kathy herself—the elusive Kathy, whose uncle kept praying that the mother part in her would come out the strongest "when the time comes," for the mother had been an "angel woman" married to a brute. "Sometimes Kathy was a passionate, clinging, lovable child; more often she carried herself like a stately young princess who only descended to the level of the Row because her prince was on the way to put matters right—while yet she seemed to know that the look in her luminous dark eyes alone was an asset that would carry her through life unaided." And it did—the mother part triumphed—but not until she had caused the two who loved her best intense grief and anxiety. But it is what happened in the meantime that makes this portrayal of a slice of low life more interesting than the average novel. (E. P. Dutton & Co.)

The applicability of the title Theodore Goodridge Roberts has chosen for his new novel, "TWO SHALL BE BORN" (Cassell), is less obvious than the plot, which is nothing more than a paltry illustration of the old idea that the course of true love does not run smoothly. A young man of the nation's metropolis is engaged to a young woman, and there is probably as much love between them as would be possible between any two members of their exalted social sphere, where it is the proper thing to seem not to care and to spend only a fractional part of the year in one another's company, whatever time can be spared from their many other interests.

This condition of things finally becomes irksome, however, and after a quarrel with his beloved the man departs for the wilds of the Canadian north, ostensibly to hunt big game, but in reality to kill time until Mr. Roberts believes a sufficient interval has elapsed for the couple to have decided theirs is the undying variety of affection. The novel is far from convincing, especially in the descriptions of the man's life in the north.

"W. A. G.'S TALE" by Margaret Turnbull, is something from which one expects a great deal and is disappointed. A little boy relates his summer experiences and, incidentally, his aunt's love story, with no particular cleverness or charm. One feels that he was rather a stupid little boy, which no little boy, especially a little boy in a book, should allow himself to be. (Houghton, Mifflin company, Boston.)

My Past
Reminiscences of the Courts of Austria and of Bavaria
By The Countess Marie Larisch
Nee Baroness Von Wallersee
Daughter of Duke Ludwig of Bavaria and Niece of the Late Empress Elizabeth of Austria
8°. With 21 Illustrations from Original Photographs
$3.50 net. By Mail $3.75
The True Story of the Tragic Death of Rudolph, Crown Prince of Austria
The author was the favourite niece of the Empress Elizabeth of Austria and enjoyed her aunt's complete trust. The Empress confided to her many circumstances which this cautious ruler withheld from others close to her person. Her station at the Austrian Court has enabled her to tell many intimate and curiosity-arousing anecdotes concerning the noble families of Europe.
Interesting and full of glamour as her life was, however, her place in history is assured primarily through her inadvertent connection with the amour which Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria carried on with the Baroness Mary Vetsera, and which culminated in the tragic death of the lovers at Meyerling.

PARK POLICEMEN STOP PREP NINES

GAME RESULTS IN TIE.

BY PREP.

Lincoln park policemen stopped the Schurz-North Division game of the Cook County High School league at the end of the eleventh inning yesterday with the score tied at 13 to 13. The rival players started an argument over a decision at third base, and while the debate was at its height the "coppers" ended all argument by shooing the youngsters off the field.

The regularly appointed umpire failed to appear and a student from each school was selected. The disputed decision came after a freak play. With a North Division runner taking a big lead off third, the Schurz hurler threw the ball to the shortstop, who in turn heaved it to the third baseman for a putout. The Schurz umpire ruled in favor of his own school. Then followed the wordy squabble, which was brought to a sudden termination by the blue coats. Score:

M'GUIRE PUZZLE ON SLAB.

Hurls Shutout Ball for Seven Innings, but Lets Down at End.

Covington, Ky., May 16.—[Special.]—With McGuire pitching shutout ball for seven of the eight innings of today's game, Chicago had easy sailing in winning the first game of the present series from Covington at Federal league park, by 11 to 2. Berger had the Chicago batsmen knocking out flies, which on larger grounds would have been easy outs for the fielders, but as most of them were over the right and left field fences for two baggers. About five hundred fans were out. The game was called in the eighth on account of rain. Score:

Northwestern university baseball team defeated Purdue in a ninth inning rally yesterday at Patten field, 6 to 5. The Purdue team had a lead of one run in the ninth inning, when the Purple players went to bat, and two runs were scored by hard hitting and fast base running.

Kolhaise pitched a good game for the winners until the sixth inning, when three runs were scored on him. Lamke, his successor, checked the Purdue team without another run. Score:

ILLINI SHUT OUT BADGERS, 9-0.

Urbana Nine Hands Thrashing to Wisconsin Team—Watts Holds Visitors to Three Hits.

Urbana, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Huff's Illini shut out Wisconsin today, 9 to 0. Illinois batted hard and fielded almost perfectly. Kay's work at second was the feature. Capt. Watts held the Badgers to three hits, while Savage of Wisconsin was driven off the slab in the sixth. Misplays by the Badgers contributed to the rout. Score:

MAROONS TO PLAY ILLINOIS.

University of Chicago Nine Hopes to Lose "Jinx" in Game in Urbana Today.

Coach Pat Page and his Maroon baseball players will leave this morning for Urbana, where they will play Illinois today. The game with the state university is always the most important of the season for the Maroons, because the Midway jinx has followed the team in every contest in Urbana, and it is Illinois which in the past has squelched the Maroon conference title aspirations.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—The Minnesota-Iowa game scheduled for today was postponed on account of rain.

ARMOUR NINE SWAMPS KNOX.

Tech Batsmen Roll Up Score of 19 to 1, While Hamilton Fans Twelve Visitors.

Armour Tech hammered the ball hard and crushed Knox college, 19 to 1, in a burlesque staged at Ogden park yesterday in the "Little Five" race. Knox scored in the first and was held helpless by Hamilton in the remaining frames. Hamilton also was a factor with the bat, getting two singles and a home run. Twelve Knox batsmen went out on strikes. Score:

M'GOORTY TO BATTLE KLAUS

Meets First of Three Men in Pittsburgh Next Week.

FIGHTS LEO HOUCK MAY 26.

Last Scrap with Jimmy Clabby in Butte Ring on Miners' Day.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Eddie McGoorty, the Oshkosh, Wis., middleweight, will start training today at O'Connell's gymnasium in preparation for three important matches which his manager and trainer, Rudy Unholz, has closed. One week from tonight Eddie will step six rounds with Frank Klaus in Pittsburgh. Three days later McGoorty will box ten rounds with Leo Houck in Boston, and on June 13, Miners' day, the Oshkosh battler will exchange wallops with Jimmy Clabby in Butte, Mont.

Jeff O'Connell, the local fighter, who was knocked out by Matty McCue in the first round of a scheduled ten round session at Racine, Wis., Thursday night, returned to the city yesterday accompanied by Manager Joe Sullivan. Jeff had no excuses to offer and gave the little Racine battler all the credit.

The receipts of the show amounted to $2,300. Of this amount O'Connell received 25 per cent, which netted him $560.

Charley White, who is matched to meet Joe Thomas over the ten round route at New Orleans Monday night, boxed eight rounds at Lewis' gymnasium. White exchanged wallops for four rounds with Andy Dans and four with his brother, Al White. The fighter and his manager, Nate Lewis, will leave for the battleground tonight.

Bantamweight Champion Johnny Coulon's bout with Charley Goldman, scheduled for Boston on May 20, has been called off. Promoter John J. McCann so notified the champion yesterday. No reason was given for canceling the mill.

Fred Gilmore, who looks after the interests of Mickey Sheridan, yesterday matched his fighter to meet Bobby Waugh at Peoria, Ill., next Friday night. It will be a ten round affair and the weight will be 133 pounds at 3 o'clock.

GIBBONS BROTHERS WIN BOUTS.

Mike Outclasses Jack McCarron and Tom Bests Donovan in Same Ring at Gotham.

New York, May 16.—The Gibbons brothers, Mike and Tom, St. Paul middleweights, outpointed Jack McCarron of Philadelphia and "Young Mike" Donovan of this city, respectively, in ten round bouts at the Madison Square Athletic club tonight. Mike never gave McCarron a chance, as he kept up a continuous jabbing with his left, crossing his right occasionally, and with clever sidestepping and blocking made McCarron look like a novice. In the other bout Tom Gibbons had the better of Donovan in every round save one.

Ferns to Box McIntyre on June 7.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—Jimmy Hurst, manager of "Wild Cat" Ferns, claimant of the welterweight boxing championship, announced today he had signed Ferns to meet "Patty" McIntyre, Canadian welterweight champion, ten rounds at Winnipeg, Man., on June 7. Ferns also will meet Anton La Grave at Taft, Cal., on July 4, for a twenty round fight.

Report Favors Boxing Bill.

Madison, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—The Hedding boxing bill for a state athletic commission to regulate boxing bouts was reported for passage by the joint finance committee today, the vote being 8 to 6.

Crews Line Up for Regatta.

Princeton, N. J., May 16.—The varsity crews representing Princeton, Annapolis, and Columbia, which will take part in a triangular regatta on Lake Carnegie tomorrow, put on the finishing touches for the big event today. According to the coaches all the men are in excellent condition. None, however, would venture any prediction concerning the probable outcome of the race. Coach Glendon reported there was a chance he would have to do without Culbert, who has been rowing at No. 3 in the Navy boat. The midshipman has developed an ulcerated tooth, and if this is worse tomorrow Glendon will put De Bode in.

DRIVER PILETTE CHICAGO VISITOR

STALNAKER C. M. C. HEAD.

BY REED L. PARKER.

Theadore Pilette, the Belgian racing driver, who will carry the colors of the Chicago Automobile club in the 500 mile race at Indianapolis on Memorial day, arrived in Chicago yesterday to be the guest of his sponsor, E. C. Patterson, until tomorrow, when he will depart for the speedway to begin practice.

Pilette accepted the club's colors at a dinner given to club members and newspaper men at the club last night. He will drive a Mercedes Knight, the first machine equipped with the new sleeve valve motor to be introduced in races in this country.

Pilette arrived in the morning. After luncheon he accompanied Mr. Patterson to Elgin, where they inspected the famous Kane county course, over which Pilette will drive in both races in August. Pilette pronounced the course excellent, and predicted record time in events. Both he and Mr. Patterson negotiated the course in its present unfinished condition in nine minutes. This is close to an average of sixty miles an hour. Over the stretches they made seventy-two miles an hour.

New Cars for Elgin Races.

After the trials Pilette assured Mr. Patterson he would bring to America the new Mercedes six which the German company is making for him for the Elgin National. The Mercedes factory claims the car which is being constructed will be the fastest machine they ever have turned out. With this machine in the Elgin National and the Mercedes Knight in both races, Elgin is assured of three of the fastest entries in the world. Pilette will drive in both races and will secure another driver to take the sleeve valve car in the race in which both cars are entered.

The Belgian announced he would leave America for Europe immediately after the 500 mile race, in order to be in France for the Grand Prix in June. He will return to Elgin after the Grand Prix, bringing the new Mercedes with him. Pilette said his little car was in Indianapolis now and that he would be ready for practice on Monday.

Motor Club Changes Hands.

The N. H. Van Sicklen administration peacefully dissolved, as predicted, yesterday at the Chicago Motor club. The board of directors accepted the resignations of Mr. Van Sicklen as president, Thomas J. Hay as second vice president, William B. Herrick as contest board chairman, L. A. Watts as director, and W. E. Stalnaker as secretary. The board then elected Mr. Stalnaker temporary president, F. E. Edwards second vice president, L. A. Watts secretary, and Harry N. Fowler director.

Mr. Stalnaker, as soon as elected, named the heads of three committees. Charles P. Root was made chairman of the contest board to succeed Mr. Herrick; Harry N. Fowler was appointed chairman of the membership committee, and Reed L. Parker head of the publicity committee to succeed H. Lee.

L. A. Watts yesterday telegraphed President Stalnaker from Mason City, Ia., that Fred Duesenberg, manufacturer of the Mason motors, had agreed to enter three of the little cars in the Algonquin hill climb. They will compete in all events, as their piston displacement allows them unlimited class competition. The cars will be the same that are entered in the 500 mile races at Indianapolis.

Recruit for C. M. C. Team.

George Knab has forsaken the ranks of the I. A. C. team and will enter his Pierce Arrow under the banner of the C. M. C. for the annual interclub run to Indianapolis on May 29.

Eddie Hearne was a visitor yesterday. He has no mount for the 500 mile race, but it is understood he will drive relief for one of the foreign drivers.

WELSH POUNDS JACK REDMOND.

All but Knocks Out Milwaukee Scrapper in Lively Twelve Round Bout in Winnipeg Ring.

Winnipeg, Man., May 16.—Freddie Welsh, the English lightweight champion, all but knocked out Jack Redmond of Milwaukee in a lively twelve round bout tonight. Welsh forced the fighting in every round and won all the way.

ILLINOIS WINS DUAL MEET

State Athletes Down Badgers, 74 to 52, at Champaign.

SCORE IN CLOSING EVENTS.

Bullard Takes Two Mile Race After Thrilling Finish Against Goldie.

Urbana, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—University of Illinois track athletes today made certain the dual meet championship of the conference when they defeated Wisconsin by a score of 74 to 52.

The Badgers ran the Illini neck and neck until the final events. Bullard's win of the two mile was sensational, the Illini coming from behind and passing Goldie, who had led the whole race and apparently had it well in hand. Bolander claimed third after an exciting brush, and the feat of the long distance men turned the tide.

Capt. Case established a new track record of :25 in the low hurdles and won both races over the barriers with ease. Henderson took the half mile in 1:59, but lack of competition prevented him from making a new local mark as he had hoped.

Wisconsin's only first place stars were Gold in the pole vault, Vangent in the shotput. Butler in the hammer throw, and Wahl in the high jump.

HARVARD FAVORITE OVER YALE.

Crimson Athletes Are Picked to Defeat Blues in Annual Track Meet at New Haven.

New Haven, Conn., May 16.—Yale and Harvard will hold their annual track meet on Yale field tomorrow afternoon, with the odds favoring the Crimson. Harvard has beaten Cornell on the track this year and Yale has beaten Princeton, but the Cambridge team is belived to be more evenly balanced. The Blues has a number of individual stars, but is not strong on second and third point men. An analysis of the records of the athletes on both teams shows that Harvard apparently has the advantage in hurdlers, distance jumpers and pole vaulters.

Coe Takes Grinnell Games.

Grinnell, Ia., May 16.—[Special.]—Coe won the third invitation meet at Grinnell, scoring 33 5-6 points. The others follow: Simpson, 24½; Morningside, 22; Grinnell, 21 5-6; Cornell, 15; Des Moines college, 7; Highland Park, 6; and Normal, 5½.

OAK PARK CHOICE AT URBANA TODAY

RECORDS MAY BE BROKEN

Urbana, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Oak Park High school tonight rules favorite for the honors over a field of more than 100 high schools entered in the twenty-first state interscholastic meet on Illinois field tomorrow. With the track in fast shape and good weather predicted a great battle for state honors is expected.

University High is looked upon to give the Oak Parkers a hard fight. For individual honors, Goelitz of Oak Park and MacFarland of McLean are mentioned. Goelitz is regarded as certain of both hurdles and a place in the discus. MacFarland comes with the notable record of throwing the hammer 1[illegible] feet 10 inches, the discus 111 feet, and the shot put 43 feet 7 inches. Bittenberg of Raymond is groomed to win the shot and make a new record.

Expect Foss to Break Mark.

A great mile with Ketchum of West Aurora, last year's victor in 4:38 2-5, pitted against a bunch of new stars is predicted. Foss of University High is billed to make an assault of pole vault record which has stood at 11 feet one-half inch since 1908. The Chicago star has excelled this in other meets this year.

Oak Park, in charge of "Bob" Zuppke, Illini new football mentor, University High, Lane "Tech," present champion; Crane, Lake View, and Hyde Park, all arrived tonight. Downstate rooters find no team on which to pin their hopes. Springfield, which won the big corn belt meet hands down, came with a large team and is expected to show in the point column.

The visitors were guests today at the meet of Wisconsin on diamond and track by the Illini, a regimental review, twilight band concert, glee club concert, and other entertainments were given.

Play Net Finals Today.

Doubles—Weber and Weber, Harvard school, vs. Lindauer and Becker, Englewood; Wood and Lord, University High, vs. Tarrant and Carr, Hyde Park.

RICHARDS SITS ON THE FENCE

Provo, Utah, May 16.—A. W. Richards, the Brigham Young university high jumper, who was the last Olympic champion, said today he proposed leaving for Chicago May 20, but had not decided whether he would enter the University of Chicago or the University of Pennsylvania next fall. Richards will wear the colors of the Illinois Athletic club in track meets in Chicago until time for him to reënter college.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

In a game as full of freaks as the Chic[ago] river is of bacilli, the White Sox rubbed some more of Frank Chance's home com[...] smile by defeating the New York Yank[s] again yesterday. Not content with winn[ing] the game, they ground it in by a score [...] to 0. There is no sentiment in baseball—[...] there on the battlefield.

How the Yankees escaped making a [...] off Joe Benz with all the walks he gave t[hem] is as much of a puzzle as how the White[...] failed to count faster with the kind of [sup]port given McConnell. Benz allowed [...] four hits, one of them a scratch, and [...] given rattling assistance every time [he] pitched himself into the ditch. McCon[nell] was touched for only six hits in as m[any] innings, and half of them were in[field] scratches. He had to furnish most of [his] own support in the earlier rounds.

Twice McConnell choked the White Sox almost unaided. In the first inning he d[id it] by striking out John Collins and then st[art]ing a double play with the bases full. T[hat] was why the White Sox got only one run [out] of two hits and two errors, all of which w[ere] made before a hand was out. In the th[ird] McConnell speared a line drive from M[at]tick's bat for the third out, closing the r[ally] which netted three runs.

Chance Tries New Battery.

After Manager Chance had tried to s[...] something with a militiaman in the seve[nth] he tried out a kid battery, Clark and G[os]sett, the former of whom was touched [for] two runs in as many innings.

Benz pitched a freak game full of sud[den] reversals of form. In the fourth inning [he] passed the first two men up and, just as [the] fans were expecting a blow, he settled [and] struck out the next two. He whiffed Ed [...] Sweeney the first two times up and pas[sed] him the next. His support broke in one [...] in the third when Fournier lost a chance [to] retire the side, but when Hartzell slough[ed a] bit toward left with intent to break up [the] game Lord copped it and closed the do[or]. These are a few samples of the way the g[ame] teemed with surprises, flashing plays [...] ceding the punk stuff.

There was a narrow escape from a fr[...] double play in the third. Berger and L[ord] were on third and second when Fourn[ier] bounded a soft one to McConnell. Ber[ger] started home, but was headed off and tur[ned] back. Sweeney chased him clear to t[he] base, where Lord was standing on the cu[sh]ion. Probably under the impression t[hat] Harry was entitled to that base, Berger k[ept] right on, running over third, and Swee[ney] chased him out.

Lord Balks Double Play.

Lord, knowing he had no license on th[ird] started to give them a chase for his own i[...] the instant he saw Sweeney tag Berger. H[e] reversed and hopped back to third in safety, [...] Sweeney's attempt to tag him. If Swee[ney] had guessed in advance that Berger was not go[ing] to stop on third he could have made the dou[ble] play the other way, by touching Lord first. [In] that case Harry would have been out and [the] catcher would have been between Berger and th[e] effectively blocking his return.

Benz gave the impression he was going to [throw] the game away in the first inning. With one [...] he passed Wolter, then let the runner to thir[d on] a wild chuck to catch him napping. Lord cam[e to] the rescue by grabbing Hartzell's grounder [and] throwing out Wolter. Schaller went into foul te[rri]tory after Cree's long fly.

The Sox were handed a tally in their half. Sc[haller] led with a single. Berger hit one to Hart[zell, who] tried to start a double play, but fumbled [...] both outs. Lord pulled a fast one to C[hase] and Hal pegged to second for another double p[lay], but Derrick dropped the ball. The bases were [full] with no one out. Fournier scratched a little r[...] a few yards toward third and both Sweeney [and] McConnell expected the other to handle it. F[...] had reached first and Schaller scored. Right [...] McConnell got peevish and struck out Collins, [...] picked up Mattick's roller, and inaugurate[d a] double play by way of the pan.

Benz Escapes in Third.

Each team snuffed out a base hit with a do[uble] killing in the second. In the third Benz had a [nar]row escape from trouble. He passed Daniels [...] caught him napping off first, but the runner lan[ded] safely at second because Fournier pegged wid[e of] the mark. Wolter walked and Hartzell sma[shed] one between third and short, but Lord dove [and] came up with it, forcing Wolter at second.

The Sox counted three times after two were [out] in their half. Schaller was thrown out. Be[rger] worked McConnell for his first pass and [...] whaled a double into right, driving Schalle[r to] third. On Fournier's little rap Schaller was [...] on back from the plate and retired in the f[...] manner already intimated. Collins smash[ed a] high liner over Hartzell, who barely missed [...] paling it. Lord and Fournier registered and [Col]lins made second on the peg home. Shauno [...] third and scored because Sweeney's throw [went] to left field. Mattick then slapped a fierce [one] at McConnell, who speared it with one fist, r[etir]ing the side.

In the fifth Berger worked McConnell for [a] second pass, went to second on Lord's out, rea[ched] third when Fournier scratched a single to[ward] third, and scored on a double steal started by [the] Frenchman. McConnell grew peeved and wh[iffed] Collins again.

Bases Filled; No Runs.

Benz was in trouble in the sixth, which he op[ened] by passing Wolter. Hartzell forced Wolte[r at] second. Cree singled and Chase flew out, pu[tting] Hartzell on third. Benz passed Sweeney, fi[lling] the cushions, but Midkiff's best was a long f[ly to] Mattick. Hartzell peeled off a [...] to left, but Schaller raced in and nipped it in [...] running style.

Benz opened on Clark in the home seventh w[ith a] single. Schaller bunted out and Berger drew [a] third straight pass. Lord singled, scoring B[enz], but was out trying to stretch his drive to a do[uble]. Fournier fanned. In the eighth Collins' dou[ble], Weaver's sacrifice, and a wild pitch slipped [...] the final tally. The Yanks did not get as fa[r as] first in their last two tries.

OAK PARK CHOICE AT URBANA TODAY

Urbana, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Oak Park High school tonight rules favorite for first honors over a field of more than 100 high schools entered in the twenty-first state interscholastic meet on Illinois field tomorrow. With the track in fast shape and good weather predicted a great battle for state honors is expected.

University High is looked upon to give the Oak Parkers a hard fight. For individual honors, Goelitz of Oak Park and MacFarland of McLean are mentioned. Goelitz is regarded as certain of both hurdles and a place in the discus. MacFarland comes with the notable record of throwing the hammer 1.. feet 10 inches, the discus 111 feet, and the shot put 43 feet 7 inches. Bittenberg of Raymond is groomed to win the shot and make a new record.

Expect Foss to Break Mark.

A great mile with Ketchum of West Aurora, last year's victor in 4:38 2-5, pitted against a bunch of new stars is predicted. Foss of University High is billed to make an assault of pole vault record which has stood at 11 feet one-half inch since 1908. The Chicago star has excelled this in other meets this year.

Oak Park, in charge of "Bob" Zuppke, Illinois new football mentor, University High, Lane "Tech," present champion; Crane, Lake View and Hyde Park, all arrived tonight. Downstate rooters find no team on which to pin their hopes. Springfield, which won the big corn belt meet hands down, came with a large team and is expected to show in the point column.

The visitors were guests today at the rout of Wisconsin on diamond and track by the Illini. A regimental review, twilight band concert, glee club concert, and other entertainments were given.

Play Net Finals Today.

Doubles—Weber and Weber, Harvard school, vs. Lindauer and Becker, Englewood; Woolf and Loeb, University High, vs. Tarrant and Carr, Hyde Park.

Provo, Utah, May 16.—A. W. Richards, the Brigham Young university high jumper, who won the last Olympic championship, said today he purposed leaving for Chicago May 20, but had not decided whether he would enter the University of Chicago or the University of Pennsylvania next fall. Richards will wear the colors of the Illinois Athletic club in track meets in Chicago until time for him to reënter college.

RIVAL'S SUPPORT WEAK.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

In a game as full of freaks as the Chicago river is of bacilli, the White Sox rubbed off some more of Frank Chance's home coming smile by defeating the New York Yankees again yesterday. Not content with winning the game, they ground it in by a score of 7 to 0. There is no sentiment in baseball—out there on the battlefield.

How the Yankees escaped making a run off Joe Benz with all the walks he gave them is as much of a puzzle as how the White Sox failed to count faster with the kind of support given McConnell. Benz allowed only four hits, one of them a scratch, and was given rattling assistance every time he pitched himself into the ditch. McConnell was touched for only six hits in as many innings, and half of them were infield scratches. He had to furnish most of his own support in the earlier rounds.

Twice McConnell choked the White Sox off almost unaided. In the first inning he did it by striking out John Collins and then starting a double play with the bases full. That was why the White Sox got only one run out of two hits and two errors, all of which were made before a hand was out. In the third McConnell speared a line drive from Mattick's bat for the third out, closing the rally, which netted three runs.

Chance Tries New Battery.

After Manager Chance had tried to start something with a militiaman in the seventh he tried out a kid battery, Clark and Gossett, the former of whom was touched for two runs in as many innings.

Benz pitched a freak game full of sudden reversals of form. In the fourth inning he passed the first two men up and, just as the fans were expecting a blow, he settled and struck out the next two. He whiffed Eddie Sweeney the first two times up and passed him the next. His support broke in one spot in the third when Fournier lost a chance to retire the side, but when Hartzell sloughed a hit toward left with intent to break up the game Lord copped it and closed the door. These are a few samples of the way the game teemed with surprises, flashing plays succeeding the punk stuff.

There was a narrow escape from a freak double play in the third. Berger and Lord were on third and second when Fournier bounded a soft one to McConnell. Berger started home, but was headed off and turned back. Sweeney chased him clear to third base, where Lord was standing on the cushion. Probably under the impression that Harry was entitled to that base, Berger kept right on running over third and Sweeney tagged him out.

Lord Balks Double Play.

Lord, knowing he had no license on third, started to give them a chase for his own life. The instant he saw Sweeney tag Berger, Harry reversed and hopped back to third in safety, eluding Sweeney's attempt to tag him. If Sweeney had guessed in advance that Berger was not going to stop on third he could have made the double play the other way, by touching Lord first. In that case Harry would have been out and the runner would have been between Berger and third, effectively blocking his return.

Benz gave the impression he was going to toss the game away in the first inning. With one out he passed Wolter, then let the runner to third on a wild chuck to catch him napping. Lord came to the rescue by grabbing Hartzell's grounder and throwing out Wolter. Schaller went into foul territory after Cree's long fly.

The Sox were handed a tally in their half. Schaller led with a single. Berger hit one to Hartzell, who tried to start a double play, but fumbled and got both outs. Lord pulled a fast one to Chase and Hal pegged to second for another double play, but Derrick dropped the ball. The bases were full with one out. Fournier scratched a little roller a few yards toward third and both Sweeney and McConnell expected the other to handle it. Fournier reached first and Schaller scored. Right there McConnell got peevish and struck out Collins, then picked up Mattick's roller, and inaugurated a double play by way of the pan.

Benz Escapes in Third.

Each team snuffed out a base hit with a double killing in the second. In the third Benz had a narrow escape from trouble. He passed Daniels and caught him napping off first, but the runner landed safely at second because Fournier pegged wide of the mark. Wolter walked and Hartzell smashed one between third and short, but Lord dove and came up with it forcing Wolter at second.

The Sox counted three times after two were gone in their half. Schaller was thrown out. Berger worked McConnell for his first pass and Lord whaled a double into right, driving Schaller to third. On Fournier's little rap Schaller was driven back from the plate and retired in the freak manner already intimated. Collins smashed a high liner over Hartzell, who barely missed imposing it. Lord and Fournier registered and Collins made second on the peg home. Shauno stole third and scored because Sweeney's throw went to left field. Mattick then slapped a fierce one at McConnell, who speared it with one fist, retiring the side.

In the fifth Berger worked McConnell for his second pass, went to second on Lord's out, reached third when Fournier scratched a single toward third, and scored on a double steal started by the Frenchman. McConnell grew peeved and whiffed Collins again.

Bases Filled; No Runs.

Benz was in trouble in the sixth, which he opened by passing Wolter. Hartzell forced Wolter at second. Cree singled and Chase flew out, putting Hartzell on third. Benz passed Sweeney, filling the cushions, but Midkiff's best was a long fly to Mattick. In the seventh, with one gone, Sterrett was sent to bat for McConnell and responded with a long single. Daniels fouled out, but Wolter came through with a safe hit. Hartzell peeled off a liner to left, but Schaller raced in and nipped it in swell running style.

Benz opened on Clark in the home seventh with a single. Schaller bunted out and Berger drew his third straight pass. Lord singled, scoring Benz, and was out trying to stretch his drive to a double. Fournier fanned. In the eighth Collins' double, Mattick's sacrifice, and a wild pitch slipped over the final tally. The Yanks did not get as far as first in their last two tries.

WHO'S TO LOOK AFTER THE LOOP TODAY?

RECORD CROWD TO HONOR P. L.

"Chance Day" at Sox Park Expected to Attract 40,000.

Seats Left for 30,000 Fans, to Be Sold Only at Ball Grounds.

BY HANDY ANDY.

This is the day for which Chicago fandom has been waiting and planning ever since Frank Leroy Chance, for seven years Peerless Leader of the Cubs, decided 'way back last winter not to be retired from baseball, but to come back in new and strange garb, leading a team representing a rival city and a rival league.

Today Chicago fans plan to show the young man who led them out of the desert, caused by a twenty years' pennant drought on the west side, and made the town and himself world famous in baseball, some of their appreciation for what he has achieved.

If the weather man will be good, the fans will do the rest by turning out the greatest crowd that ever saw a baseball game, and preparation has been made by President Comiskey to accommodate as many of Chance's friends as his plant will hold. With favorable conditions it is expected Chicago will hang up an attendance record which will stand until somebody builds a bigger stadium than now exists.

Present Record Is 38,281.

The largest known paid attendance in the game's history is 38,281 at the Polo grounds in New York on the opening day of the world's series of 1911. This mark would have been broken at Comiskey park in the same year during the city series between White Sox and Cubs if preparations had been made to handle so many people. At the third game of the 1911 city series there were 36,308 paid admissions and Thirty-fifth street was crowded with thousands of fans after the gates were locked.

As nearly as the contractors can estimate, plans have been made to seat over 40,000 persons at today's game. The gates will open at 11:30 a. m. and there will be 30,000 general admission seats placed on sale at that time at the ball park. No tickets will be sold elsewhere, and the advance sale, which exhausted all the reserved and box seats, amounted to only 10,000 out of the possible 40,000.

Manager Chance has saved up his best pitching card, Ray Keating, and will pin his faith on the young man's adding to the joy of the occasion by trimming the White Sox. Manager Callahan had not decided last night what pitcher to use against the Yankees, but it is "Reb" Russell's turn to work, and it would not be surprising if the game turned out to be a battle between the two youngsters of note.

Game Only Side Attraction.

The diamond combat will be the least of the attractions, for the committee of arrangements has provided trimmings which will occupy half of the day and most of the evening, in an effort to convince the Peerless Leader that he is held in high esteem in these parts, although technically an enemy.

The day's program will open with a parade of automobiles from Grant park to Comiskey park. It is scheduled to start south at 1 o'clock, if the component parts of it respond to the committee's demand to be on hand at 12:30. The parade will be led by the south park motorcycle squad and the mounted police squad. It will include two bands of fifty pieces. In the first car will ride the Peerless Leader, surrounded by Chairman Heeman of the arrangements committee and two of Chance's stanchest friends, Tom Cross and Beecher Starbird. The second car will convey President Comiskey and Manager Callahan of the White Sox, President Johnson of the American league, and President Farrell of the Yankees.

Flowers for Chance and Cal.

Following the notables will be a float bearing the floral pieces which are to be presented to Managers Chance and Callahan, and after that a string of 700 automobiles filled with Frank Chance and White Sox rooters in friendly confusion and admixture.

At the ball park it is planned to begin the festivities at 2 o'clock and the hour previous to starting the game will be devoted to vaudeville, athletic, and musical features. At 3 o'clock the rival managers will be presented with various tokens of distinguished consideration, after which it remains to be seen if either team will carry out the spirit of the occasion by presenting the game to the other.

After the game there is to be a dinner to Frank Chance at the stockyards and in the evening a theater engagement at the Garrick.

Waddell Returns to Game.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—"Rube" Waddell, who recently announced he was through with organized baseball, has reconsidered his determination and will play with the Virginia team of the Northern league. He has been released to the latter club by President Cantillon of the Minneapolis club. Waddell left today to join the Virginia team at Duluth.

SOX SYDELIGHTS.

Frank Chance day is here.

The weather man talked peevishly last night.

Here's hoping he feels better after breakfast this morning.

Manager Chance pulled a Stumpf out of his infield with a Derrick yesterday, but it did not make a great improvement.

The White Sox have been booked to play an exhibition game at Watertown, Wis., on May 23, the open date following the series with the east.

Sweeney beaned himself while at bat in the second inning. He tipped a ball which came to him high and close in. The ball caromed from his bat against his left ear, but caused only a swelling, which did not strike in.

Berger showed such adeptness at working pitchers for passes on Thursday that he was kept at second in place of Rath, and continued walking. Joe drew three successive slow journeys to first, and made the round trip twice.

Gossett is the young backstop Comiskey secured for the White Sox from St. Joseph. He found the mask squad here too congested to butt into, but when Comiskey put out a request for waivers as a feeler Chance grabbed Gossett and purchased his release.

After that freak play on Berger and Lord in the third inning Midkiff snatched the ball from Sweeney and hid it under his arm, hoping to catch Lord walking off third base. "Kid" Gleason spotted the trick instantly, and, slipping up behind Midkiff, knocked the ball out of its hiding place.

Benz passed both Cree and Chase in the fourth round before anybody was set down. It looked as if the lifeboat would be needed, but Benz whiffed Sweeney with the call "three and two," and Schalk came to the rescue by snapping the ball to third, doubling up Cree, who was stealing. Chase reached second on the play, but Benz struck out Midkiff.

HOME RUN BY HOOPER BEATS BROWNS IN TIGHT GAME, 3 TO 2

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—Boston won a fast game from St. Louis today, 3 to 2. Both teams played perfect ball in the field, and the pitching of Collins and Baumgardner was about equal. Hooper won the game for Boston in the fifth inning with a long drive into the right field bleachers, scoring Wagner and Carrigan, who had singled previously ahead of him. St. Louis hit Collins hard in the second inning, scoring two runs. Score:

VICTORS MAKE TRIPLE PLAY.

Nearly Entire Team Aids in Three Outs with Bags Filled.

Cleveland, O., May 16.—Batting Gregg hard, Philadelphia overcame Cleveland's early lead and won, 8 to 5. On four hits and a wild throw, Cleveland scored three runs in the first inning, and Brown was taken out in favor of Houck. After Philadelphia had taken the lead, it opened the seventh with a double and two singles, which scored two runs.

Mitchell then replaced Gregg and allowed only one hit. In the seventh Cleveland filled bases with none out, but all the runners were caught off base by a triple play in which most of the Philadelphia team participated. Score:

TIGERS BUMP SENATORS, 5 TO 2.

Detroit Connects Safely in Only Three Rounds, but Bunched Swats Net Victory.

Detroit, Mich., May 16.—Detroit did not waste a base hit today and defeated Washington, 5 to 2. The Tigers hit safely in only three innings, and scored all their runs in these three. Washington took the lead in the first inning and held it until the sixth, when singles by Dubuc, Louden, and Crawford and a wild pitch by Hughes enabled Detroit to score the winning runs. Bush was put out of the game in the first inning by Umpire McGreevy for disputing a decision. Louden, who replaced him, starred at bat and in the field. Score:

MULLIN SOLD TO WASHINGTON.

Detroit Disposes of Veteran Pitcher to Senators for $2,500—Helped Win Three Pennants.

Detroit, Mich., May 16.—Pitcher George Mullin, in point of service the oldest member of the Detroit club, was sold tonight to the Washington Americans for $2,500. Mullin joined the Tigers in 1902 and three times helped to pitch Detroit to the American league championship. His showing this spring has not been satisfactory to Manager Jennings. Mullin said he was glad to have a change of scene and declared he still could pitch as good ball as he ever did.

Hands Himself Own Release.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 16.—To hand your own release to yourself is an unusual occurrence. Yet this is what took place here when Pitcher William E. Essick was released by the Grand Rapids Central league club. He was the only member of the pitching staff not in condition, and as it was necessary to reduce the number of players to conform with the league limit, Essick was the victim. The release was drawn up by President William E. Essick of the Grand Rapids club with all the customary details.

PHILLIES WHALE SLUMPING CUBS

Dooin's Sluggers Pound Toney's Offerings and Run Up Score of 10 to 4.

RIXEY BAFFLES TROJANS.

Leaders Count Three in First Inning and Drive Home Five More in Seventh.

BY SAM WELLER.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—[Special.]—The depressed Cubs sank a bit farther today when the militant Phillies whaled them once more in a manner decisive and complete. The score was 10 to 4, and the home team always was so far in front that there wasn't a thrill after the first round.

Big Fred Toney, the Tennessee plowboy, was so badly licked that he probably wished he were back in the dear home town. No one came to his rescue because pitchers are a thing of the past on the Chicago club. A hurler has to take his medicine these days, no matter how bitter it may be.

Toney was batted and mauled for three runs in the opening round. After that he tightened up and went to the end of the sixth like a regular, allowing only a couple more runs in that time. In the seventh he crumbled again under heavy firing and the top liners banged home five more runs, putting the victory beyond a doubt.

Eppa Rixey Baffles Cubs.

Opposed to Toney was the polished Mr. Eppa Jeptha Rixey, and he buzzed southpaw curves and shoots over the plate in baffling form for seven rounds, so baffling that the Cubs couldn't count at all, and gathered only five scattering base hits.

In the eighth, with a light drizzling rain coming down, Eppa grew a bit careless and took chances, for one can well be careless when leading by ten runs that late in the combat. The Cubs fell upon him for six long base hits and four runs in the final two rounds. They needed only six more tallies to tie the score when the end came.

Once during the contest, just as the eighth round was begun, the rain came down so hard that Umpire Rigler called a halt and ran under the grand stand along with the athletes. It rained only for about three minutes and not enough to spoil the field, so inside of five minutes the pastime was resumed.

Evers Back at Second.

Manager Evers was back on the keystone job after serving his sentence of three days, but his presence did not help things any. A display of pepper was worth nothing when the enemy was leading by such a commanding margin. In the middle of the game the Trojan took himself out and sent Phelan into the fight, and Phelan turned out to be the only star of the Chicago outfit. He went to bat three times before it was all over and he counted a single, a home run, and triple, scored two of the four runs, and made himself noticeable in the defensive end of the game.

The Cub leader switched his lineup before the game began in an effort to present a formidable attack against the tall young southpaw. Clymer and Schulte, both of whom swing from the left side, were permitted to sit on the bench and Leach and Mitchell, right handed hitters, were on duty. When Evers gave way to Phelan it let another right hander into the contest. Then Ward Miller and Vic Saier were the only unfortunate left handed hitters who had to face the southpaw stuff.

From the third inning to the finish it was so dark that one needed a lantern to keep score correctly. Under such conditions Toney and Rixey were ideal hurlers, but, to all indications, the Phillies had cats' eyes and could see the speedy shoots of the Cub strong man in the dark.

Doolan Connects for Homer.

Mike Doolan drove one into the left field bleacher for a home run just at the darkest moment, and when Mike turns a trick like that it indicates the opposing pitcher has not much on the ball. Heine Zim, of whom such things as home runs and triplets are expected, had a swell chance to make his name still greater in the sixth inning. He came up with the bases filled and at that time the Phillies had only four runs. Every one realized the situation—a home run by Heine would tie the score. Heine must have realized it, too. He swung for a homer, but the ball popped up about forty feet in the air and came down in the catcher's mit.

After the Cubs had been set down in the first round, the Phillies took their cudgels and belted in three runs. Paskert started with a blow to left. Knabe beat one out, whereupon Lobert sacrificed. Magee slammed a single to right, scoring Paskert, but Knabe was cut down at the plate by a fine peg from Mitchell. Magee stole second after being caught off first base, because Saier made a wild shot to Bridwell, the ball rolling to center field and letting Magee go on to third. He scored on Cravath's single. Luderus doubled to left, scoring Cravath. Doolan walked, but Killifer forced him at second, ending the spasm.

Phillies Count in Fifth.

The next run dribbled home in the fifth. With one out Knabe singled. He was forced by Lobert, but the latter then stole second. Magee walked and Cravath singled, scoring Lobert. Magee raced to third and Cravath to second when Ward Miller arched a long throw to the plate. Luderus kindly ended it with a fly to Leach.

In the sixth Doolan was first up and drove the ball into the left bleacher for a homer. Killifer tried the same thing, but Miller made a swell catch in front of the low wall. Rixey lifted to Mitchell and Paskert was called out on strikes.

Archer Makes Wild Heave.

Doolan stole second, and when Archer's peg went to the outfield he went on to third, Luderus scoring. Killifer walked and Rixey grounded out to Bridwell, Doolan scoring on the play. Paskert ended with a roll to Zim, then kicked himself out of the game by protesting the decision at first base.

Phelan's homer, followed by a two base error on Zim's long fly, a single, and a fielder's choice, gave the Cubs two runs in the eighth. In the ninth, with one gone, Leach doubled and scored on Phelan's triple. Phelan came home on a wild pitch, whereupon Mr. Rixey steadied and got the side out with no more counting.

CARDS GET THREE RUN LEAD, BUT INFANTS TAKE GAME, 6-5.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 16.—St. Louis secured an early lead of three runs on Brooklyn today, but the locals came up with a rush in the next five innings and batted their way to a 6 to 5 victory. Cutshaw hurt his leg speeding around the bases on his home run and retired. St. Louis tried Cabrera, a Cuban, at short, but he was not a success and Manager Huggins switched his lineup after the fourth inning. Score:

SAM WELLERISMS.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—[Special.]—Murphy's troupe of prima donnas have lost ten of the last twelve games, which is pretty bum singing. Sounds more like burlesque.

Heine Zim did some swell fielding around the third bag today, his nipping of Knabe on a slow roller in the seventh being a sparkler.

Larry Cheney, the big moose of the Cubs, stayed at the hotel today to doctor his lumbago. He will be careful hereafter to avoid marble seats in gilded hotels.

Mrs. Clymer and son joined the Cub party last night. They hastened to join Otis when they heard he had been poisoned by a bad beefsteak in the gilded hotel.

Old Doc Miller, some clouter, went to right field after Paskert was benched and right away some fellow lined one out there. Doc caught it off his shoestrings without moving.

The Cubs may be bum ball players, but they can play the game of shuffleboard with any of them. Lew Richie and Heine Zim beat a couple of local experts over at Old Dick Harley's place last night.

There were less than 3,000 souls at the contest today, though the weather was great in the early afternoon. One can't help wondering if any one will attend the world's series next fall if the two local teams should be the pennant winners. Last fall they met and the players on the winning team got $80 apiece. In the Chicago series each of the winners got over $800.

ANYBODY SEEN ART SHAFER? FAILS TO SHOW FOR CONTEST.

Giants' Shortstop Fails to Appear for Game with Pirates and Club Officials Believe He Has Quit Team.

New York, May 16.—Arthur Shafer, shortstop of the New York National league team, failed to report for today's game with Pittsburgh and the club's officials believed tonight he had quit the team. According to the players Shafer had been morose of late, refusing to converse with them and also was incensed because Manager McGraw last Saturday moved him to the outfield, putting Fletcher in his place at short.

Secretary Foster said inquiry since Shafer absented himself showed the player two weeks shipped his automobile back to his home in California. Yesterday was pay day for the Giants and apparently Shafer waited for this before quitting.

While Manager McGraw has reason to believe Shafer is still in the city the player sent no excuse for his conduct and in no way communicated with his club. By his action Shafer has automatically violated his playing contract. Shafer is not dependent upon baseball for a living.

MATHEWSON GIVES WALK

Hands Out First Base on Balls Since His Initial Game; Losers Rally in Eighth.

New York, May 16.—Hard hitting by the Giants and loose fielding by Pittsburgh gave New York today's game, 7 to 4. O'Toole's offerings were batted freely in the first two innings and he was handicapped by miserable support, the Giants scoring five runs on four hits, two passes, and four errors.

The locals played sensational ball behind Mathewson, who pitched well until the eighth, when the Pirates started the inning with six consecutive hits, although Mensor was retired when he tried to make third on Carey's hit. Mathewson pulled himself together and made Wilson pop out and struck out Byrne. Incidentally Mathewson gave his first base on balls since he pitched his first game of the season in Boston on April 17.

Fletcher's playing was the feature. He made the initial bag four times on singles and once when O'Toole threw wild on his sacrifice bunt. He also stole three bases. Catcher Kelly's throwing was wretched and the Giants ran bases almost at will. Score:

C. MATHEWSON SHOULD WORRY.

McGraw Will Keep Star Without Reduction in Salary When Active Days Are Over.

Boston, Mass., May 16.—When Mathewson's days of usefulness as a pitcher for the New York Giants end, Manager McGraw will offer him a three year contract, without reduction in salary and minus the usual clause for ten days' notice of release. McGraw recently announced this plan to Manager Tinker of Cincinnati, according to a statement by Tinker today. That Mathewson would earn his salary as a coach of the Giants' young pitchers, aside from any consideration of past services, was the reason McGraw assigned.

Sale of Men's Suits

THE men who bought suits in this sale during the past week told us freely that these were the best values they had seen in Chicago in many a day, and we know that's true. Under ordinary conditions we could not sell suits worth up to 25.00 at 13.75—especially at this season of the year—but we bought these suits of a well known Chicago manufacturer, and we paid considerably less than regular price for them, and we pass this advantage along to you.

More Added

YESTERDAY we added several hundred more garments, so that the style range and size range will be complete today. There are a number of popular Norfolks, that are in demand just now for outing wear. We have also included special miscellaneous lots of our regular stock, so that you may be sure of securing wonderful values.

ANY number of grays, fancy blues, browns, tans, together with one lot of plain blue serges, values up to 25.00 and sizes 32 to 42. Come here today for one of these suits at

SAVOY HOTEL

LONDON, ENGLAND

Overlooking the River Thames and Embankment Gardens

THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS HOTEL DE LUXE

A WORD TO THE WISE

THERE are no people on the face of the earth who know what they want and, it may be added, who know how to get it better than the citizens of the United States.

It is not too much to say that they have revolutionized hotel life in every civilized country.

Comparatively speaking, it was but a few years ago when bathrooms in hotels were almost as rare as the dodo.

Elevators were few and far between. Central heating was unknown.

In these and many other ways visitors to Europe from the United States have set up a new standard of comfort and have only given their valued patronage where their wishes are recognized.

One of the best known hotels of the world to appreciate this and to thoroughly keep abreast of the times has been The Savoy of London, England, which has been recompensed by attracting so many welcomed guests from the United States that they formed in 1911 nearly one-half of the total visitors of the hotel for the whole year.

Look down the arrival list of The Savoy and you will see the names of the most cultivated citizens from every State in the Republic, who know what they want and get it at the Savoy, or the hotel could never have become what it is—the center of all the social and business life of the traveling public who leave New York.

Stand in the hall of The Savoy on any morning, and you will meet, from the United States, judges, senators, bankers, counsel, and men distinguished in Art, Literature and Drama, with their wives and families.

And thus it has come to pass that the word "SAVOY" as applied to an hotel is synonymous with the highest comfort and moderate prices. The word "SAVOY," moreover, is so universally recognized as entitled to this interpretation that hotels in many large cities in Europe, Asia and Africa have copied the name which stands in such high repute.

And how has that high repute been gained and conserved? Not by the use of any magic wand, but simply by attending to details and supplying THE BEST!

When the directors of The Savoy realize that an improvement is desirable, money does not stand in the way. Recently five million dollars were spent on improvements and additions. The reward has come in the great accession of business. The hotel is always full of contented and applauding guests.

It is not sufficient for The Savoy to have "no complaints." The hotel lives upon the praise of its guests and their recommendations.

Mrs. Marshall Field Back from Capital.

MRS. MARSHALL FIELD, who has spent the winter in Washington, returned to Chicago unannounced on Sunday. Mrs. Field did not tarry long at the Prairie avenue residence, but went almost immediately to Ottawa to spend a few days at her country place. The Ottawa estate is a part of Mrs. Field's inheritance from her first husband, the late Arthur Caton. The place was the property of Mr. Caton's parents. It is not known when Mrs. Field will return to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Bryant of 234 Maple avenue, Oak Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marian Elizabeth, to David Eastman Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Johnson of 327 Home avenue, Oak Park. The wedding will take place on June 21.

Miss Gertrude Allen of Kenosha is to be maid of honor for Miss Eleanor Babcock when she becomes the bride of Merrill Coit on the evening of Saturday, June 7. Miss Harriet Lyon, Miss Mary Marshall, Miss Beulah Fisk, Miss Stella Tuthill, Miss Margaret Tuthill, and Miss Edith Hall of Evanston will be the bridesmaids. Robert Coit will be the best man. Miss Fisk will give a kitchen shower for Miss Babcock on Saturday evening next at her residence, 1328 North State street.

June 3 is the date chosen for the wedding of Miss Lillian May Ettenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Ettenson, to Edwin N. Eisendrath, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Eisendrath. The ceremony is to take place at 6 o'clock in the Congress hotel in the presence only of the immediate family. An informal reception will follow.

A Clara Barton memorial breakfast, arranged by the members of the city's patriotic societies, will be given at 12 o'clock on Saturday, June 7, at the Congress hotel. The object of the breakfast is to acquaint the public with the proposed memorial for the middle west, for which Rockford college is raising $100,000. The memorial will take the form of a chair of botany and bacteriology at the college. Mrs. J. Ellsworth Gross of 3600 Michigan avenue is chairman of the breakfast and Mrs. J. A. Ostrom of 5037 Washington avenue has charge of the tickets. There will be patriotic music and short addresses. Among the patronesses are Mrs. George M. Pullman, Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Mrs. F. R. McMullin, Mrs. A. C. Dow, Mrs. T. W. Letton, Mrs. Allen Clement, Mrs. Robert Cummings, Mrs. John Lee Mahin, Mrs. Abbie Farwell Ferry, Mrs. George Tilton, Mrs. F. B. Orr, Mrs. I. M. Hamilton, Mrs. George P. Braun, Mrs. Howard Litzinger, Mrs. James Hervey, Mrs. Frank Helmer, Mrs. Emily Gross, Mrs. E. K. Boisot, Mrs. J. H. Strong, Miss Imogene Pierce, Mrs. George Lawrence of Galesburg, and Dr. Julia Gulliver and Mrs. William Talcott of Rockford.

Bluebird cottage in Boulder, Colo., where employed women may go for their vacations, was made the beneficiary of a card party given at the Congress hotel yesterday by the Illinois Alumnæ association of National Park seminary.

The alumnæ association of St. Margaret's school will meet today at 12:30 in the tower room of the Union League club for the annual luncheon and meeting. Among those who will speak are Miss Alice Henry, who is to talk on "The Minimum Wage in Australia," and Miss Agnes Nestor, who will tell of the work of the Woman's Trade Union league. Mrs. Charles Barthols of Glencoe is president of the alumnæ association, Miss Rose R. Sears is recording secretary, Mrs. Leah D. MacLaughlin is secretary, and Miss Mary T. Granger is treasurer. Among the graduates expected to attend the luncheon are Mrs. Frank R. McMullin and Miss Elizabeth Ross.

Mrs. Robert Otis Warner of 1455 Cuyler avenue will give a shower and luncheon at the Mission Tea room today in honor of Miss Vera Apfel, 7463 Sheridan road, whose marriage to Dr. I. Chilcotte takes place early in June.

Miss Libby J. Kostner, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Kostner of 1404 Independence boulevard, today will have as guests the teachers of the Nobel school, of which Miss Marie Dunne is principal. Miss Kostner is to be married this summer to Charles Lang.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Wight Neumann of 3155 Michigan avenue will close their town house next week prior to going to their country residence at Butternut Bay, Thousand Islands, for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Neumann and their daughter, Gladys, expect to sail on June 7 from New York on their annual trip abroad.

Miss Lee H. Sachs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Sachs, will become the bride of Arthur N. Horwich on Sunday, May 25. The ceremony will take place at 5 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, 5249 Calumet avenue. Dr. Joseph Stolz will officiate.

Mrs. Andrew J. Graham of 3340 Washington boulevard will be one of the chaperons of the rose carnival to be held on Wednesday, June 4, under the auspices of the woman's board of the Frances Willard hospital for the benefit of that institution. Mrs. William J. McCarthy of 3521 Jackson boulevard is chairman of the west side, Mrs. Edward Lewis Phelps of the north side, Mrs. Edward Sylvester Smith of the south side, Mrs. Frank Ellsworth Greene of the loop, Mrs. Oliver Gray Cameron of Oak Park, and Miss Winifred Cline of Maywood and Melrose Park. Mrs. Joseph R. Blair of 5903 Winthrop avenue is general chairman and Mrs. Daniel G. O'Connell of 5234 Washington boulevard is general vice chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Polikoff announce the betrothal of their daughter, Rose, to Joseph Shapiro. They will be at home tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Charles Newcomb Perry of 3228 South Park boulevard has returned from a five weeks' trip in the east.

College to Run Employment Bureau.

Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, talked yesterday before the University of Wisconsin Alumni club in Chicago at the Grand Pacific hotel.

"One of the most recent steps of the university has been toward the establishment at Madison of an employment bureau for graduates of the school and for students about to graduate or about to leave the university," he said. "We plan to get in touch with all business firms about the country—and especially those firms in which Wisconsin men hold important positions—and find out from them just what sort of men they are needing and just what sort of positions are likely to be open.

"We plan to have a list of all the university men who are looking for positions, a record of the kind of work they like, and their qualifications for the work. The bureau will see to it that the name of the firms who want men and the names of the men who want positions will find their way to each other."

Sons of the Revolution Will Banquet Tuesday.

THE banquet of the national society of the Sons of the American Revolution will take place on Tuesday evening at the Congress hotel. The following addresses will be given: "The National Society," James McElroy Richardson, president general; "The South and Its Part in the Revolution," Judge Henry Stockbridge; "Financiers of the Revolution," Franklin MacVeagh; "The Declaration of Independence and What It Means for Us," Edmund J. James, president of the University of Illinois; "Sons of Patriot Sires—Their Present Day Duties," William A. Northcott. The invocation will be given by Dr. John Timothy Stone. James Edgar Brown will give introductory remarks. La Verne Noyes will be toastmaster.

Charles R. Kennedy will speak on "Browning and the Bible" on Monday under the auspices of the art and literature department of the Chicago Woman's club in the parlors of the club.

Ninian H. Welch tonight will give an illustrated lecture on Napoleon Bonaparte before the Men's Neighborhood club of the St. Luke's Episcopal church in Lexington hall, 741 South Western avenue.

The Chicago Alumnæ club of the University of Chicago will hold a meeting this afternoon in the rooms of the School of Domestic Arts and Science.

The Elité club will give an informal dance and May party tonight at the Lincoln park casino.

The women of St. Ann's Day nursery will give a luncheon to Mrs. David O'Shea today at the Blackstone hotel. Mrs. O'Shea has just been elected president of the Catholic Woman's league.

The Richardson Players will give "The Liars," by Henry Arthur Jones, at the Whitney Opera house tonight.

A luncheon will be given by the Phi Gamma Zeta sorority today at the Hotel La Salle.

The Very Rev. Francis X. McCabe, president of De Paul university, will speak tomorrow afternoon at the Blackstone theater on "Socialism and Religion." The Paulist choristers will give a concert. It will be under the auspices of the Catholic Tourist club.

The Ladies' Aid of the Lake View Lutheran church will give a supper and entertainment tonight in the parlors of the church.

Birchwood Country club tonight will celebrate the result of the recent annual election by giving an inaugural ball preceded by a reception to the new officers and their wives. Those receiving will be: Mrs. N. H. Cartinhour, Mrs. W. H. Clark, Mrs. J. W. Page, Mrs. Stephen Walker, Mrs. Verne Brado, Mrs. C. R. Pierce, Mrs. Ben Smith, and Mrs. Richard Mather. After the grand march there will be a cotillion and at midnight supper will be served. The decorations will be Killarney roses and asparagus fern with smilax.

Several hundred women attended a reception to the newly chosen officers of the Mothers' Relief association at the Blackstone hotel yesterday. The gathering was the final social event of the season. Mrs. D. Harry Hammer, president, received the members and guests, assisted by the other officers.

Lawyers' Club Gets Quarters.

Permanent quarters for the Lawyers' Club of Chicago have been obtained on the twenty-first floor of the new Conway building, built by the estate of Marshall Field, at Washington and Clark streets. The object, according to a booklet issued by the club, is to furnish a modern, up to date social club, with rest rooms, easy chairs, manicure, barber shop, lockers for the keeping of legal papers and documents, private dining rooms, a fully equipped law library, and other features. A forum for the daily discussion of public questions will be maintained.

Chicagoan Weds in North.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—[Special.]—Miss Henrietta Alice Raudenbush, the daughter of S. W. Raudenbush of St. Paul, Minn., and Charles Edmund Johnson of Chicago were married here at the House of Hope Presbyterian church. The Rev. Elliott H. Moore of Minneapolis, formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian church of St. Paul, officiated.

Hope for Federal Act Ending Liquor Traffic.

HOPE for a constitutional amendment by congress prohibiting the liquor traffic was expressed at last night's dinner of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois at the Hotel La Salle. Dr. P. A. Baker of Columbus, O., national superintendent of the league, declared the time auspicious for such a movement.

Dr. Baker delivered an official statement coming from the headquarters committee outlining the policy of the league as that of "going ahead just as fast and far as public sentiment will justify." He emphasized the intent to pay heed to community wishes.

"The league," he continued, "confines its efforts to law enforcement and sentiment building where that is the only policy public sentiment will sustain. It is for local prohibition where that policy meets the requirements of the most advanced public demand. It always has favored the adoption of state and national prohibition just as quickly as an enlightened public conscience warrants.

"We believe the time is fully ripe for the launching of a campaign for national prohibition—not by any party or parties, but by the people. This does not mean we are to relax our efforts one iota for law enforcement, local prohibition, and prohibition by states, but it is a recognition of the fact that the task begun more than a hundred years ago should speedily be completed."

Mayor W. W. Bennett of Rockford, "the third largest dry city in wet territory in the country," as he identified it, declared the city's second test of prohibition had succeeded thoroughly and would be continued. Former Judge Frank P. Sadler declared the saloon the cause of most crime. E. J. Davis, superintendent of the Chicago department, presided at the dinner.

"Children's Day" at Coliseum.

Thousands of children from the west side Sunday schools are expected to swarm into the Coliseum today as the guests of "The World in Chicago." This is the second of three mornings given over to the entertainment of the children of the city. About 15,000 children with their teachers filled the Coliseum last Saturday. The children of the north side and suburban Sunday schools will be received next Saturday.

Yesterday was "temperance day." The feature was a massmeeting in the afternoon at missionary play hall in the interests of the fight on the liquor traffic. Bishop Samuel Fallows presided.

In addition to the entertainment of the children this morning today will also be observed as "boy scout day." Many fancy drills will be given.

Next week will see the observance of three denominational days. Tuesday will be "Baptist day," Thursday "Methodist day," and Friday "Lutheran day."

Congress of Loyal Legion.

The twelfth quadrennial congress of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States will convene at Memorial hall, Public Library building, next Wednesday at 10 o'clock a. m. The program arranged follows:

Wednesday, May 21—Lunch will be served for members of the congress and visiting companions (members of other commanderies) at the Hotel La Salle at 1 p. m. They will be taken by automobiles around the park system, leaving the hotel at 3 p. m.

Thursday, May 22—Lunch will be served for members of the congress and visiting companions at the Hotel La Salle at 1 p. m. Dinner will be served for guests and members of the Chicago commandery at the Hotel La Salle at 7 p. m.

Friday, May 23—A special train will leave the Northwestern station at 9 a. m. for a trip to the great lakes naval training station, returning at 1:30 p. m.

Urges Sterilization of the Unfit.

"Criminals, the insane, and all the unfit should be sterilized," said Dr. E. B. Lowry at a meeting of the Illinois State Eclectic Medical society convention at the Hotel Sherman.

"As yet the treatment of crime by prophylaxis is in its infancy in a few states. In the country as a whole the number of incompetents and degenerates in relation to the total population is increasing every year.

"In very few states is there any law prohibiting the marriage of the unfit. As a result more and more burdens are thrust on society, for the unfit children of incompetent parents must be cared for by the state.

"Illinois is far behind other states in this matter. Indiana is the most progressive. There they have a law providing for the sterilization of criminals and the hopelessly insane."

How to Earn Money at Home

Are You A June Bride-to-Be?

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

ARE you to be a bride this June?

Well, then, you certainly should visit the Sally Joy Brown exhibition room, 512 Tribune building!

This is a brides-to-be and graduates' week at the exhibit room. There are so many, many wonderful things for brides and graduates to be found in THE TRIBUNE'S Home Workers' Market place.

The filmiest of blouses in lace and wonderful imported embroidery at the most reasonable prices—less than one-half what you would pay in the shops!

Lovely boudoir caps! Guest towels embroidered in most attractive designs! Unusual collar and cuff sets for the tailored suit or the going away gown!

These collars are made of the daintiest of all-over lace, beautifully plaited, and sell at $1. The plaited cuffs of lace to match sell at 50 cents a pair. There are satin flowers of every type and color at the most reasonable prices! The most beautiful robes hand embroidered in wonderful rose designs that would make the ideal wedding gown for the June bride, and at a very reasonable price.

There are women, too, who give instructions in cooking and sewing! During the last month one clever woman has been instructing many brides-to-be in marketing—how to know the best cuts of meat, how to select fish and game, and in the many other secrets that only women of experience in household matters come to know.

There are styles in housekeeping just as there are styles in clothes. And the woman who really cares for the man she marries is only too anxious to have her home up to date in housekeeping matters.

The home woman who is anxious to make money should realize that this is the time of year to cater to the June bride and graduate.

She should ask herself if she cannot make something that would appeal to the bride and graduate purchaser.

Every woman can make at least one thing especially well.

What do you do well?

Then why not earn money for yourself with that particular talent!

If you are not sure of the selling power of your particular novelty won't you take time to sit down and write me just a wee little letter telling me what you can do and what you hope to do with the money you earn?

The Home Workers' Market place has helped so many women to earn money I feel sure if you will only make a little effort it will help you, too.

The purpose of this department is to find profitable employment for women in occupations which they can carry on at home without interfering with their domestic duties. To stimulate suggestions The Tribune will award $1 each for every help published. Address—Sally Joy Brown, care The Tribune, Chicago.

The exhibit room in The Tribune building is open from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., except on Saturday, when it closes at noon.

Neat Bags for Travelers.

Now that summer approaches and friends go abroad, it is well to provide for going away gifts. Many people travel without trunks, and when they do, unless valise or suitcase is in ship-shape, there is a confusion of little articles. From brown holland make bags of appropriate size and shape for everything. Letter each neatly in outline stitch in red cotton, low shoes, high shoes, brush and comb, collars, handkerchiefs, sewing materials, etc. Several bags for wash rags and toilet appliances, tooth brush, and soap, made of rubber sheeting, may be included. The traveler will bless the giver for a saving of time and nerves. LINA KAHLIN, 942 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.

An amateur photographer carried her photograph work into doing printing on cloth with great success. She made pillows, table covers, scarfs, bags, etc., by ornamenting them with blue prints. These are the rules she followed closely:

Use fine cambric for printing. For sensitizing four yards of cambric dissolve in eight ounces of water one and seven-eighths ounces citrate of iron and ammonium. Then dissolve one and one-quarter ounces of potassium ferricyanide in another eight ounces of water; mix the two together when ready to use. Have cambric cut into sizes needed. When fully saturated, [illegible] it out with a stick and pin up in a dark [illegible] to dry. The mixture is poisonous; don't [illegible] your fingers into it more than is necessary. When dry, put cloth into boxes proof to light. In sensitizing the cloth, work in a [illegible] lighted only by a small lamp. Print as [illegible] would from any negative, using the cloth in[illegible]stead of paper. When printed, rinse the p[illegible] three or four times in scalding hot water, [illegible] leave it about five minutes in cold water. [illegible] dry with a hot iron, placing the print be[illegible] two sheets of white paper.

She charged from 25 to 50 cents each. [illegible] colored some, mounted some, and framed [illegible]. She found that the frame often attracted [illegible] much as the picture.

Burnt Wood Blocks for Children.

A girl who is clever at burnt wood [illegible] can make artistic and instructive blocks [illegible] children. Make some sets in alphabet bl[illegible] have the letters simple in form and streng[illegible] the burning with dark brown stain. O[illegible] sets can be picture blocks of animals, bi[illegible] and quaint children at play. The cost of [illegible] blocks would be little and I am sure if [illegible] of these were on exhibition they would [illegible] many orders. BESSIE BLOOM, 337 Fifth avenue, Kankakee, Ill.

Wine for Sick Folk.

Pick the nicest grapes from the stem [illegible] self. Have no water about them. Take [illegible] jars of any size and cover the bottom [illegible] granulated sugar, then grapes from one [illegible] a half to two inches deep. Cover them [illegible] with sugar, and so on until the jar or [illegible] full. Screen the tops and put away in [illegible] cellar or a dark, cool place. I have had [illegible] say this wine was worth $5 a gallon.

MRS. A. D. WEAVER, Loda, Iroquois county, Ill.

Insect Exterminator.

A woman whose husband had been engaged [illegible] the "bug exterminating business," was left [illegible] his death with little except the recipes for [illegible] various remedies which he had used. Th[illegible] she asked a friend, who had a flat buildi[illegible] she might not try her hand at ridding the [illegible] of roaches, which were about to lose his [illegible] tenants. He gave her a chance and she was [illegible] successful that her reputation was soon e[illegible]lished and she now has a good paying bus[illegible]. She charges $5 per flat and guarantees to [illegible] it free from vermin for one year. The w[illegible] not unpleasant and the returns are large in [illegible] portion to the expense.

M. SIEBERTS, 6356 South Park avenue.

Useful Articles for Brides.

A young girl earns a splendid income at h[illegible] by making useful articles for brides. She [illegible] dainty boudoir caps and slippers to match, [illegible] aprons, combing jackets, corset bags, trou[illegible] bands for linens and lingerie, and a numb[illegible] "honeymoon utilities," such as silk hat [illegible] and collapsible sewing outfits. As June is [illegible] popular month for brides, she makes an [illegible]tional sum during this season.

SELMA KRAMER, 5248 Calumet avenue.

Card Table Covers.

I have found a way to make a really [illegible] profit from card table covers, either sold [illegible] or in sets of four or more.

Buy a good quality of bleached sheeting [illegible] yard and a quarter long, and as the sheet[illegible] comes ten yards and one-half wide, by divi[illegible] it one has two squares of material. Hem [illegible] covers and put tapes at the corners and m[illegible] gram or not, according to the price. You [illegible] find your customers will like the cotton sheet[illegible]ing better than India head or linen sheeting [illegible] the profit is greater for you.

U. S. BUREAU OF FINE ARTS, AMERICAN FEDERATION PLAN.

Delegates to Convention Seek to Have It Finally Merged with Education Department Under Cabinet Officer.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Creation of a bureau of fine arts as part of the federal government's activities was urged today at the closing session of the American Federation of Arts convention. A resolution was adopted making this the work of a special committee.

As outlined the purpose is to bring about the establishment of a bureau like the bureau of education with the idea that ultimately these two bureaus shall be consolidated with a member of the president's cabinet at its head. The resolution was introduced by Walter Dilman Page of Boston and he was made a member of the special committee.

A proposal to have the federation go on record favoring a certain sculptor and design for the statue for the proposed Lincoln memorial caused a bitter discussion by a few delegates. The subject was laid on the table.

The election of officers completed the work of the convention. These were reëlected: Robert W. De Forest, president; Miss Leila Mechlin, secretary, and N. H. Carpenter, treasurer.

WOMEN WAR ON AIGRETTES.

Club Members in Kansas Inaugurate Campaign to Obtain Law Preventing Sale.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—A campaign against the sale of aigrettes in Kansas was inaugurated by the club women of Kansas City, Kas., today.

The council of clubs appointed a committee to coöperate with the women's clubs and humane organizations of the state in an effort to obtain a state law prohibiting the sale of them.

Presbyterians Vote for Uniform Div[orce]

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTO[N]

[A]TLANTA, Ga., May 16.—[Speci[al]] [Di]scussion of marriage and divorc[e] [brought] the liveliest debate occurr[ing] in the Presbyterian general as[sembly] [of] the northern church. The repo[rt] [of the] committee, read by the retiring mode[rator] Frank A. Matthews of Seattle, W[ash.] [was] drastic and was accepted without deb[ate]. [Some] discussion arose over the addition of [a] recommending uniform divorce laws.

The Rev. William C. Covert, pasto[r of the] First Presbyterian church of Chicago, [made a] plea for the amendment.

"We do not know whether a uni[form law] would be best or not," Dr. Matthew[s said.] "A uniform law might displace strong[er laws now] existing. It might also come [about] that a state having the weakest div[orce law] might be taken as a model for the oth[ers."]

"The question of state rights is [illegible] I don't know whether the nation has [illegible] come in and take this right of legisla[tion from] the individual states. There is no [illegible] the evil of divorce. Divorce is sim[ply] [illegible] under legal sanction."

"The American Bar association," [said Mr.] Saylor, "is accomplishing what the [illegible] powerless to do—by mutual agreement [illegible] is bringing about uniform la[ws] [among] the states."

Dr. Covert's amendment was car[ried by a] large majority. It recommended "u[niform di]vorce legislation, as far as practicabl[e."] The resolution says:

"We call attention to the sad and [illegible] situation pertaining to marriage an[d divorce.] The evils are steadily increasing. In [illegible] were 80,000 divorces, or at the rate [of one di]vorce to ten marriages.

"We report a desire on the part of [illegible] do something practical and definite. [illegible] mittee has acted with various comm[illegible] church men and lawyers, and is able [illegible] some considerable advance.

"But it is evident that our mini[sters and] churches are not grappling with t[he] evil as they should. They are now [illegible] themselves informed as to the situ[ation] except in a general way. Only a few, [illegible] tively speaking, of the lawyers [illegible] sicians, are aroused. The result is [illegible] movement for reform needs a new st[illegible] thought and effort.

"Therefore, resolved, 1—That our [illegible] and churches be earnestly urged to [illegible] new and widespread campaign of edu[cation in] the churches, regarding the sacredne[ss of mar]riage and the evils of divorce, and [illegible] all classes in the community by mea[ns of] [illegible] the school, and the social [illegible] the need of reform.

"Resolved, 2—That all our minis[ters and] church courts be urged to study th[e] laws in each state on marriage and [divorce] with the aid of earnest Christian la[wyers and] other laymen, with a view to the in[troduction] of new and improved codes pertainin[g to mar]riage and divorce, and to that end [com]petent committees be created to pro[secute the] matter successfully."

Dr. Covert's amendment was ordere[d incorporated] in the resolutions.

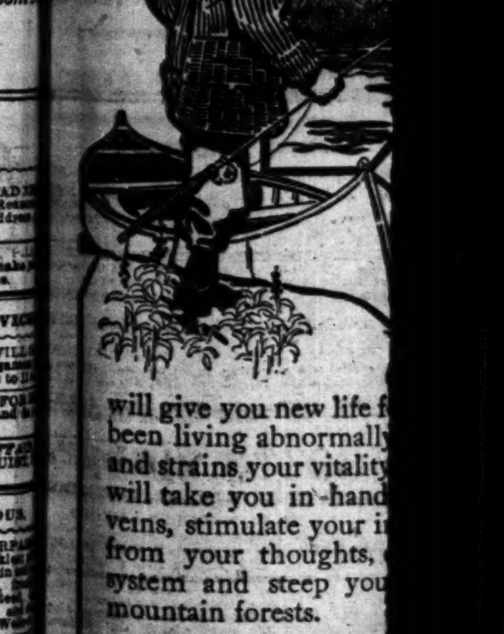

A lively scene was witnessed at t[he] Presbyterian assembly when a motion [was] passed and adopted that a telegram b[e sent to] President Woodrow Wilson signed by [the mod]erators of the three assemblies co[mmending] his stand on moral questions. The [illegible] came after a motion to include the [name of] Secretary of State Bryan in the telegr[am drew] cries of "No! No!" from the assembly. [A mo]tion to this effect was defeated.

The purpose of this department is to find profitable employment for women in occupations which they can carry on at home without interfering with their domestic duties. To stimulate suggestions The Tribune will award $1 each for every help published. Address—Sally Joy Brown, care The Tribune, Chicago. The exhibit room in The Tribune building is open from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. except on Saturday, when it closes at noon.

...together when ready to use. Have cambric cut into sizes needed. When fully saturated, lift out with a stick and pin up in a dark place to dry. The mixture is poisonous; don't get your fingers into it more than is necessary. When dry, put cloth into boxes proof to the light. In sensitizing the cloth, work in a room lighted only by a small lamp. Print as you would from any negative, using the cloth instead of paper. When printed, rinse the picture three or four times in scalding hot water, then leave it about five minutes in cold water. Iron dry with a hot iron, placing the print between two sheets of white paper.

She charged from 25 to 50 cents each. She colored some, mounted some, and framed some. She found that the frame often attracted as much as the picture.

Burnt Wood Blocks for Children.

A girl who is clever at burnt wood work can make artistic and instructive blocks for children. Make some sets in alphabet blocks. Have the letters simple in form and strengthen the burning with dark brown stain. Other sets can be picture blocks of animals, birds, and quaint children at play. The cost of the blocks would be little and I am sure, if some of these were on exhibition they would bring many orders.

Wine for Sick Folk.

Pick the nicest grapes from the stem yourself. Have no water about them. Take glass jars of any size and cover the bottom with granulated sugar, then grapes from one and a half to two inches deep. Cover them even with sugar, and so on until the jar or can is full. Screen the tops and put away in your cellar or a dark, cool place. I have had folks say this wine was worth $5 a gallon.

Insect Exterminator.

A woman whose husband had been engaged in the "bug exterminating business," was left at his death with little except the recipes for the various remedies which he had used. Timidly she asked a friend, who had a flat building, if she might not try her hand at ridding the place of roaches, which were about to lose him his tenants. He gave her a chance and she was so successful that her reputation was soon established and she now has a good paying business. She charges $5 per flat and guarantees to keep it free from vermin for one year. The work is not unpleasant and the returns are large in proportion to the expense.

Useful Articles for Brides.

A young girl earns a splendid income at home by making useful articles for brides. She makes dainty boudoir caps and slippers to match, tea aprons, combing jackets, corset bags, trousseau bands for linens and lingerie, and a number of "honeymoon utilities," such as silk hat bags and collapsible sewing outfits. As June is the popular month for brides, she makes an additional sum during this season.

Card Table Covers.

I have found a way to make a really good profit from card table covers, either sold singly or in sets of four or more.

Buy a good quality of bleached sheeting a yard and a quarter long, and as the sheeting comes ten yards and one-half wide, by dividing it one has two squares of material. Hem the covers and put tapes at the corners and monogram or not, according to the price. You will find your customers will like the cotton sheeting better than India head or linen sheeting and the profit is greater for you.

Presbyterians Vote for Uniform Divorce.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 16.—[Special.]—Discussion of marriage and divorce brought on the liveliest debate occurring today in the Presbyterian general assembly of the northern church. The report of the committee, read by the retiring moderator, Dr. Frank A. Matthews of Seattle, Wash., was drastic and was accepted without debate. The discussion arose over the addition of a clause recommending uniform divorce laws.

The Rev. William C. Covert, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago, made the plea for the amendment.

"We do not know whether a uniform law would be best or not," Dr. Matthews replied. "A uniform law might displace strong laws already existing. It might also come to a pass that a state having the weakest divorce laws might be taken as a model for the other states.

"The question of state rights is involved. I don't know whether the nation has a right to come in and take this right of legislation from the individual states. There is no debate on the evil of divorce. Divorce is simply Mormonism under legal sanction."

E. Saylor, an attorney of Huntington, Ind., also denied the right of the national government to enact a uniform divorce law.

"The American Bar association," said Mr. Saylor, "is accomplishing what the nation is powerless to do—by mutual agreement the association is bringing about uniform laws in all of the states."

The resolution says:

"We call attention to the sad and alarming situation pertaining to marriage and divorce. The evils are steadily increasing. In 1910 there were 89,000 divorces, or at the rate of one divorce to ten marriages.

"We report a desire on the part of many to do something practical and definite. Your committee has acted with various committees of church men and lawyers, and is able to report some considerable advance.

"But it is evident that our ministers and churches are not grappling with this great evil as they should. They are now keeping themselves informed as to the situation, except in a general way. Only a few, comparatively speaking, of the lawyers and physicians are aroused. The result is that the movement for reform needs a new stimulus of thought and effort.

"Therefore, resolved, 1—That our ministers and churches be earnestly urged to organize a new and widespread campaign of education in the churches, regarding the sacredness of marriage and the evils of divorce, and to arouse all classes in the community by means of the press, the school, and the social agencies to the need of reform.

"Resolved, 2—That all our ministers and church courts be urged to study the present laws in each state on marriage and divorce, with the aid of earnest Christian lawyers and other laymen, with a view to the introduction of new and improved codes pertaining to marriage and divorce, and to that end that competent committees be created to prosecute the matter successfully."

A lively scene was witnessed at the United Presbyterian assembly when a motion was proposed and adopted that a telegram be sent to President Woodrow Wilson signed by the moderators of the three assemblies commending his stand on moral questions. The excitement came after a motion to include the name of Secretary of State Bryan in the telegram. After cries of "No! No!" from the assembly, the motion to this effect was defeated.

Favors Union of Two Churches.

Decatur, Ill., May 16.—After long discussion this afternoon it is practically assured the United Brethren General Conference will vote favorably Saturday morning for a submission to the membership of the church the proposition of a union of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ with the Methodist Protestants.

A commission on union, consisting of the bishops of the church, high church officials, several laymen, and ministers, reported this afternoon, favoring union and submitting a syllabus or basis of union, setting forth that the name of the United Churches should be United Protestant church, also giving the declaration of faith, constitution, vested interests, educational institutions, and benevolent boards.

The committee on church union will recommend that the proposition to adopt the basis of union be submitted to the membership of the church at an election to be held not later than November, 1913.

Church Adopts "Health Marriages."

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 16.—[Special.]—A move that will have far reaching effect on divorce and marriage was taken last night by the diocesan convention of the Pittsburgh Protestant Episcopal church. A report, presented by the social service commission, recommending that rectors refuse to perform marriage ceremonies unless both candidates have certificates of physical and mental health from a reputable physician was unanimously adopted.

The Rev. Joseph Speers of St. Stephen's church, Wilkinsburg, said it had been urged by opponents of the measure that it would reduce the number of marriages, but that statistics from Chicago showed that a similar regulation there was followed by an increase of marriages from 10 to 15 per cent.

The report also recommended that the identity of each party to the marriage contract be vouched for and that no divorced person be married if his or her former mate be living.

Pick Summer Convocation Orator.

Dr. Jonkheer John Loudon, minister of the Netherlands to the United States, will be the orator for the summer convocation on June 10 at the University of Chicago. Dr. Loudon was graduated at the University of Leyden and 1891 entered the diplomatic service of the Netherlands. In 1905 he was envoy to Japan, and since 1908 he has served in the same capacity to the United States and to the republic of Mexico. The convocation preacher will be Dr. Charles Richmond Henderson, head of the department of practical sociology at the university.

Lutherans Ask Legal Holiday.

New York, May 16.—Three hundred Lutherans from New England, New York state, and New Jersey, who are in convention here, have voted to urge all state legislatures to make the 400th anniversary of the birth of Luther a legal holiday. The date falls on Oct. 31, 1917. A committee has been named to enter at once in preparing for celebrating the day in Lutheran churches regardless of what observance may be made otherwise.

Ball to Aid Storm Victims.

A reception and ball for sufferers of the storm which destroyed houses in Cragin has been arranged by the commission appointed by Mayor Harrison for their relief. The ball will be held at Wicker Park hall, West North avenue and North Robey street, on June 7. Announcement of the ball was made by Ald. Irwin R. Hazen and Ald. George Bradshaw and Charles McParland.

Gold Wreath for Sarah Bernhardt.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Just before the curtain rose on "Une Nuit de Noel," which Mme. Sarah Bernhardt presented this afternoon at the Palace theater, Daniel Frohman, president of the Actors' Fund of America, announced from the stage that immediately after the one act play the theatrical profession of this country would honor the French actress and itself by presenting her with a laurel wreath of gold. He invited the audience, which crowded the large theater, to remain for the presentation.

The audience stayed and the invited guests grouped themselves on the stage. The orchestra played the "Marseillaise" as the curtain was raised and the audience stood without prompting. Then Mr. Frohman said the wreath was not yet finished and only a model would be used today. The finished wreath will be sent to Paris by messenger.

Mrs. Whiffen, who handed the wreath to Mme. Bernhardt, spoke in French. She said: "Mme. Bernhardt, the greatest and most wonderful artiste, I have the honor and great pleasure of presenting to you on the part of the artists of America this crown."

Hansen Wins First Tilt.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, May 16.—Salter Hansen, the Chicago theatrical man, has won the first round of his fight against Dr. Henri de Rothschild, the author of "Crœsus," and Arthur Bourchier, who was to appear in the play on May 22 at the Garrick theater.

Mr. Hansen today got possession of the Garrick and immediately removed the notice announcing the production of "Crœsus" and the name of Mr. Bourchier and covered the front of the house with bills in big type, saying: "Salter Hansen will soon announce the production of a new play."

Mr. Hansen, who asserts that he bought the American and English rights of the play direct from the author and charges Mr. Bourchier with trying to prevent him from producing it in the Garrick, said he could not say at this time whether or not "Crœsus" would be produced, but if it were produced it would be under his management.

Norwegians Give Fete Today.

Chicago Norwegians today will celebrate the ninety-ninth anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of Norway with a "folkefest" at Brand's park and a parade of school children, with music and patriotic exercises in Humboldt park. The festivities will be given under the auspices of the Norwegian National league. Headed by a platoon of police, the children's procession will start at 9 a. m. from West North avenue and Leavitt street and march west to Humboldt park, where the exercises will be held at the Leif Eriksen monument. The celebration in Brand's park will begin at noon and continue until midnight.

Tells How to Control Trusts.

Concentration, coöperation, and regulation were suggested as the best means of controlling the "trusts" by Dr. Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, at the annual banquet of the Shoe and Leather association of Chicago at the Hotel La Salle last night.

Judge Charles S. Cutting of the Probate court scored the recall of the judiciary as unsound and unfair. He said danger exists in the wave of reform movements and investigations spreading over the land "without doing material good."

Mrs. Martha Ruggles Honored.

Mrs. Martha Ruggles, who has taught in Chicago schools for forty-nine years, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given at the Ogden school, North State and Pearson streets, yesterday by several teachers to celebrate the anniversary. Mrs. Ruggles is principal of the school. She is one of the oldest teachers in point of service in the city.

How to Fight Cost of Living

How to Cut the Gas Bill.

The high cost of living is a hard battle to fight, but one is sure to win out by using common sense and necessity is the teacher. So many complain about their huge gas bills. They are at fault. In cooking it is not necessary to screw the gas up to its fullest force; the boiling of vegetables, soup, etc., takes place just the same when the gas is low. Turn on the gas full force when beginning the cooking of anything; when it reaches the boiling point turn down the gas. When the baking oven is lit bake your prunes, rhubarb, etc., thus saving extra gas; and the fruit is better baked than stewed.

To reduce expenses the housekeeper must know how to sew. She can utilize so many things which would otherwise be wasted. A lingerie waist usually wears out first at the collar, sleeves, and yoke. These can all be cut away and a neat corset cover can be made out of what remains by hemming and inserting drawstrings.

If milk should be left over, let it sour and then drain in cheesecloth for two days, add salt and one teaspoon of cream, whip good with spoon, and you have a delicious cottage cheese.

Do not throw bread away; appetizing bread puddings can be made of stale bread.

Economy means working the brain. G. M.

Does Christmas Shopping Early.

There really is no limit to ways of economizing. While the conditions imposing these economies are not right and we should work our utmost to change them, yet while they last the housewife has opportunity to learn many valuable lessons to be used even when times are less stringent. For one thing I have learned to weigh all articles when delivered and all differences in weight are promptly reported and have to be rectified. Then goods bought in packages are weighed and compared with the goods bought in bulk as to weight, quality, and price, and what can be purchased in bulk is so purchased, quality being the same, as the price is usually somewhat less. I also make my own baking powder. I make all our bread, cake, and cookies, although the two latter articles are not on the table for every meal. I can all the fruit we use, and we know all the jelly and marmalade is made from good fruit. However, I buy sugar by the 100 pound sack several months before canning season begins, as at that time sugar is cheaper than in jelly time. The house dresses and underwear for my daughter and myself are made at home, as are pajamas and negligee shirts for three men folks, and I buy standard dress goods and muslins as well as household linens out of season and at regular sales, thereby saving many dollars. Gifts for birthdays, weddings, and for Christmas are started the first of the year. Most of them are hand made or are purchased here and there as the opportunity to buy at a reduction is made possible. To be sure, many of these economies mean but a few cents on each purchase, but by the end of the year the total has mounted up into dollars, many more than we had anticipated. I do my own work, so save the expense of hired help, and teach my children to help themselves. Once a week a woman comes to wash and do the heavy cleaning. E. N. P.

Does Own Paperhanging.

A friend of mine has the reputation for being able to do anything that she undertakes. It is largely due to this fact and her economical planning that she is able to look the high cost of living squarely in the face. She is a dressmaker of no mean ability and her two daughters' clothes nearly always look better than those of their companions on account of the good workmanship and dainty touches that she is able to give them. She is also a milliner. She often buys hat frames and material on sales and makes up very becoming hats at little cost. This means quite a little where there are three in the family who need dainty clothes and hats. She and her daughter grained all their own woodwork, which required quite a little time, but saved many dollars. She is also a paperhanger. She and a neighbor generally exchange work, but she is always the "hanger" while her neighbor is the helper. Unlike lots of farmers, they raise their own meat, butter, flour, and garden truck. O. M.

Paying for Own Home.

I am a bride of eleven months and find it quite difficult to get along and save. My husband earns $45 a month. When we were married he had $100 saved, which was a great encouragement for me to save. I can make Irish lace and have taken in a few dollars which I put in the bank until August, when I will go on a vacation. We bought a six room cottage and put a mortgage on it. It is not very modern or expensive and we expect to pay for it in a few years. I buy some of the cheap cuts of meat and I have a good cookbook which tells how to prepare such cuts, which any housekeeper can get and thus save a great deal. We eat well, but do not have very many luxuries. If a monthly account is kept you can see what you bought the month before that you could have done without. M.

Variety for Every Day.

I find I can get up some pretty good meals for 10 cents. This seems impossible, but it is a fact. This is my bill of fare for one week:

1 pound of rice	.08
1 pint of beans	.05
1 can of tomatoes	.08
1 can of corn	.08
1 dozen eggs	.20
½ pound of bacon	.12
4 pounds of potatoes	.05
2 pounds of cornmeal	.05
Dried apples	.07
6 pints of milk	.24
¼ pound of butter	.14
1 pound of beef	.08
3 pounds of onions	.05
1 pound of sugar	.05
2 pounds of hamburger steak	.25
1 pound of lima beans	.08
Cakes	.05
1 pound of roasted barley	.07

For coffee I buy roasted barley, for which I pay only 7 cents, which makes a good drink. I find that mush and milk makes a good dish, and it is cheap, too. If people only knew the value of cornmeal as a food there would be more of it used. I pay 5 cents for two pounds. I cook enough so that I will have some for frying. I take two eggs and break them into a dish of mush and stir them into it till it makes a stiff batter, then put in a pan and fry it. I have beef stew one day, tomatoes one day, corn one day, and soup one day. I also make rice pudding, so you see that I have quite a variety, which I change around every week.

JOHN MOONEY, 3911 Rokeby street.

A Farm Woman's View.

We are farm tenants, paying half, and out of our half must keep feed to run through the winter season, so there's not much left to receive cash for. The butter and eggs must clothe and feed us, provide repairs to harness and implements, and purchase extra feed for poultry. I manage to lay up a supply of flour, sugar, and coffee in summer when eggs are more plentiful. I can beets, beans, corn, peas, asparagus, pumpkins, tomatoes, fruits of all kinds, and cure the pork in a sugar cure, then smoke. All pork chops, ribs, sausage, liver, and hearts are fried and packed in jars, then covered with lard. Beef is roasted slowly in an oven, packed in jars and covered with lard. In this way we have our summer meat. If the city housewives would put confidence in the farm women and buy direct from them both would be greatly benefited. When we are getting 15 cents a dozen for eggs and 20 cents a pound for butter the city housewife is paying 25 or 30 cents for eggs and 30 or 35 cents for butter. No woman works as hard as the women on the farm and sees as few pleasures, yet we are content, for with the toil comes exercise, fresh air, hearty appetites, and best of all—health. MRS. F. S.

From Near and Far.

A shrewd poultryman bought 100 fowls for $100, paying 62 cents for chickens, $1.03 for ducks, and $1.34 for turkeys. He made 12 cents on each chicken, 32 cents on a duck, and 25 cents on a turkey. How much could he possibly make on the lot?

Odd.

An orchestra of twenty-five blind musicians, led by a one armed woman conductor, recently played the whole of the music of "Rigoletto" at a performance of that opera in the theater at Oviedo, Spain.

In Ipoh, Malay peninsula, one of the pioneer motor cars in the country is now in almost constant use as a funeral hearse. Hauled by coolies, the proud old pioneer wends its frequent, slow, laborious way to the cemetery.

A stock of handkerchiefs has been purchased for the use of French deputies. Whenever a member has forgotten his handkerchief he will only have to ask an usher for one. There will be no fee, and if the deputy forgets to return the handkerchief nothing will be said.

Perhaps the highest price paid for a sermon goes every year to a German preacher, who discourses on the good deeds of a French baron named Favart, who died in Elberfeld in 1690. Favart left money for this purpose, and the interest now amounts to $4,600 per annum, which goes to the preacher as his reward.

The French military authorities make use of an ingenious invention to protect their carrier pigeons against hawks. The apparatus consists of a tiny whistle and a screw attached to the pigeon, whose flight causes the screw to revolve and blow the whistle. The noise effectually scares away the enemy.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR TRIP TO EXPLORE CROCKER LAND.

Party of Scientists Will Leave New York on July 3—Will Be in Communication with U. S. by Wireless.

New York, May 16.—After many setbacks the Crocker land expedition has completed arrangements for departure from this city on July 3, under command of Dr. Donald B. MacMillan in the ship Diana. Crocker land is supposed to be a large island or continent which was seen from a distance by Rear Admiral Peary in 1906.

The principal members of his party will be Maurice C. Tanquary, zoölogist of the State Agricultural college at Manhattan, Kas.; W. Elmer Ekblow, botanist and zoölogist, and Ensign Fitzhugh Green, U. S. N., physicist and engineer. The Diana will carry a crew of twenty-eight.

Flagler bay, on the west side of Kane basin, will be made the winter quarters. This is about fifty miles from Cape Sabine. A large wireless plant furnished by the United States government will be set up for communication to Cape Wolstenholme, in Hudson bay, 1,600 miles away, where the Canadian government is completing a wireless station and will relay all messages.

Cleanup Squad Rewarded.

First grade pupils of the Lincoln school in Evanston yesterday reaped the benefit of their labors in "clean up" week. Supt. Nichols offered a half holiday to the class doing the best work as a cleaning squad. The first graders, under Miss Nellie Sickles, won the award.

A Few Weeks In the Rockies

will give you new life for the rest of the year. You've been living abnormally—the city drains your forces and strains your vitality. But out in Colorado nature will take you in hand, put new corpuscles in your veins, stimulate your imagination, clear the cobwebs from your thoughts, drive the languor from your system and steep you in the magic ozone of the mountain forests.

Don't charge the trip to your expense account—enter it as an investment. You'll do so much more for the rest of the year—you'll work so much better—so much faster, you'll think so much more clearly, you'll be so much more efficient and alert that you'll profit both physically and financially. The

The World's Cooks

By Jane Eddington

Dinner Given by Italian Royal Children.

ROME.

A DINNER given by the children of the king to their little friends on Dec. 12, 1912, was really a Christmas affair, and the snappers for the occasion were large and pretty. On one side of the menu there was fastened an imitation tree in different shades of green silk, with imitation candles in white and red.

It is said that the whole household management of the present Italian sovereigns is on a simple basis, and certainly the menu of this little dinner shows it. It follows:

Minestra alla San Germano (pea soup).
Polpettine all'Italiana (stuffed veal cutlets).
Filetto di manzo con verdure
(filet of beef with vegetables).
Spargi verdi con burro
(green asparagus with butter).
Capponi arrosto (roast capon).
Insalata composta
(mixed salad of cooked vegetables).
Timballetti d'ananasso (pineapple timbale).

Pea soup is made the world over and is good for children. The little girls at Turin learn to make it with the following recipe:

ST. GERMAIN SOUP.—Four-fifths of a pound of dry peas soaked, three-fifths of a pound of rice, three tablespoons of butter. Season with salt, pepper, conserve of tomato and parsley.

The process consists of cooking the peas, putting them through a sieve, and then enriching them and the liquid in which they were cooked with butter or broth or even a soffritto. Rice is not commonly used in this soup, but these little girls were taught to use it because it was thus made into a heartier dish and one more nearly equal to a complete meal.

The royal youngsters may have had their soup made of fresh peas, or at any rate of the best canned variety, and had a few uncrushed fresh peas for a garnish, as one has everywhere in the best hotels when this dish is served.

The "polpettine all'Italiana" was undoubtedly the ordinary so-called stuffed cutlet with some addition or more likely garnish which represented the work of the imagination of the cook, stirred to patriotic activity because of the house which he has the honor to serve. The so-called stuffing of these cutlets is nothing more than a paste spread over them before they are rolled up. During Lent no anchovy paste was used in such stuffing here in Italy, although this is so much employed to add flavor to all sorts of things, because during that season meat and fish could not be indulged in on the same day.

As the syllable "one" is added to a thing meaning large or big, so the syllable "ine" is added to signify small; therefore polpettine means little polpette. Polpa means pulp or flesh, and polpetta sometimes, or rather in some parts of Italy, means meat balls; but again it is what is described in the following recipe:

POLPETTE DI CARNE (polpette of meat, or stuffed cutlets).—Cut the round of veal in little slices, thin and regular in form. Beat them carefully and put on each a stuffing which may be of herbs and parsley or ham. If of herbs chop fine, add salt and allspice and anchovy paste or tomato conserve, and spread a little on each slice of meat, roll up, and fasten with a skewer. Put the stuffed cutlets in melted butter and leave them to brown on not too quick a fire. Then add a little broth or water and a small spoonful of preserved tomato. Cook for an hour and a half or two hours. A simple and tasty dish.

The filet of beef for this dinner was undoubtedly cooked the French way and garnished with potatoes cut in tiny barrel shape, and some of the other vegetables were prepared and turned out from molds—a method which is so much favored by the French. White potatoes, the yellow pegs of carrots, and a mold of spinach constitute a favorite combination.

Asparagus, especially when out of season, is considered a great delicacy the world over. The roast capon in this case undoubtedly was done on a spit, for this is the method of roasting chicken common all over the continent of Europe. The salad probably was of French beans, etc., for these beans are an almost invariable constituent of "composed" salads. The pineapple was a good finish for such a dinner, a wholesome sweet.

Of course the decorations, the atmosphere of pleasure, the eager voices of the children, their curiosity and delight, made this dinner the pretty thing. But surely there is some interest in merely knowing how simple and wholesome was even the holiday dinner of these little people who sit by the throne of Italy.

Request for Old Magazines.

"DO you think it would be possible for me to get from some reader of the Helping Hand department back numbers of the National Food magazine? I would like so much to get them for a year back if it is at all possible. D. A. R."

Whole Wheat Bread.

One tablespoon lard or cottolene, one tablespoon sugar, one cup each boiling water and hot (not boiling) milk, yeast cake dissolved in one-half cup warm water, one cup white flour, three cups whole wheat flour, or enough to make soft dough. Mix, knead for ten minutes, cover, and let it rise in an even temperature to twice its first bulk. Make into small loaves, place in greased pans, let rise an hour or until puffy, and bake.—Request of B. F. M.

Some Week End Echoes.

I am pleasing myself and, I hope, many of our dear Cornerites by using the Saturday space this week—that given up to the Week End Helping Hand—by publishing a number of letters of the kind that we term "echoes." They are echoes of good deeds done, of benefits received, and of help secured through our beloved Corner. It is meet that once in a while we should "take account of stock" and see where we stand. Each week I publish a few letters of thanks or acknowledgments, but so many have accumulated that I am going to put in at this week end as many as the space allowed me will accommodate.

"I received your letter giving me the addresses of some people who want flower seeds, and also the address of a little boy who wants directions for making toy aeroplanes. I shall be glad to send the things they want and will write to the little boy. By the same mail that brought your letter came one from Mrs. H. of Kansas City, Mo. I had sent her a few crochet patterns not long ago. Since then I have heard from her two or three times. I do enjoy the Corner and like to fill the many little odd moments that I have tracing embroidery patterns, etc. I was sick last year and still feel that it is pleasanter and easier for me to do things like that than to read, so you may see you are helping me a great deal. M. R."

"I wish to report that I have sent toys to the two little girls, the daughters of Mrs. L. B. in Iowa, whose address you sent me; also to the little girl in the northern part of Illinois, E. S. of Scales Mound, Ill. She now has her buggy, with a baby doll and its outfit. I am glad to have been able to do these things. S. B."

"I am writing to inform you that I received the poem 'Napoleon at Rest.' I wish to thank A. A. and you. I wish I could do more for the Corner. I always enjoy reading it and think of it so much. Mrs. L. O. D."

"I wish to tell you that I called at Mrs. M.'s house and received some useful things, for which I thank you and the Corner and Mrs. M. "Mrs. J. D."

"Please accept my thanks for the insertion relative to exchanging a few hours' housework for piano lessons. I have obtained the services of a worthy girl, one who, I think, will qualify in both places. She is ambitious and, I think, will succeed. I will answer all the letters received in reply to my application, and I may be able to give some other line of work to the different ones, for, unfortunately, talent always seems to be among the poor, and, loving my profession so dearly as I do, the money with me is not the only consideration. M. H. T."

"It has been a long time since I have written to you or made a report on our joint interests. I refer to the case of the poor sick and homeless boy you helped me to find through your Corner. I have told you how happy the boy made the home and how happy the home made the boy. I hadn't seen him for two or three years until a while ago when his father told me they were going away and wanted me to see him before they went. I was so surprised to see not a little boy but a tall, fine looking lad. He is happy and loves his 'father' and 'mother' dearly. He is more like a boy of 11 years than a boy of 8. He would not have lived another week if we had not rescued him. Our dear Lord sent him direct to that home. Almost any other persons would have sent him back where they found him. He was ill for a long time. It was months before he was safely well. This is one of the things the Corner has done. A MEMBER."

"I got your letter telling me to go to Mrs. H.'s for the gift. I found her a very nice woman, and she told me after she cleaned house and went through her trunks she would have a lot more things to give me. I thank you very much for giving me her address. "MRS. M. W."

"I sent a large box of magazines and books to Catoosa, Okla., for the school library, and embroidery and Battenburg patterns to a worthy poor woman. I thank the Corner for telling me of those who need help and cheer. "MRS. M. B."

"I have just written to Miss H. in regard to the books for her library, and will write Mrs. R. and Mrs. A. in regard to scraps for quilts today. I am so interested in this sort of work. And it is splendid to be able to get into touch with those who need our help. I hope to be able to help many. MRS. B."

"Last summer I sent a tent to a woman living near Chicago on the lake. Its purpose was to provide an outing for a few girls who were given vacations but had no money with which to buy a tent or go on a trip. I am going to furnish it with a complete camping outfit, and if I find this scheme practical shall try to interest my friends to provide tents so that many tired girls may enjoy their vacations bathing and fishing and enjoying the change this will give them. I saw this appeal in your Corner and I know you will be interested in hearing more about it. MRS. G. L. B."

"I called upon the woman whose address you sent to me, and she was very kind. I found a gracious woman whom it was a pleasure to meet. I can add without exaggeration we do not meet one of her type every day. She filled me with a desire to be more like her and to be able to leave the same impression with any one as needy as I was who might call at my home on a like errand. A. M. D."

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets.

By Lillian Russell

Dangers of Fasting.

[Copyright: 1913: By Lillian Russell.]

SOME people, especially women, who fear to get stout do damage to their systems by fasting from morning until night and do not eat enough to nourish a baby at that. Many women are invalids for life, useless, helpless things, and all brought to this condition by their own actions, the starvation treatment—victims to their own vanity. To such women any food becomes an obstruction.

These women become accustomed to doing without food and a slablike figure repays their vanity. Then, later, when they see their folly and want to eat, nothing agrees with their stomachs; that organ has weakened with the rest of the body and cannot take in and digest real food.

I have seen in Paris where to be emaciated is the fashion, these starved women get their bodies in such a condition from fasting that nothing could be taken but a cup of ox blood, hot, with an egg dropped in it. And that is the beginning of the end, when they have sacrificed their health for a lithe figure.

Women can keep thin enough on simple, well cooked food in strict moderation. An egg and a piece of toast with a glass of orange juice is a good breakfast. A chop and some salad is a good luncheon, and dinner should be but one slice of meat (chicken or fish), one vegetable, and crackers and cheese or fruit for dessert. No wines or liquids with meals, but a cup of tea or coffee or a glass of water may be taken an hour after each meal. This diet will keep any woman thin enough.

Don't impoverish your system to be thin; it is dangerous to all the machinery of the body.

Women seem to consider that denying themselves a portion or two of food is a terrible self-denial. By some perversity of nature, stout women are usually fond of sweets and desserts, not to mention griddle cakes by the half dozen and hot biscuits and waffles, all of which are fattening, while the incongruous fact exists that women who are thin generally adore lemons and pickles and would consider it a great deprivation were they obliged to do without them. If the tastes were reversed the stout women would be thinner and the thin women would grow stouter.

Education has the power to alter the tastes of people as well as conditions, and the happiness that is lost by not eating all one wishes is made up in the end.

A woman makes up her mind to diet, whether for the purpose of reducing her size or for toning up her general system. She thinks out her plan and decides upon the foods she will eat while following the régime. Now, if she wants a beautiful figure and good health, she wants that so sincerely that any food that would have a tendency to interfere with her plans of diet would only annoy her. If she loses any happiness by denying herself certain things to eat she is not sincere in her desire to reduce.

There would be no happiness to a sensible woman in anything that would put on one ounce of the flesh she so earnestly desires to lose or has lost.

We hear the cry so often, "O, if I could only eat all I wanted just once." Why should women want to gourmandize? And after all what is the real difference what one eats or how much if one feels well and keeps well?

Remember: Health is the only road to real happiness and the curse of the universe is overeating. It is the original cause of all illness.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

H. T.: I am sorry but I know of nothing that will permanently darken the eyebrows. One must be exceedingly careful in using a dye on the lashes and brows, as it may injure the eye. Plain yellow vaseline or olive oil will gradually darken the eyebrows, but of course will take some time to do so. Apply at night with a small brush, but be careful that you do not get any of it into the eyes, as oils are irritating.

X.: Sleeping on the stomach is in a way injurious to the health, as it hinders proper breathing, and improper breathing means poor health. It will also make wrinkles in your face, as one has to twist the neck around so they can breathe, causing creases in the face and neck. I am unable to print all the formulas you mentioned, but I shall be glad to send them to you upon receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

Laura Jean Libbey's Advice

By Laura Jean Libbey

What Men Think of Her.

[Copyright: 1913: By Laura Jean Libbey.]

THE jolly woman whom every one seems to take to and who has the power of drawing the beaux is usually the envy of her less fortunate women friends. There is always some one eager to take her to the ball, theater, or supper. And there is always a gentleman caller in her parlor.

But somehow, as the years go on, her plainer, unattractive women friends wed while she remains single. Men usually like the jolly, witty, coquettish woman who is always trigged out in the latest fashion, to spend a merry evening with. They find her amusing and exhilarating. They can laugh heartily at her droll and witty sayings and admire her getup. But when it comes to marriage most every man wants the sympathetic, domestic woman, even if she is plain of face and still more plainly gowned. Her mind is not stored full of the latest anecdotes to recount to him, but in its place she is quiet and restful.

There are times when men like to laugh. They have also their serious moments—nay, hours. And at such times the silent sympathy of the plain, unassuming woman, who is all heart instead of head, they believe to be a boon and a blessing to them.

Is it any wonder, then, that the jolliest of men have been known to wed women who could not carry on a conversation entertainingly a whole evening if their life depended on it; indeed, women who were really awkward in speech or manner?

The woman who is naturally mirthful cannot check her exuberance of spirits. Even she, however, has her serious moments in which she is much more charming. But she tries to hide that side of her nature from her friends, thus doing herself a great injustice, for men do not know her as she really is. While men are easily attracted to the vivacious woman, it is like a diet of honey—a little of it goes a great ways. One soon becomes satiated.

Men think the jolly woman charming, but their thoughts of her generally stop there. Fond and tender memories do not cling about her. When she is young she is called witty, but in middle life men call her garrulous, and some laugh in secret at her expense. It is well to be witty, but a woman should offset it by being wise as well, tempering mirth with sensibility.

There are times when a man can enjoy a lively story. But he who has a toothache or a heartache is usually irritated at the attempt to joke with him. Even the merriest women are not always laughing. They should let their friends see them as they are—quite as matter of fact as other women. Men would no doubt think them lovable if they knew them as they are just in the bosom of their own families.

The jolly woman is apt to strike a false note with the men with whom she comes in contact, unless she exercises a little forethought. While it is true that a little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men, it would pall upon one for a steady diet.

When a man chooses a chum it is usually one whose characteristics are just the opposite from his own, to hold him in perfect ballast. When it comes to choosing a wife they think that the jolly woman is a good companion for hours of pleasure, but they do not consider her when it comes to wedlock. Women who consider themselves plain, unattractive, and uninteresting need not despair. When it comes to love they carry off the palm.

Is He Going to Call Her Up?

"Dear Miss Libbey: I was at a dance the other night with my cousins, and my cousins introduced me to a man that just danced with them, so he asked me for the next dance. While dancing he asked me my telephone number and I told him. So he said 'If you have a phone give me the number of the office phone where you work.' But I told him 'I do not work,' so he was very glad to hear my phone number. He did not ask my cousins anything like that, so if he cares for me do you think he will call me up, and how soon, as I am anxious to know him? I am 18. He seemed to be very nice and sensible, and he is also of my religion. ELIZABETH."

I have no way of knowing, Elizabeth, whether he will call you up, and how soon. You probably will hear from him before long.

Two Farmer Boys.

"Dear Miss Libbey: We are two fine looking young farmer boys of 17. We go to see a girl, and she's a beauty, too. We are good chums, I and my boy friend, and would like your advice. I go to see her one evening and my chum goes another evening. The father tells her not to go with either of us. She will keep the one company who comes there. But of course, she seems to care more for me than for my chum, especially when I am there. She cares quite a bit for both of us. Now, will you tell me how I can arrange it that I win the girl's love. I care so awful much for her I really can't explain. How can it be done that I win the girl and not lose my friend, as she seems to be the only girl he loves and cares very much for? Or do you think it is better for us both to let her go in order to save a quarrel? But I am anxious to find a way how I win the girl's love and not lose my chum. How can it be done? SAMUEL."

All is fair in love and war, Samuel. Don't let the other fellow frighten you out of the race if the girl shows no partiality for him. Of course, if you think more of the fellow's friendship than you do of the girl's it is a different matter. In that case you had better pull out of the race before any ill feeling arises.

FUTURES HIGHER; SHORTS BUYERS

LOCAL BEARS BUY OATS.

Small Country Movement of Coarse Grains Aids Bulls; Products Are Easy.

Shorts were again free buyers of wheat yesterday, and prices worked materially higher before there was any selling pressure of consequence. Cables were colorless and the news from the other side was not such as to stimulate any activity on either side of the market. Late in the day there was further buying and prices finished ⅝@1c higher.

Liverpool was ¼d up to ⅛d off, the selling being influenced by the heavy American shipments expected, while the moderate offerings from India and Russia caused some buying. Paris was unchanged to ½c off; Antwerp, unchanged, and Budapest ¾c off. World's shipments were estimated at 14,600,000, nearly half of which was from this country and Canada, Bradstreet reporting weekly clearances of 7,011,000 bu.

Frost Damage in Russia.

There were complaints of frost damage in the Volga region of Russia, and receipts at the chief buying ports were moderate. Argentina shipped 2,480,000 bu for the week, Australia, 1,400,000 bu, and India, 1,256,000 bu. A moderate increase is expected in on passage stocks. Crop conditions in this country and abroad were favorable.

Oklahoma was said to be offering new wheat for shipment to Minneapolis first half of July shipment at 91c, Minneapolis. The Modern Miller reported the outlook favorable and said winter wheat harvest would be general between June 15 and July 1, the season being several days earlier than last year. Consequently it is expected that July will see a liberal movement here. Kansas City reported No. 2 hard wheat offered out of store at 88c. The milling demand here was moderate.

Northwest Stocks Decrease.

Minneapolis stocks decreased nearly 1,000,000 bu for the week and Duluth stocks were expected to show a loss of about 500,000 bu. Kansas City wired that heavy deliveries of May contracts of wheat were expected today or Monday. Nebraska reports were extremely favorable, and while there were quite a few reports of chinch bugs doing damage, the general outlook for winter wheat is excellent.

Receipts here were 15 cars, with 21 cars the estimate for today, and receipts in the west were 384,000 bu, compared to 381,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were 835,000 bu for the day. Northwest points had 185 cars, compared to 99 cars a year ago. Winnipeg receipts were 340 cars; last year, 280 cars. Local shipping sales were 40,000.

Corn Mart Has Rally.

Corn prices were ⅝@¾c higher. Offerings were moderate, and there was no disposition to sell so long as the offerings from the country were so light. Cash prices were ¼@½c higher at the close after being about steady early. The shipping demand was good and there were sales of 185,000 bu. Receipts here were only 89 cars, with 64 cars the estimate for today.

Weather conditions were favorable over the belt as a rule, and planting has made fair progress. No pressure to sell from the country was noted however. Receipts in the west were 314,000 bu, against 486,000 bu a year ago. Cables were ¼d off. Argentine shipments were 4,157,000 bu, and from this country 200,000 bu.

May Oats Shorts in Panic.

A covering movement in May oats elevated the entire list. May offerings were light at the start and the execution of a few stop loss orders to buy caused a bulge to 38⅜c, and the close was at 38⅛c, a gain for the day of 1¼c. Other futures were ½c to ⅝@¾c higher. Commission houses and local traders generally were buyers early. Receipts were 123 cars, with 172 cars the estimate for today.

Western arrivals were 476,000 bu, against 412,000 bu a year ago. Argentine shipments for the week were 1,850,000 bu. Crop reports were of all kinds, the crowd paying more attention to the assertions that the general outlook was less favorable than reported. Cash prices were ½@1c higher, and shipping sales were 235,000 bu. Cutten was a big seller and Geahart a heavy buyer of September on the advance.

Hog Products Irregular.

Hog products were irregular, firm early, but closing with generally small declines. Offerings were fair on the early rally, the buying being inspired largely by the stronger tone in coarse grains. Receipts of hogs were 20,000, with 13,000 expected today. Western receipts of hogs were 75,500, against 60,500 a year ago. Cash trade continues good. Lard at Liverpool was 6d higher, but Cumberland sides were 6d lower. Receipts of products here were 24 cars, and shipments were 91 cars.

Rye and Barley Strong.

Rye ruled firm, with sales of No. 3 at 61c and No. 4 at 57@59c; No. 2 was quoted at 62@63c; receipts were 5 cars.

Barley was strong, with malting grades ranging at 52@68c; feed, 46@51c, and screenings, 24@40c; receipts were 31 cars.

Timothy seed was unchanged, with May $4.00 bid and $4.10 asked, and September $4.25 bid and $4.35 asked; country lots nominally $3.00@3.75. Clover seed dull, with October $12.85 bid and $13.50 asked.

Duluth flax was ¼c higher to 1c lower, with cash on track, $1.29¼@1.29½; May, $1.29¼; July, $1.30¾; September, $1.33, and October, $1.32½; receipts, 37 cars. Minneapolis, ½c lower, with cash on track $1.28¾; receipts, 11 cars. Winnipeg, ½@¾c lower, with May $1.14¾ and July $1.16¾; receipts, 56 cars.

AMERICAN GRAIN MARKETS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 16.—WHEAT—Showed technical strength in spite of bearish crop and statistical news. Rains in northwest beneficial, although not especially needed. Trading light and market narrow. May closed ⅝c higher than yesterday, July ½c higher, and September ½c higher. Local elevator stocks decreased 900,000 bu for the week. May opened, 87⅝c; high, 87⅞c; low, 87⅛c; closed, 87⅞c. July opened, 88⅞c; high, 89⅛c; low, 88⅝c; closed, 89⅛c. September opened 90¼c; high, 90¾c; low, 89⅝@89¾c; closed, 90¼@90⅜c. Closing cash: No. 1 hard, 91⅞c; No. 1 northern, 90@91⅛c; to arrive, 89⅞@90⅛c; choice, to arrive, 90⅛c; No. 2 northern, 88@89⅛c; No. 2 hard Montana, 90⅛c; No. 3 wheat, 86@87⅛c. FLOUR—Trade was very small. Shipping directions were only fair at best. Shipments, 60,208 bbls. [In wood f. o. b. Dry Goods.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The cotton goods markets are steady with the demand fair. Silk and woolen mills are curtailing their output, the former on account of difficulties arising from strikes in dyeing establishments and the latter on account of tariff uncertainties. Wool markets are dull. Imports of merchandise and dry goods for week ending May 10, valued at $18,612,533.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

Ware-Leland had the following from Harper-Ward, Des Moines, Ia.: "Mr. Ward just returned from a three days' trade excursion, trip covering central and northern Iowa, about 400 miles, and stopping at fifty-one towns. The percentage of corn and oats in country elevators is astonishingly small, while estimates on stocks of both yet in farmers' hands ranged from 15 to 35 per cent. Nothing will move until after corn planting, say thirty days yet. Estimates on corn planted range from nothing to 25 per cent, and 10 per cent would cover the average. Heavy rains last few days and the entire section almost under water. Planting will be delayed at least another week to ten days, and elevator men are beginning to worry over the delay."

Whether there is a big short interest in May oats or not, the market continues to show decided signs of congestion. The supply of contract oats at present available for delivery is moderate. Moreover, when the long liquidation in May oats was on a few weeks ago, there was quite a little short selling, while cash interests were credited with buying the May on the break. Stop loss buying was in evidence yesterday, and it was the opinion of pit traders that if the more stubborn shorts should try to cover there would be a still greater advance. As to the deferred months, most of the sentiment was of a bearish color.

Broomhall cabled: "Our agent cables that the Volga region is suffering from continued frost, which is damaging the growing wheat crop. Reports regarding the crops in the Don territory are satisfactory, and a report from our agent at Nicolaieff states that the outlook for the crops in the southwest is higly favorable. Supplies at southwestern ports are still scanty, but larger quantities are expected before long, and Rostoff-on-Don, still indicates relatively good shipments in the near future."

Lyle wired Chapin & Co. from New York: "An adjustment of difference on the time of drafts against shipments, grain to United Kingdom, is expected in twenty-four hours; parties getting close together. This has hindered export sales since May 1 to United Kingdom, but about sixty-five loads have been taken in last two weeks on sight draft terms. The trouble is solely on United Kingdom business."

Clement-Curtis: "Our reports from the winter wheat belt show wheat holding to high condition. Some chinch bug damage from eastern Oklahoma, portions of southern Kansas and western Missouri. Northwest reports indicate small decrease in acreage, seeding late, soil in good condition. Oats acreage less than last year and condition below average in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio."

The department of agriculture will use 19 bu as par for winter wheat on June 1, or an increase of nine-tenths bu over May. Should the condition decline to 90 on June 1, the aggregate crop at the reduced condition would be about 529,000,000 bu, or an increase of 15,000,000 bu on the May estimate. Should the May condition—91.9—be maintained, the crop would be about 538,000,000 bu.

There was considerable gossip in the wheat trade to the effect that Patten was supposed to be long quite a line of wheat. Bartlett-Frazier are credited with buying considerable wheat a few days ago, but the general opinion appears to be that there is no big concentrated holding in wheat. Most of the recent buying has been by local shorts.

Cash sales of wheat here were 40,000 bu. Offerings were moderate, and there was a moderate inquiry from mills. The export demand was reported light by local dealers. Outside markets were without material change. Cash corn here was about unchanged, and oats were ½@1c higher. Shipping sales were 185,000 bu corn and 235,000 bu oats.

	This week.	Last week.	Last year.
Wheat, bu	2,480,000	2,760,000	3,872,000
Corn, bu	4,157,000	3,596,000	3,655,000
Oats, bu	1,850,000	1,860,000	2,725,000
Flax seed, bu	1,575,000	2,248,000	309,000

John F. Barrett was back yesterday from a trip in the southwest. He reported finding a splendid outlook for wheat. As to the export situation, he said Kansas City houses did not have any bids for wheat at the time Chicago was reporting business.

Logan-Bryan had the following message from Tiffin, O.: "We have had fine weather for all grains, frequent showers, no complaints of dry weather. Ground for corn planting fine. About the usual acreage being put in the ground rapidly."

A Quincy, Ill., message to Bennett said: "Very little cash grain going on the market here. Corn being sold to feeders at 3 and 4 cents better price than offered by Chicago or St. Louis, 55 to 56 cents per bu on track."

Australian wheat shipments for the week were 1,400,000 bu, compared with 800,000 bu last week and 812,000 bu a year ago, and Indian 1,256,000 bu, against 1,640,000 bu last week and 1,568,000 bu last year.

Bradstreet's weekly clearances of wheat and flour were 2,011,000 bu, compared with 4,027,000 bu a year ago, and corn 199,000 bu, against 62,000 bu last year.

H. P. Watson of Minneapolis wired Ware-Leland: "Oklahoma is offering wheat to a miller here for delivery first half of July at 91c."

Jerome Elwell Steever, Harry Jones Renn, and Charles H. Wayne have applied for membership on the board of trade.

Bids on the call for wheat to arrive were ¼@2c higher; corn ¼@1c higher, oats ½@1½c higher, and rye ½@1c higher.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 900,000 bu for the week. Duluth stocks decreased about 500,000 bu for five days.

Country offerings of corn were reported a little larger, but were still moderate in the aggregate.

Kansas City wired that heavy deliveries of May wheat were expected today or Monday.

BOAT LINE RENTS DOCK.

Chicago and South Haven Company Gets 375 Feet on River Near Wells Street.

Another record breaking transaction has been closed on Milwaukee avenue covering the property at 1240, being 154 feet west of Ashland avenue. It fronts 23½ feet, with a depth of 100 feet, improved with a three story brick building, and has been leased by Louis Kniff to Joseph K. Ferguson for ninety-nine years at an annual rent of $4,200 for the first fifteen years, $4,800 for the next twenty years, $5,700 for the next fifteen years, and $6,000 for the remaining forty-nine years.

Capitalizing the ground rent for the first term of fifteen years on a 5 per cent basis gives a leasing value of $84,000, which is at the rate of $3,574 a front foot and $35.74 a square foot.

The average annual rent is $5,469, which on a 5 per cent basis is equivalent to about $109,400, or $4,695 a front foot and $46.95 a square foot, almost downtown figures.

Plans New Theater.

Mr. Ferguson had the building under a lease which had about fifteen years to run, and it gives him a holding with a frontage of 73 feet. His property known as the Natatorium and Iola theater adjoins. He owns a large plot in the rear of the 73 feet and plans the erection of a theater of 1,800 seating capacity with a frontage on Milwaukee avenue.

Dix & Knipp were the brokers for the lessor and Isadore Ferguson & Co. for the lessee. William Wilhartz represented the lessee in a legal way and Marso & Salisbury the lessor.

Leases 375 Feet Dockage.

W. H. Cochrane of the Chicago and South Haven Steamship company has leased from the estate of J. M. Durand 375 feet of dockage on the north side of the river just west of Wells street.

The property is triangular in shape and lies between the Chicago and Northwestern railway track and the main branch of the river and comprises an area of about 24,000 square feet, on which a new warehouse having a ground area of about 16,000 square feet is now being erected to accommodate the business of the steamship company.

The company operates boats between Chicago and South Haven, Saugatuck, and Douglas and will also use the property leased as a dock for the new St. Joseph and Chicago Steamship company running between Chicago and St. Joseph. The lease was negotiated by B. A. Thorpe.

Hotel Du Nord Sold.

The Hotel du Nord property at 4618-22 Kenmore avenue and 4601-03 Winthrop avenue, at the northeast corner of the two streets, has been sold by Sidney S. Date to August Sievers of Louis Sievers' Sons company at a reported consideration of $75,000.

The building occupies a lot fronting ninety-two feet on Kenmore avenue and about 142 feet on Winthrop avenue, and contains fifteen apartments, the six fronting on Winthrop avenue being occupied by the hotel. The purchaser assumed an incumbrance of $35,000 and gave a part purchase money mortgage for $8,000, two years, at 5 per cent. In part payment he conveyed the property at Grand and Peoria, lot 44x100 feet, improved with two story and basement brick building, occupied by Sievers' Sons company, who have taken back a lease for two years. This and other property was conveyed by Sievers at a total consideration of $32,000.

Regelin, Jenson & Co., were the brokers, and R. A. Connell, who was associated in the sale, will have the management of the fifteen flat building.

Regelin, Jenson & Co., also sold for Louis Davidson to Emil Behrens the property at 6610 South Halsted for $14,500, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000.

Sells 18 Apartment Building.

Murray Wolbach has sold to Edwin B. Mayer the eighteen apartment building with 126x136 feet of ground at 848-58 East Sixty-fifth street, between Drexel and Jackson avenues. A consideration of $10 is given in the transfer, but it is understood the selling price was around $60,000. Mr. Wolbach took in part payment the three story brick building at 3856 West Indiana street, the residence at 4252 Drexel boulevard, and 50 feet of vacant at Calumet avenue between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh streets, and the two story frame building at 3247 Wentworth avenue. Callistus S. Ennis & Co. represented both parties.

Irving R. Rehm, who two months ago acquired the residence property, lot 72x200 feet, south front, on Washington boulevard, 172 feet west of Francisco avenue, from David H. Fritts in exchange for the Atlas School Supply company property at 1024-26 West Van Buren street, has sold the same to John Jeffrey of Glencoe for a stated consideration of $35,000. He took in part payment 75x125 feet improved with three two flat buildings, west front, in Millard avenue, 300 feet south of Douglas boulevard, at a valuation of $22,500. Jackson Bros., who negotiated the first deal, were also the brokers in the last one.

Store and Flats Sold.

The property at the northwest corner of Ridgway avenue and Augusta street, 45x125 feet, improved with building containing 3 stores and eight flats, has been sold by Charles W. Mason to Ida Cohn, consideration nominal but said to be around $25,000. Robert C. Bennett & Co., in connection with Lawrence Nelson & Co., negotiated the deal.

Mary Burke has sold to Charles A. Sampson the property at 1617 Milwaukee avenue between Robey street and North avenue, lot 24x100 feet, for $18,000. The property is said to have more than doubled during the last two years. Joseph H. Edelson acted in a legal capacity.

Otto Reuter of W. F. Kaiser & Co., who recently opened a subdivision around Ainslie street and Albany avenue, has sold 26 lots to different parties, the deeds being recorded yesterday for a total consideration of $21,920. The sales ran from $3,100 to $475.

Interest Rate Tends Lower.

R. D. Hill & Co. have made a loan of $125,000, five years, at 4½ per cent, secured by the property at 1414-18 South Wabash avenue, improved with a seven story brick, steel, and mill constructed building, rented for furniture exhibition purposes. It is interesting as indicating a tendency toward a lower interest rate.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $100,000 one year, at 5 per cent, to David Blum, secured by the property at the southwest corner of Halsted street and Jackson boulevard, 60x125 feet, and the property in Green street, 50 feet south of Jackson boulevard, 25x125 feet, north front.

ILLINOIS GRAND JURY INDICTS FOUR ROADS AND COAL FIRM.

Carriers and O'Gara Company Charged with Rebating and Discrimination by East St. Louis Body.

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—[Special.]—Indictments charging rebating and discrimination in sixty-three counts were returned against four railroads and a coal company today by a federal grand jury in East St. Louis, Ill.

The indictments set forth instances wherein it is alleged the laws were violated by the Vandalia, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis ("Big Four"), Chicago, Indiana and Southern, and Grand Trunk railroads and the O'Gara Coal company.

Seven counts jointly charge the "Big Four," Chicago, Indiana and Southern railway, and the Grand Trunk, and the O'Gara Coal company with conspiracy in violating the Elkins act of 1903.

The penalty that may be imposed for violating the Elkins law in case of conviction is a minimum of $1,000 on each count and a maximum of $20,000 for each count, or $1,280,000 for the sixty-three counts.

In the conspiracy charge, however, there is no minimum and the companies may be fined $10,000 for each of the seven counts, making $70,000, or $1,350,000 for the seventy-one counts.

ALEXANDER LEGGE CHOSEN TO TAKE PLACE OF C. S. FUNK

Assistant Elected General Manager of the International Harvester Company—G. A. Ranney, Secretary.

President Cyrus H. McCormick yesterday announced the election of Alexander Legge as general manager of the International Harvester company of New Jersey and International Harvester corporation, to succeed C. S. Funk, who recently resigned.

Mr. Legge entered the service of the McCormick Harvesting Machine company in 1891. He was brought to the general office of that company at Chicago in 1899 and was made assistant general manager of the International Harvester in 1906, at the time the office of general manager was created.

He has worked himself up from the ranks, beginning his career in the collection and sales departments in the west.

George A. Ranney was chosen by the board of directors as secretary of both companies. He entered the service of the McCormick Harvesting Machine company as assistant treasurer in 1898, and has been assistant to the general manager since 1906. The office of secretary has not been filled since the resignation of Richard F. Howe.

CHICAGO STOCKS AGAIN IRREGULAR

SWIFT SHARES MOVE UP.

Booth Fisheries Show Weakness; Prices of Bonds Remain Generally Steady.

Business on the local stock exchange yesterday was but moderately active and prices were irregular. Sears-Roebuck common dropped to 164 from a close of 166 the previous day, but finished at 165½. Swift & Co. shares were up 1 point at 105. Booth Fisheries issues were inclined to be weak. Union Carbide had an irregular course, dropping from 163 at the opening to a low of 162½, and closing at 165. The buying was of a miscellaneous character.

Pacific Gas and Electric common sold at 50¾. Public Service preferred made a new low price of 93. There was not much doing.

Small Gas Bond Sale.

The Peoples Gaslight and Coke company has placed $3,000,000 of its 5 per cent refunding mortgage bonds, the proceeds to be eventually used in the construction of a new plant outside the city limits. The sales of the bonds is an ordinary routine matter, taking care of the company's growth.

The total amount of refunding 5 per cent bonds listed on the New York stock exchange is now $18,400,000.

Northwest State Bank.

Stockholders of the Northwest State bank voted yesterday to increase the capital stock from $50,000 to $100,000. Shareholders will be permitted to subscribe for the new stock at par until June 16.

Banks Gain in Cash.

Known movements of money for the week indicate a net gain in cash by the New York banks of $5,638,512. They gained from the interior $10,025,512, but lost to the subtreasury $4,387,000.

General Motors Expands.

There is some demand for stock of the General Motors company. For the nine months ended April 30 the receipts were $58,357,233, against $38,006,629 for the corresponding period in 1912.

If this expansion is of a character of that of the late Rumely company management, the shareholders may well become inquisitive.

Standard Oil Melon.

The Standard Oil Company of New York has called a special meeting for June 5 to increase the capital stock to $75,000,000. The proposal is for a stock dividend of 400 per cent to holders of record June 13.

The company has declared a cash dividend of 6 per cent, payable June [illegible] holders of record May 23. The stock adv[illegible] to 700 bid after the foregoing announcement.

Bank for Canal Zone.

It will be of interest to learn what financial coterie furnishes the capital for the establishment of a national bank in Panama to be known as the Banco de Panama. The president of the Republic of Panama has been authorized to contract for the founding of such an institution.

The capital stock must be at least $1,000,000. The bank may open for business after 50 per cent of its capital has been paid in, but the remainder must be paid within six months. The president of Panama is empowered to permit the bank to begin business with a paid up capital equivalent to 25 per cent of the whole, and to extend the time for paying in the remainder to one year.

Authority to issue bank notes is to be given. This must be payable to bearer, must not exceed in amount the paid up capital, and no issue can be made unless a gold reserve, coined in the United States, equal to 33 per cent of such sums as the bank may have in circulation is maintained. The notes are not to be obligatory legal tender for private debts, but will be legal tender in payment of taxes, imposts, and duties.

The bank may have a mortgage section to make loans on property for terms up to twenty years at an annual rate of interest not to exceed 9 per cent. The bank must not place out on mortgages more than 30 per cent of the amount represented by its deposits.

Small Profits for Casein.

The Casein Company of America has issued its report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1912. The net profits for twelve months were $50. Isaac L. Rice, formerly head of the Distilling company and president of the Casein concern, says:

"To understand why the income of the company is relatively so small, it should be borne in mind that while in previous years the subsidiary companies declared sufficient dividends to meet the dividend requirements of the Casein Company of America, they now maintain as large a reserve as possible, declaring dividends only to the extent necessary to provide for the expenses and other requirements of the Casein Company of America."

Exp. and depreciation	36,306	42,306	42,005

LATEST WALL STREET GOSSIP.

NEW YORK, May 16.—[Special.]—The stock market today was much the dullest of the week, and according to some records it made a new record for inactivity during the current year. Commission houses were generally deserted, and the floor of the stock exchange itself was comparatively empty. A considerable portion of the financial district decided that the best thing to do was to begin their week end holiday a day earlier than usual, and left the district.

The chart readers say this has been a most remarkable week for their records. The charts of the active stocks have made a most unusual showing. Union Pacific, for instance, for the last ten days has not failed to touch a price of 148⅝ in each session, and has never strayed from that price more than two points in the whole period.

The chart of Reading fluctuations has made an even more noteworthy exhibit. During the present week the price of Reading has had an extreme range of less than two points. On only one day this week has Steel common had an extreme range of more than one point.

The respective prices of Pennsylvania stock and of Pennsylvania "rights" which call for the delivery of stock at the end of the month have on several occasions offered the chance of a small profit. The difference in price has sometimes been only momentary, but today there were several occasions when the quotations for the "rights" and the stock were far enough apart to permit such an operation. This was so when the stock could be sold at 110⅛ and the rights purchased at 1 1-32. The owner of Pennsylvania who made the change on this basis took a profit of about three-eighths of 1 per cent.

Favorable or unfavorable inferences marketwise undoubtedly will be drawn from the reception accorded by the investing public to next week's large applications for capital here and abroad. In this city there will be an offering of $45,000,000 4½ per cent bonds of the city of New York. In Europe investors will be given an opportunity to subscribe for $125,000,000 Chinese 5 per cents, distributed among the various financial capitals.

As regards next Tuesday's offering here of city bonds, no doubt has been expressed in bond circles that the entire issue will be taken at an average price close to par. Because improvement in the bond market often precedes an advance in the stock market observers are laying some stress upon a turn for the better in the prices of the high grade issues.

People who have closely followed the fortunes of the railroads for years have expressed themselves as frankly surprised at the manner in which the press of the country has received the announcement by the railroad interests that they will endeavor to secure a higher compensation for service rendered. It is pointed out that as yet there has been almost no condemnation of the proceeding, even in quarters where the most violent opposition might be expected.

This attitude is in striking contrast to the storm of protest throughout the country that was aroused by the similar step taken by the railroads in 1910, and apparently is a good augury that the railroads will gain their point in the present instance.

Two years ago next August the great railway strike in England was settled. The railways yielded to the demands of their employés in the matter of higher wages on the direct promise by parliament that they should be allowed to compensate themselves by higher rates. This increase in rates has now been granted. The London Times comments on the event in part as follows:

"If the just demands for further improvement in railway labor conditions are to be met without wrecking the whole financial edifice upon which the railway rests it is clear that the public must pay. If only to secure continuity of railway service, absence of strikes, etc., some moderate increase in railway charges must be established, and this is the policy which the companies are now endeavoring to carry out under the direct authority of parliament. Legally and morally, the claim of the railway companies is a just one, for it would be absurd to assume that the railway industry alone can flourish under economic conditions which provide for fixity of its charges to the public on the one hand and rapidly increasing expenses on the other."

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, May 16.—Money was dearer today and discount rates hardened in sympathy. The conclusion of the settlement on the stock exchange failed to create increased activity, but the tone was decidedly better. Paris bought its favorites in the afternoon and wiped out early losses and investors gave their attention to home rails and gilt edged securities at a higher level, with Guatemala bonds the feature. The demand for rubber shares increased. There were transactions in the new Chinese loan at 1¼ per cent premium. American securities opened steady and about unchanged. Light covering advanced the list during the forenoon and later better New York buying caused additional gains and a firm closing.

Millionaire Bixby Fails to Respond to Second Subpoena as Witness Against Woman.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—George H. Bixby, the Long Beach millionaire indicted on charges of having contributed to the delinquency of two girls, narrowly escaped today a second bench warrant for contempt.

Bixby's attorney explained his client had misunderstood the time set.

IN THE BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., May 16.—[Special.]—In spite of the cut of the dividend, New York, New Haven, and Hartford stock was strong today and went up to 106. Boston Elevated fell off to 87½, and Boston & Maine went off a point. Copper shares were neglected. Call money ruled at 3@3½ per cent; time loans, short dates, 4½@4¾ per cent; commercial paper, 5@5½ per cent.

NEW YORK STOCKS DRIFTING UPWARD

ISSUES IN SCANT SUPPLY.

Market Halts When Covering Is Completed and Prices Remain Firm.

New York, May 16.—Having sold stocks on the two previous days, traders bought them back today. The slow upward movement represented another of the alternate advances and declines of the week in response to the drift of speculation. Bear traders, fearful of an overextension of the short account, did not venture to carry selling further in view of the evidences of strength at the opening and the advance of American securities in London.

Stocks were in scant supply, and although the demand seemed to be limited principally to the requirements of the shorts, prices rose generally. When covering was completed the market came virtually to a standstill, but prices were held firmly at the higher level.

Rail Stocks Resist Liquidation.

The underlying strength of the market was indicated by its resistance to renewed liquidation which broke out late in the day, chiefly among the lower priced railroad securities. Seaboard common and preferred, Wabash preferred, and St. Louis and San Francisco common and second preferred all touched new low points for the year. Weakness of several issues of railroad bonds was still more conspicuous. Rock Island collateral 4's, St. Louis and San Francisco 4's and 5's, Chesapeake & Ohio Convertible 4½'s, and Southern Railway 5's touched the year's low. In spite of the liquidation of these securities, the general market held firm, closing at the best prices of the day.

New Haven Dividend Discounted.

Reduction of the New Haven dividend rate from 8 per cent to 6 per cent, announced after the close yesterday, had been fully discounted in the long decline of recent months, and the price advanced today. Amalgamated was strengthened by the fortnightly statistics of the copper stocks in Europe, showing an unexpectedly heavy decrease.

Forecasts of the weekly bank statement indicated a gain in cash of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,886,000. United States 2s, registered, declined ¼ on call.

Money on call steady, 2¼@2½ per cent; ruling rate, 2½ per cent; closing, 2¼ per cent; offered at 2½ per cent. Time loans firm; 60 and 90 days, 4@4¼ per cent; 6 months, 4½@4¾ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 5¼@5½c. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 482.90 for 60 day bills and at 486.85 for demand. Commercial bills, 482½. Bar silver, 60⅝. Mexican dollars, 48c. Government bonds easy. Railroad bonds irregular.

POTATOES TAKE SHARP RISE; DEMAND COVERS ALL GRADES.

Market Has 2@3 Cent Upturn—Butter Values Also Firm Up—Eggs Steady—Strawberries Irregular.

Avances of 2@3c per bu was scored in potato prices at Chicago yesterday, the market being very active and buyers searching for all kinds of stock, with chief attention centered on the fancy dusty Rurals. Receipts were not small, at 46 cars, but ran a little lighter than those of a week ago. Weather conditions were all that could be desired, and the market is in an extremely healthy condition.

Further fractional gains were marked up for butter values, the strength again being in the best creamery grades. Strictly fancy makes were in small supply and speculators bid briskly on this kind, while local consumptive inquiry took care of the medium to good grades. Receipts were 7,856 tubs. Eggs ruled firm at unchanged prices. Trading continued to be active and offerings moderate. Receipts were 20,668 cases. Live fowls were ½c lower, but other poultry unchanged.

It was an irregular market in strawberries and good stock ruled about steady with Thursday. Much of the fruit on sale arrived in soft condition and had to sell at a big discount. Trading in green vegetables was rather slow for a Friday, and the market went through no radical changes. Quotations:

TRADE IN HEALTHY POSITION; BASIC FACTORS UNIMPAIRED.

Dun's Review Says Current Activities Sustain Last Few Months' Expansion—Future Commitments Conservative.

Dun's Review, published today by R. G. Dun & Co., will say:

"Business generally maintains a healthy position, the basic factors being unimpaired. The volume of bank exchanges compares favorably with this time last year and would be larger were the markets for securities and investment less affected by the stiff money conditions. Current activities sustain the last few months' expansion in the industries, distribution, and transportation.

"There is, however, more conservatism as to future commitments, especially in iron and steel, demands for which reflect further halting. Notwithstanding the temporary attitude of the heavy consuming interests, manufacturers are much encouraged by the splendid early agricultural prospect. Tariff revision may enforce changes in operations hereafter, but it is not expected that the normal course of business will be disturbed.

"Equipment concerns report fewer large contracts, yet car builders and railroad machine shops are under increased pressure. The furnaces, rolling mills, and forges have sufficient forward work to last throughout the year. Docks show rapid accumulation of iron ore to cope with increasing melting. Movements of commodities by rail and lake attest substantial gains in mine, forest, and farm products. The markets for raw materials remain firm as to prices, although pig iron is shaded and premiums for immediate shipments of steel disappear. Gross earnings of the Chicago steam roads exhibit sustained gain and prospective freight offerings involve the acquisition of additional rolling stock.

"Bank clearings, $303,513,973, exceed those of the corresponding week last year by 1.2 per cent, and compare with $267,891,805 in 1911. Failures reported in the Chicago district numbered 26, against 25 last week, 24 in 1912, and 21 in 1911. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 12, against 11 last week, 4 in 1912, and 8 in 1911."

Marshall Field & Co. Review Points Heavy Trade Despite Cool Weather—Drapery Fabrics in Marked Demand.

"Although the weather in most sections of the country has been cool during the last week, totals of transactions continue to run ahead of those of 1912. Interest has been pretty equally divided between current and future business. It is a significant fact that the preponderance of sales in dry goods at wholesale during the week has been in lines that are not considered necessities. This has been true of merchandise sold for both immediate and future shipment.

"The opening of the selling season on drapery fabrics for autumn delivery shows a marked gain in sales over the corresponding period a year ago. Scrim curtains offered at special prices for immediate delivery were quickly taken.

"Orders booked for furs and fur effect materials in women's coats indicate that merchants are keenly anticipating their future wants in this line. The large number of rugs sold at the second auction in New York following closely on one which was considered very successful, indicates that the country is in condition to utilize a large quantity of this merchandise in a short time."

HOGS MAKE GOOD EARLY WEAKNESS

Hogs at one time during the session at Chicago yesterday were off about 5c, but the market braced up toward the finish and closed steady with Thursday's best time. Trade right at the start was fair with speculators buying, but there was a painful lull in between this time and the finish, when the packers came in with a vim. Price range was narrow with most of the stuff going from $8.50@8.60. Shipping demand was fair and top price for best lots was $8.65, the same as on Thursday.

Cattle receipts were fairly liberal for a Friday, and with a sick demand prices ruled weak, with the bulk of stock 15@20c under Wednesday. Fat grades of light cattle were relatively stronger than the good steers, the latter being much neglected. Best beeves sold for $8.35. Prices for butcher stock were steady, while bulls ruled firm and material gains were noted in calves.

Sheep and lambs were largely steady, with the trade again uneven. Offerings of sheep and yearlings were small, but sufficient to supply the requirements of the trade. Lamb arrivals were fairly liberal, and most of the stuff was shorn. Trade was active. Quotations:

CATTLE VALUES SLUMP.

Hogs at one time during the session at Chicago yesterday were off about 5c, but the market braced up toward the finish and closed steady with Thursday's best time. Trade right at the start was fair with speculators buying, but there was a painful lull in between this time and the finish, when the packers came in with a vim. Price range was narrow with most of the stuff going from $8.50@8.60. Shipping demand was fair and top price for best lots was $8.65, the same as on Thursday.

Cattle receipts were fairly liberal for a Friday, and with a sick demand prices ruled weak, with the bulk of stock 15@20c under Wednesday. Plain grades of light cattle were relatively stronger than the good steers, the latter being much neglected. Best beeves sold for $8.35. Prices for butcher stock were steady, while bulls ruled firm and material gains were noted in calves.

Sheep and lambs were largely steady, with the trade again uneven. Offerings of sheep and yearlings were small, but sufficient to supply the requirements of the trade. Lamb arrivals were fairly liberal, and most of the stuff was shorn. Trade was active. Quotations:

HOW TO INVEST

Always consider the safety of your principal first, remembering that large interest return is always accompanied by possibility of large loss. Our First Mortgages on rich, producing farms in the "Corn Belt" of Illinois are safe. The underlying security is readily salable for more than three times the amount loaned. Never a cent's loss to investors in our 55 years selling such securities. Write for list No. 250.

A REAL BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY. The present owners will sell to any responsible party an old and well established piano manufacturing business, with a large and well equipped plant, machinery, stock on hand, land, with all the rights and "good will" of the business. This business has a wide and well established reputation, with forty-five years of experience and fair dealing behind it. The company has made large dividends in the past, and the business will continue to yield handsome profits in the future if properly managed. The plant is situated near enough to Chicago to secure all the advantages of the city as a center of trade, and yet it is far enough removed to be free from arbitrary wage scales and high cost of living for workmen. As this company is a live and going concern, this offer affords a REAL OPPORTUNITY for the profitable investment of capital. Address A A 11, Tribune.

In spite [...]utation a[...] bound, n[...] fossilized [...] conservati[...]achusetts [...]als Kans[...] most ra[...] American [...] sacred s[...] has a way [...] the school into new and deep [...] legislation. In the direction of [...] better housing and living conditi[ons...] people, for instance, the old [...] has gone far beyond any other.

More than two years ago the [...] General court—which is Bostones[e for] legislature—passed an act which [...]ly commits the commonwealt[h to a] policy of state aid in establishi[ng...] cities and suburbs in and about [...] metropolis and its packed and [...] factory towns.

FOUR years ago the Massachu[setts legis]lature appointed the first s[...]stead commission. It was the d[uty of this] body to report as to the wisdom o[f...] assisting by loans of money, or [...] workingmen who wished to re[move from] "congested tenement districts" [...] in the open country. It was[...] words, the first state-aided farm[...] in the country.

The majority of this original [...] reported against the scheme; bu[t...] a minority report, signed by a [...]ber, recommending in the stron[gest...] that the state buy tracts of [...] near the worst of the great fa[ctory towns] and provide some aid in the buil[ding of cot]tages for workmen.

The commission was discharge[d...] and general court of that year [...] did nothing further. But in 1911 [...] the plan outlined in the old mi[nority report...] and appointed a new homeste[ad commis]sion as a permanent body, with [...] to report back a bill which wo[uld provide] for the needed aid from the st[ate].

FRIENDS of the plan are fon[d of pointing] out that there is nothing rea[lly] alarming about it after all. F[...] national government offered a [home]stead to any citizen who would [settle] and cultivate the land. Now t[hat pub]lic lands are practically exha[usted...] is to prevent the state from purc[hasing] tracts of cheap lands and o[ffering them] free or at a nominal price to ind[ustrious and] otherwise desirable settlers? [...] [gener]al court called its radical co[...] homestead commission and told [it] to get busy.

To the legislature of 1912 w[as submitted] a bill which gave to the com[mission the] right to purchase tracts of l[and and] build houses which might be so[ld] to workmen, the commission re[taining tem]porarily at least, the manage[ment of the] whole scheme. The tenants o[f...] of these houses were also to ha[ve a voice in] the management and a share i[n the profits,] if any.

TO finance the scheme the [commission] was authorized to borrow [...] $300,000 from the fund in the [...]ury made up of savings bank de[posits which] have been unclaimed for thi[rty years or] more. It was felt to be partic[ularly appro]priate that this money, whic[h was] originally accumulated by th[e...] workingmen, should be devote[d to the pur]pose of improving the living [conditions of] their successors.

Before it was submitted to t[he...] the bill was published and criti[cisms and ad]vice were asked from the publi[c...] enough, the principle of the b[ill was gener]ally approved and even its det[ails were not] severely criticised.
